The Baked Beans of Boston

Here's a toast that I give to my native land,
Where potatoes and pumpkins and blueberries grow,
Where cheer and good welcome are always at hand,
And doughnuts and apple pies smoke in a row;
Where damsels are fairer than history's queens—
But where triumph is reached in the pot of baked beans!

Let England still boast of her roast beef!
Let Mexico champion tamales so hot!
Let China in chop suey seek for relief!
There's nothing that equals beans baked in a pot!
There's naught by my fond heart from my native land means,
When appears on the table the pot of baked beans.

I have feasted on barbecued meats in the West;
I have eaten corn pone on Virginia's shore;
I've guzzled pot goulash and all of the rest—
But why make an effort to balance the score?
Just give me my home-land, the land of my teens,
Of the steaming hot brown bread and the pot of baked beans.

The pot of baked beans! How in dreams I'd recall it,
When far from old Boston for years forced to dwell,
When pig roasts and plantains had palled on my palate,
How my thoughts turned again to the land loved so well;
For ever the Yankee 'mid tropical scenes,
Will yearn for the sight of a pot of baked beans!

The bean-pot so lowly, so unknown to fame,
With its contents so succulent, mellow and brown—
Its virtues are more than my muse can proclaim,
Its values are worthy of greatest renown!
Here's a toast to the bean-pot and all that it means
Of health and content, with its golden baked beans.

String Stars For Pearls

String stars for pearls on a ribbon of whim
And fling it about her shoulders,
Carve cups from coral and crust each brim
Till the whole gem smokes and smoulders;
Bring gold for beating in thick bright rings
And honey from hearts of clover:
But love will long for the absent things
Ever the old earth over.

Go, ride the world in a glory of wars
And startle the gods to wonder;
Break men to follow triumphant cars
With a rose-paved road thereunder;
Pile stone on stone for the fame of a name
When a thousand years disever:
But love will lean to a smaller flame
Forever and forever.

DEADLOCK PROBABLE OVER CONFLICTING FARM BILLS

On the Eve of the Conference Discussion the Conferees of Both Senate and House Are Determined to Stand by Their Respective Measures—Administration Forces in the Senate Are Hopeful of the Ultimate Elimination of the Debenture Proposal.

WASHINGTON, May 19—(AP)—A long, stubborn contest appears in prospect in the conferences beginning tomorrow between the senate and house over their conflicting farm relief measures.

If advance notices count, a deadlock is ahead on the main point of controversy—the export debenture provision which was put into the senate bill over the strong objections of President Hoover.

On the eve of the conference discussions of the farm measures, the conferees of both the senate and house declared their intention today to stand by their respective bills, so far as the controversial debenture provision is concerned.

If the deadlock develops, the parliamentary situation will force the senate to make the first step on reconsideration of the debenture proposal. Administration forces are confident that if this development occurs, the administration can win enough votes to overcome the 47 to 44 margin by which the debenture was put into the bill.

However, the friends of the senate of the export bounty proposition are determined, if possible, to force a roll call in the house on this, believing it would win more votes than the administration expected. But the prospects for forcing the house call appear slim.

It is agreed that the fight for the debenture will be renewed when the tariff bill comes along, with perhaps even stronger in the senate, in the event it does not eventually become a part of the farm relief legislation.

Chairman McNary of the senate agricultural committee will head the group of five conferees from each of the branches. He and Chairman Haugen of the house agricultural committee will virtually write the measure to come out of the conference and, thus, their names will again be on the farm relief bill. Twice before their measure has gone to the white house, to be vetoed as many times by Calvin Coolidge. But this bill, aside from the export debenture proposal, is believed acceptable to the Hoover administration.

Two prominent republicans, both of them campaigners for Herbert Hoover, took opposite sides last night in speeches over the radio on the export debenture provision against which the president has raised his objections.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, spoke for the debenture. Representative Fort, of New Jersey, spoke against it. The speeches were delivered as part of the radio sponsored by the Washington Star.

The Iowa senator declared the house bill, without the debenture, a gross repudiation of the party pledge and he insisted the debenture would give the farmers "less than half of what they are justly entitled to receive."

The plan, Fort said, "would immediately destroy all dealings basis for immediate delivery in this country."

TARIFF REVISION BILL BEFORE HOUSE THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, May 19 — (AP) — Faced by a solid democratic opposition and with many of its major provisions unacceptable to some of the republicans on the committee that framed it, the tariff revision bill will be taken up for amendment in the house this week with indications pointing to a final vote about May 28.

General debate, which began May 9, two days after the measure was introduced by Representative Hawley, of Oregon, chairman of the ways and means committee, will continue tomorrow and Tuesday. Despite wide divisions of opinion, republican leaders look for passage of the measure with but few major changes.

Ordinarily, tariff bill debates last only a week in the house, but progress on the present measure was delayed by a group of western republicans who expressed dissatisfaction with increases granted on agricultural products. Some eastern republicans also dissented, principally because boots and shoes were not transferred from the free to the dutiable list.

These complainants were allowed to place their cases before the republicans of the ways and means committee at supplemental hearings which began last Tuesday and ended Saturday. Tomorrow the committeemen will hold an executive session to study the proposals with a view to offering those found worth, as committee amendments, before any amendments are reported on, however, the democrats on the committee will be called in to participate in the voting.

WILL BE NO MARTIAL LAW IN CARTER COUNTY, TENN.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 19—(AP)—Martial law in Carter county, scene of five week's textile labor disturbance, "will not be ordered unless it becomes necessary" and authorized courts fail to function," Adjutant General W. C. Boyd said late today after a conference attended by representatives of the governor, the state's attorney general and military and civil officers.

General Boyd, in command of eight companies of national guardsmen who were ordered here to act as special officers, repeated his previously expressed determination not to proclaim martial law at this time.

Further than this statement, no information was given out in regard to any other decisions reached at the meeting which was called to determine whether martial law would be legal and necessary.

Meanwhile, the tense situation growing out of strikes at the American Bemberg and American Glanzstoff plants on April 15 still was unabated, despite the fact there were no outward manifestations overnight. So taut were citizens' nerves that rumors of dynamitings, riots and minor pillage continued to fly through the town. All of them were found to be groundless.

Further evidence of the tension was the presence of eight companies of national guardsmen, who patrolled all highways and guarded the two textile plants. Extra troops were placed near the Bemberg filtering plant, and a truck load of soldiers was sent to guard Watauga river dam, 15 miles above the city.

Damage to the filtering plant, would stop operations at the mill, and to the dam would affect Elizabethton's water supply and indirectly stop the Bemberg plant. Operations were resumed at both textile plants here last week, despite the strike.

Last night one guardsman reported he was fired on while patrolling a mountain road. A group of guards early today fired on a few prowlers near the Bemberg filtering plant. None was hurt.

DISCUSSION SUNDAY BY REPARATIONS EXPERTS

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—The reparations experts spent Sunday working while the rest of France tried to amuse itself. The Allied and American delegates continued discussion of German modification and conditions while the Germans had before them most of the objections raised by the Allies and some suggested compromises.

The delegation hoped its spokesman, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, will be ready tomorrow to get down to business on the revised conditions. Meantime the Allied representatives are trying to solve the puzzle of making a little money go a long ways and meet their requirements.

SIX PERSONS KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING

DETROIT, May 19—(AP)—Six persons, presumably all of one family, were killed three miles west of Wayne, Michigan, late today in a crash between their automobile and an eastbound Michigan Central passenger train. The dead were a man, woman and four children. A bank book in the man's pocket indicated he was August Kando of Detroit.

The small automobile was carried more than a half mile before the speeding train could be stopped. The fireman said the train, the crack Wolverine running from Chicago to Buffalo was running at a speed of 60 miles an hour. The train was delayed only a few minutes.

170 FIGHTING AIRPLANES INSPECTED AT WRIGHT FIELD

WRIGHT FIELD, Dayton, Ohio, May 19—(AP)—One hundred and seventy fighting planes which have dealt imaginary death in mimic warfare from the clouds above Ohio for the past four days were drawn up for public inspection here and at Norton Field, Columbus, today as the "truce" between the Red and Blue armies extended over the Sabbath.

Not a propellor whirled today, for the public was invited to view at close range the fast pursuit ships, the ponderous bombers and the trim observation planes that roared and scared back and forth between Columbus, Dayton and Cincinnati yesterday in attack and counter attack, ending with the review at Norton Field and the truce which will end at midnight Monday.

Commanding officers of the rival forces spent the day and night talking over battle plans for the coming week, while their pilots talked of everything under the sun except the fatal accident which robbed them of their comrade. Second Lieutenant E. L. Meadow, of Nashville, Tenn., and caused injury to Second Lieutenant A. F. Soltez of Los Angeles after a collision over Columbus yesterday.

The two fliers had been stationed with the Blue army. The Blues had an advantage of five to nine in planes "lost" on rulings of the umpires during the battle yesterday, thereby turning the tables on the Reds who won victories earlier in the week.

Ground troops will form battle lines Tuesday on a front west of Columbus, about 25,000 theoretically being engaged.

Ground operations are scheduled to begin at midnight Tuesday.

More than 2,000 persons ramped through the mud at Norton Field today, appraising the ships, while almost as many came here from Dayton, Springfield and other nearby cities.

COUNTERFEITING AND DRUG SMUGGLING SYNDICATE

ALBANY, N. Y., May 19.—(AP) — Two arrests by secret service and federal narcotic agents led Captain James A. Reidy, a government operative, to announce today that inroads have been made on a counterfeiting and drug smuggling syndicate operating out of Albany.

Reuben Grossman, alias Sammy Grossman, 20, of New York city, was held in jail here on a technical charge of violation of the narcotic act, while his colleague Frank Cedris of Philadelphia, was held in the Troy jail.

Ten dollar notes purporting to be those drawn on the Federal Reserve bank of Boston, were passed by Grossman, Cedris and a woman, Captain Reidy said. Search is being made for the woman.

PARIS, May 19—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin seems to have become a giant dove of peace. Germany's gratitude for the prompt and effective French aid has inspired a number of French newspapers to respond with more soft words and there has been created a frank and human atmosphere that some believe is developing into a better international understanding.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Ger., May 19—(AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener arrived from Toulon, France, tonight so fatigued by the almost unceasing strain he had been under since the Graf Zeppelin left here Thursday, that he retired to bed at once. The commander of the dirigible declined to make any statement of the accidents which befell the ship or of plans for the future.

MOTHER ATTEMPT TO SUICIDE; WAS NIGHT CLUB HOSTESS

NEW YORK, May 19—(AP)—A young mother who had become a night club hostess to support her four-year-old son, today swallowed poison after writing a note to the boy in which she said: "I can't be good and get by."

Neighbors heard her moans and she was taken from her hotel room to a hospital, where doctors said she would recover. She told authorities she was Mildred Lauren, formerly of Kansas City.

Police found in her room an opened copy of Nietzsche's "Beyond Good and Evil" and a note addressed to her son Richard.

"I have tried so hard to be decent and make a living for the baby and myself," the note said.

"I can't get by in New York without a chance. x x x Can't be good and get by, so I will give him a real chance—my baby. May he pass through life unsullied, bright and true."

FOUND LIQUOR HIDDEN IN HOLE IN AN ELM TREE

BOSTON, May 19.—(AP)—A "speakeasy" in a tree was uncovered by members of the liquor squad here today. Police sergeants on the watch for "pint pedlers" saw a young man walk to a tree in Orchard park and return to the street. The young man cautiously produced a bottle and gave it to another man.

At this stage the police stepped towards the young man, arrested him, and adjourned to the park. They found a hole in a large elm. About an arm's length down in the trunk were four pints of liquor.

The prisoner, Ray Murray, was charged with unlawful possession of liquor in a public reservation, keeping and exposing, and unlawful sale of liquor.

STATESMEN OF LITTLE ENTENTE IN CONFERENCE

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, May 19.—(AP)—A conference of statesmen of the little entente will open here for a three-day session tomorrow and promises to be one of the most important meetings of these countries.

The principal problem before the foreign ministers of Jugoslavia, Rumania and Szechslovakia, which comprises the little entente, is what steps shall be taken to prevent the neighboring vanquished states, notably Hungary, from securing alteration of the existing peace treaties.

Renewed efforts will be made, it was understood, by Jugoslavia to replace the present individual treaties between the three members states by a single convention. This is likely to be opposed by Czechoslovakia and Rumania.

Graf Zeppelin Is To Return To Her Base

Crank Shafts of Two Motors Were Broken in Flight by the Same Place.

CUERS France, May 19.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin will sail under her own power either Wednesday or Thursday morning for Friedrichshafen, minus her passengers but manned by her own crew. Such was the decision of Dr. Hugo Eckener, the dirigible's commander prior to departure last night for Friedrichshafen and made public today by Captain Ernest A. Lehmann, second in command.

An immense throng of French people made pilgrimages here today and passed through the shed where the Graf Zeppelin is housed. Secretary Clodius of the German embassy in Paris was a guest of the prefect of the department and again thanked the French people for their untiring assistance throughout the hectic day last Friday when the Zeppelin was in distress over southern France.

All the passengers had or were making preparations to depart this evening. Mrs. Mary Pierce the only woman passenger was to board a train for Paris at 8.25. "It is a pity I could not conclude this trip to America by air but I will do the next best" she said before leaving. Mrs. Pierce who started the trip much to the distress of her husband a New York broker became known to her fellow air voyagers as "the woman with a perpetual smile." She visited the airfield last night to say goodbye to Dr. Eckener who left for Friedrichshafen an hour later.

Notwithstanding Dr. Eckener's statement that the ship would depart for her home port either Wednesday or Thursday, Captain Lehmann and Pilot Hans Feemis expressed the private opinion that she would not be ready before next Sunday. While refraining from expressing themselves openly, it was evident that they regarded their commander as too optimistic in his belief that she would be ready to proceed to the Lake Constance airfield at the time he specified.

French mechanics told an Associated Press correspondent that the shafts of the two disabled motors were broken cleanly, the crack in the steel being clean-cut and bright, indicating there had been no previous strain or weakness in G shaft.

"It is peculiar and strange," one of them told the correspondent, "that both shafts were broken at exactly the same spot where they enter into the motor."

The two good motors of the Zeppelin were tuned up this morning and seemed to be functioning without a hitch. Two new ones are on the way from Friedrichshafen and when they arrive will be installed with all possible haste.

SUNDAY STROLLERS WERE DRENCHED BY CLOUDBURST

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)— One man drowned, many persons in pleasure craft were rescued and thousands of Sunday strollers were drenched today when a veritable cloudburst deluged the city and environs. The storm struck shortly after 3 o'clock and caused thousands of dollars property damage.

Charles Seifert, 50, of Jamaica, L. I., was washed over board from a small fishing craft. Despite efforts of his friend, Leo Wolshek, who jumped into the running sea and brought Seifert back into the boat, he failed to revive. The fatality occurred about a mile off Far Rockaway.

Sunday crowds at the beaches and in the parks were caught unprepared and in various sections of the city cellars were flooded.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zimmerman and their daughter Marie, 23, accompanied by three friends were on the Hudson in a rowboat when the storm clouds gathered. Quickly whipping up a choppy surface the river tossed the tiny craft about threatening to capsize it. Their cries attracted two men in a motorboat nearby who rescued the six persons as the rowboat was nearly filled with water.

Gilbert Paris, 9, slid into the East river when an embankment was washed away. He was rescued by two, men and taken to the Harlem hospital.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED IN CRASH OF AIRPLANE

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 19—(AP)—Four persons were injured, two of them seriously, today in a crash of an airplane in an attempted take-off.

The seriously hurt were Dorothy Gusnell, 25, of Baltimore, Md., injuries to the spine and a possible fracture of the skull; and Mrs. Lucianne de la Paulle, of New York, fracture of the hip.

Andree de la Paulle, husband of Mrs. de la Paulle, received a minor injury to one of his hands, and their ten-year-old son, Jacques, was suffering from shock.

D. L. Promrose, of Baltimore, Md., and the pilot Bryan Shaw, escaped injury.

The plane, owned by Air Associates, Inc., was up about 20 feet when the landing gear struck a tree on the boundary line between the field and the old Westbury golf course. The ship turned over on its left wing and crashed about 30 feet inside the golf course, a complete wreck.

Mrs. de la Paulle was thrown through the roof of the cabin and landed about 20 feet away. She, her son and Miss Gusnell were taken to Nassau hospital at Mineola. The others were released after examinations and first aid treatment.

WEAK CONSTRUCTION OF PLANE CAUSES TWO DEATHS

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 19—(AP)—Weak construction of a home made monoplane caused the deaths today of two of its builders, George F. King, 23, and Morris R. Mellinger, 25, both of Muskegon. Groom Killed Bride And Then Himself

Act of a Private Attached to the Military Police at the Statue of Liberty.

NEW YORK, May 19—(AP)—Charles B. Canto, 27, a private attached to the military police unit at the Statue of Liberty, today killed his bride of two days and then fired a bullet into his own brain. He died two hours later in Broad street hospital. Police said pencilled notes they found indicated the shooting was the result of a suicide pact.

The shooting took place in the upper deck cabin of the Statue of Liberty ferryboat General Melgs, which was tied up at the Battery.

Six soldiers and a sailor who were asleep aboard the boat heard the shots. The sailor, V. N. Unto, said he was awakened by a woman's cries of "mother, mother, save me." A moment later he said there were two shots from the aft end of the upper cabin.

Unto and the six soldiers found the body of Mrs. Canto, 22, lying on a seat, her head pillowed on her husband's coat. Canto, unconscious, was slumped over on the seat beside her and his service pistol was on the floor.

Three notes, all written by Mrs. Canto and each signed by both her and her husband, were found. One addressed to the commander of the military police unit to which Canto was attached said "We cannot live together here, we prefer to live together in death."

Police believe the woman became panic-stricken and called for help just before the shooting.

PRESIDENTIAL INAUGURATION IN HAVANA THIS NOON

HAVANA, May 19—(AP)—Four years of national executive service will end Monday for General Gerardo Machado y Morales and six years of service as president of Cuba will start for the farmer-statesman who, through coalition of the three major political parties, was six months ago acclaimed president in an uncontested election.

For the past week this city has been in holiday spirit as envoys extraordinary and ambassadors of 37 nations arrived for the inauguration which will be held at the new $16,000,000 capitol tomorrow. Government business has come to a standstill while officials have turned their attention to extending courtesies to visiting envoys.

Havana is in holiday dress. Principal streets are flag bedecked, buildings are draped in the national colors of Cuban festooned in gaily colored lights.

The festivities open at six a. m. with the blowing of reveille at Morro castle. The inauguration of President Machado will be at noon in the "salon de Perdidos" (hall of lost steps) and will be followed by a luncheon at the presidential palace and a public manifestation in front of the palace. The day will close with a grand ball in the palace, a formal function to surpass in splendor any other social event of the year.

MAY MAKE EFFORT TO FREE "SCARFACE" CAPONE

CHICAGO, May 19.—(AP)—Any activity that may be afoot to free Al Capone from the Pennsylvania jail where he is serving a year sentence for carrying concealed weapons, was shrouded in secrecy today.

Police learned that Mike Corozzo and Frank Nitti, labor leaders and erstwhile associates of the underworld czar, had left here for Philadelphia to "look over the situation." Officials also said they receive word via the "grape vine" route that a defense fund was being raised locally for appeal of the conviction.

Today D. Nash, criminal attorney, who last night said he had been approached by friends of Capone regarding possibilities of reopening the case was less voluble today. Associates of Capone who had arranged a meeting with Nash for today, failed to appear at his office, the attorney said. Nash said he was in the dark regarding their future plans.

At the detective bureau, members of the homicide squad, with whom Capone has been in more or less intimate contact over a period of years, were marking time. There was a general under-current of feeling that the slaying last week of Al Anselmi, Joseph Guinta and John Scalice, henchman of the imprisoned leader, would be answered by a fresh outbreak of gang war.

SMELTING PLANT WAS RANSACKED BY BURGLARS

EVERETT, Mass., May 19.—(AP) — Two burglars ransacked a smelting plant here early today and got away with a truck load of metal after blindfolding the watchman and lashing him to a chair.

The watchman, Peter Romano, of Wakefield, released himself after an hour's struggle and telephoned the police. He said the two men entered his office and forced him to sit in the chair. They took papers from an open safe and then went to the rear of the plant where they loaded the metal onto the company's truck and drove away. The metal was valued at $600.

POLICE GUARDS SENT ABOARD RUSSIAN STEAMER

LONDON, May 19. (Monday)—(AP)—The Mail today prints a Basra dispatch saying that police guards have been put aboard the Russian steamer Kommunist which arrived in the Persian gulf with silver rupees worth about $225,0000 ad not consigned to any person. It was believed that the money was intended to subsidize trouble in the oil fields which have occurred recently. Only the captain of the steamship was allowed ashore and two British warships stood by to prevent any illegal landing.

GIRL AND MAN KILLED IN RUSH AT YANKEE STADIUM

Between 50 and 60 Persons Were Injured—During a Rush For Exits to Get Under Cover From Rain Some One Stumbled and the Crowd Piled Up When Thousands in the Rear Pressed Forward in Their Blind Haste—300 Policemen Finally Cleared the Alleyway.

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—A college girl and a teamster were trampled to death and between 50 and 60 persons were injured today in a mad rush for exits at the Yankee Stadium to seek cover from a sudden heavy rain which halted the first game of a scheduled double header between the Yankees and Boston Red Sox.

As the umpire's announcement of the end of play rang out 6,000 fans in the south bleachers rushed for an alley leading to 157th street. Some one stumbled and fell, the thousands in the rear pressed forward in their blind haste to escape the downpour and almost in an instant the exit was choked with a screaming battling mass of humanity.

When the police finally stemmed the rush of the crowd and reached those who had been trampled, they found Joseph Carter, 60 year old teamster lying dead in the passageway, and Miss Eleanor Price, 17, who lived in the Bronx and attended Hunter college breathing her last. The girl died in the stadium offices before medical aid could be administered.

She had attended the game with her brother, George, 14, and both had joined in the rush for the exit. The boy was slightly injured in the crush. The injuries of the others many of them were boys, ranged from fractured skulls to slight bruises.

The alley through which the crowd attempted to force its way is 12 feet wide and 35 feet long and has a floor of sand. Fourteen steps lead down to it from the bleachers. The first of the outrushing crowd took these steps in a few jumps, but the sand proved insecure footing and the crowd began to pile up.

As each succeeding wave of fans reached the top of the stairs and saw what was happening in the passageway, there was an attempt to halt, but the pressure from behind was too strong and the piling up continued.

Women screamed and struggled frantically, boys shouted in fear and men battled silently toward the open.

A wire netting on either side of the alley finally gave way and spilled part of the crowd beneath the bleachers and the grand stand, where they crawled to safety.

Even after the police had partly stopped the rush, ambulance surgeons summoned from three hospitals had to fight to get to the injured, who were carried to emergency hospitals established in a grand stand rest room and in the players' dressing rooms. Three hundred police reserves finally cleared the passageway.

Because of a shortage of stretchers many of the victims lay on the ground, some of them unconscious, their clothes torn from their bodies, until overworked doctors were able to remove them to shelter.

Police Commissioner Whalen, who rushed to the stadium, said he believed the accident was unavoidable. Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, said the accident was "most unfortunate" but that it was impossible to control "the crowd mind."

After an investigation District Attorney John E. McGeehan, of the Bronx said there had been no negligence on the part of the stadium officials.

Discounting reports said to have been circulated by persons in the crowd that an exit had been closed at the time of the rush, the district attorney said there was but one door closed, and that was an exit leading to the arena. His investigation, he said, tended to prove that the responsibility for the accident rested entirely with the crowd, which became frightened at a sudden streak of lightning.

Mr. McGeehan said that if the responsibility rested with anyone, it rested with the spectators who left their seats when the rain started and crowded about the exits, hoping to keep out of the rain and see the game at the same time. He said that without thinking, those persons blocked the exits and becoming confused at the first rush caused more confusion by attempting to push through the exits ahead of the crowd.

Official records showed the bleachers were occupied by 9,500 persons. Mr. McGeehan said that under the grand stands there was sufficient space for 25,000 persons. The chutes leading to that space were open, he said.

Mr. McGeehan said that Henry Geffner, 12 years old, blamed the rush on the sudden scream of a woman shortly after a bolt of lightning appeared to have struck on the opposite side of the stadium. Geffner started for the nearest exit, but was trampled under several times before he was rescued by a policeman and taken to Lincoln hospital suffering from internal injuries.

BABE RUTH AMONG THE FIRST TO SUMMON AID

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—Babe Ruth was among the first to summon aid for the injured in this afternoon's crush at the Yankee Stadium in which two persons were killed and between 50 and 60 hurt.

When he learned of what was taking place he rushed from the Yankee dugout on to the field and called upon physicians among the crowds in the stands to volunteer their services.

Isidore Simon, 13-year-old Bronx boy, was one of the few who went through the crush and were able to tell a coherent story about it immediately afterwards. Minus one shoe and his hat, with his body covered with bruises, he told how he was caught in the crowd in the passageway, pushed upwards on the human tide and finally forced through a wire netting to safety.

CONFERENCE OF CHURCH OF UNITED BRETHREN

LANCASTER, Pa., May 19—(AP)—President Hoover and Bishop William M. Bell of Harrisburg, today presented varying estimates of the younger generation in messages to the thirtieth quadriennal conference of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ.

President Hoover's expression of his faith in the church going young people of the country was contained in a telegram received with unrestrained enthusiasm at the young peoples rally which featured today's sessions of the conference.

"Please say for me, to the young people of the United Brethren in Christ, that they and their kind are the brightest hope of their country, because they retain, unspoiled by cynicism, the ideals of youth in which alone are found the faith, courage, will and energy by which visions of social and moral advance are translated into actuality."

In marked contrast to the chief executive's message of faith, were the statements made by the retiring senior bishop of the denomination in his sermon.

There are too many church members of the present day who are card playing, dancing and bootlegging participants, instead of being intensely interested in the salvation of souls," he said.

"Unless America pledges anew to Christ, it will be lost. Secure a revival in your home church for a renewal of God in us, and break way from the passion of evil, and hold to the spirit of God. America must be shaken from center to circumference with a mighty revival of religion and a sincere returning to God and Christ."

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND AT FOOT OF A PRECIPICE

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., May 19—(AP)—The body of Miss Claire Kramer, 21, year-old domestic, was found today at the foot of a 50-foot precipice here today.

The skull was fractured. Beside the body was a pistol which had jammed. Chief of Police J. Stissinger expressed the belief that the girl first attempted to shoot herself and when the revolver jammed she leaped from the top of the precipice.

The body was found by Harry Suss, of Haverstraw, who told police he was Miss Kramer's fiance and that he had found the body near their usual trysting place.

Police learned the girl came to this country from Germany about a year ago and had been employed as a domestic by Dr. George Folliffe, a dentist. He told police he knew of no motive for suicide.

Dr. Ralph De Baun, Conners physician who examined the body at the request of the district attorney, said he believed the girl had committed suicide.

COP SHOT IN ATTEMPT TO CAPTURE MURDER SUSPECTS

NEW YORK, May 20—(AP)—A policeman off duty was shot twice in the shoulder today in attempting to capture two murder suspects.

The policeman, Frank P. Martin, on his way home to Coney Island, heard the pistol shots that killed Vincent Duono, 26. He ran in the direction of the shots and saw two men standing in a doorway.

The men fled at his approach, one of them opening fire as he ran. A bullet struck Martin in the right shoulder, but he continued in pursuit until a second struck him above the heart. He fell and the men escaped.

Surgeons said his condition was not dangerous.

Duono, who detectives said had a police record, died in Coney Island hospital of three bullet wounds in the neck and chest, four hours after the shooting. Police ascribed his slaying to gangsters who three months ago killed his brother, Carmine, 28, in Los Angeles.

MORE ARITHMETIC BEING TAUGHT THAN REQUIRED

NEW YORK, May 19—(AP)—More support for the schoolboy who complains that his "sums" are too difficult was forth-coming today from Teachers college, Columbia university.

Dr. A. O. Bowden, education administrator, announced that a survey conducted under his direction in hundreds of public schools showed that 85 per cent more arithmetic is being taught than is being required in "life situations."

Many or the problems taught are too abstruce, the report said, and are one of the chief causes for non-promotion.

NORWICH MAN ARRESTED FOR AUTO VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 19—Detected negotiating the corner of Jackson and Union streets in the well known "one-wheel" manner shortly before 1 o'clock this morning, William L. Ensling, 23, of Norwich, an employe at the Mansfield State Training School and Hospital was arrested after a brief chase up Main street and charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He was released under bonds of $200. Officer Leo Piche who made the arrest took note of the condition of Ensling's car which had two damaged fenders on the left side and one jammed fender on the right. Ensling told of having struck a bridge in Coventry and on investigation the officers found that the abutment fence on the narrow bridge over the Willimantic river leading from the Stafford highway to Coventry was torn down. Ensling said that he had two companions with him at the time of the accident. One of the young men was in the car at the time of the arrest and the other was picked up by Officer John Lutton. He was found to be suffering from cuts on his arm and was treated by Dr. Nathan Spector. He gave his name as Joseph Wood.

THIRTY MERCHANTS TO ORGANIZE CREDIT EXCHANGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 19—Some 30 merchants have signified their intention of becoming members of the newly organized Willimantic Credit Exchange which will for the present concern itself with accounts 90 days and over. The exchange is based on the data of the National Association of Credit Bureaus and will be identified with that organization which has within its membership some 18,000 individual bureaus throughout the country. It is pointed out that a person having accounts with one or more merchants in his home town and who does not pay in accordance with whatever agreements he makes with his merchants creates himself a credit rating which will be a detriment to that individual when he seeks to open accounts with other merchants here or in any of the surrounding cities in Connecticut and the country at large. The reputation of the individual with the credit exchange is solely of his own making and if it is good no trouble will be encountered in opening new accounts. The exchange does not make any rating nor does any of the other thousands of credit bureau, but simply makes the reports of the actual credit record of the individual. Those interested in the local movement are looking forward to a growth of the exchange to include virtually all lines of mercantile and business activities as well as the professions. Weekly meetings will be held at the chamber of commerce office [illegible] among the members accounts [illegible] over and all unsatisfactory [illegible]

JEWETT CITY

A TRUE TROUT STORY ENDING WITH A BULL STORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 19.—The two largest square-tailed brook trout ever caught in Griswold were taken Saturday from the same brook, from points a mile apart. The handsome pair differed in weight but one ounce. The larger caught by Stephen Duffy, tipped the beam at two and three-quarters pounds. The other reeled in by Henry "Doc" Wallace, was weighed by J. H. Tracy, and pulled the pointer around to two pounds, 11 ounces. In the Hanover-Curland window, in Norwich, the big one may be seen Monday. Local people saw the two and three-quarters beauty Saturday afternoon in J. B. LeClaire's window. It was sure an all trout day in local brooks Saturday, with a catch of close to 50, all over 1-2 pound.

Both Mr. Duffy and Mr. Wallace were fishing with worms. Strangely, the former is latter's nephew, he besting his uncle "Doc" by a single point.

The Mt. Misery guide came near to getting in bad during the effecting of his capture. First off, he saw the trout at 11 a. m. lying just below a ripple, where the current made around a fallen stump. He kept the worm floating past him for hours, not getting the strike until late in the afternoon. That was not all, for in coming across the meadow to the road a big Jersey bull tried out the "Doc's" sprinting prowess. It would have been easy, only Henry was rigged out in his new 7-league hip boots. In the finish, he dove over the wall, trout, boots and basket, just one jump ahead of the country gentleman from Jersey.

CARRIER DELIVERY OF MAIL TO BE INAUGURATED SOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 19—Postmaster William T. Crumb, received instructions from the postoffice department at Washington Saturday, that Jewett City is slated for carrier delivery to become effective as soon as office accommodations become ample for the extra carrier cases and additional equipment. While Mr. Crumb has known, since the completion of the closing balances for 1928, that this office was due for carrier delivery, he has made no formal application for such service. Postoffice Inspector C. J. Mulvey of New London, was here during the week and in company with the postmaster, discussed the layout of the delivery plan, checked up on its service advantages, and drove over the prospective routes. As is the case in the government's free rural delivery, those who expect the benefits of this service, must conform to departmental rulings. No deliveries may be expected where sidewalks are not maintained. Among the outstanding radical changes the drop letter, one cent postage, will be automatically discontinued with the installation of carrier service.

This office will then provide a box holder section as at present, for any who desire to obtain mail by calling at the office.

The requirement of the new system will necessitate the appointment by civil service examination of two regular carriers, and a certified substitute. All of these as well as the office force and R. D. routes, will come under the direct supervision of the postmaster.

These appointees when qualified as actual letter carriers will then be required to pass regular examinations on the street system of the borough, as well as the location of its manufactories, banks, hotels, business blocks and important buildings.

Every home anticipating delivery service, will be required to provide a suitable receptacle for mail. One of the main benefits will be in the fact that mailboxes will be established from which regular collection will be made.

The new service will establish a plan identical with other municipal carrier systems, rated for offices of the second class. The receipts of this office doubled within 10 years.

The city carrier salary is $2,100 annually. He is under civil service regulations, with provisions for 15 days' vacation, sick leave and retirement at the age of 64, with an annuity of $1,000. That which is classed as village carrier service, pays $1,530 annually. Jewett City will be entitled to regular city delivery, with salary accordingly. Inspector Mulvey said Sunday, that he had plans and government instructions to go ahead with the inauguration of the system at once.

Brown (to employer)—Jones won't be at the office this week, sir, owing to a bereavement in his family.

Employer—Oh, indeed, and who's dead this time?

WESTERLY

THREE BOYS QUESTIONED WHEN CAUGHT ON TRESTLE

Reported as playing on the Pawcatuck river trestle of the New Haven railroad Sunday no. 1 Joseph Parrwila, 11 West street; Angelo Falco, 14 West street and Dominic Barado, 3 Dayton street, were found by New Haven Railroad Detective Brown and Police Officer Charles Button of Westerly and taken to Westerly police station where they were questioned by Patrolman Robert M. Kessel. Investigation showed that the boys had secured wire being used on railroad telegraph lines, also collected steamfittings, the property of the New Haven railroad. The boys were permitted to return to their homes for court appearance next Friday.

STONINGTON CYCLISTS FINED $25 AND COSTS EACH

Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck held a session of Stonington Town court Saturday morning in which Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher arraigned on a reckless motor vehicle operation charge Harry Bowman, 28, also Salvatore John D'Amico, 23, of Grand street, both of Stonington borough. The young men were the riders of two motorcycles on the Westerly-Stonington road near Solomonville which about 10 p. m., May 17th crashed into the rear end of an automobile being driven by Mrs. Sarah White of New York from New London toward Westerly. Officer James L. Daggett of the Groton barracks, testified that the auto was struck while it was being driven into a driveway. The motorcycle proceeded 100 feet down the road and ran off into a swamp. The spot was brightly lighted as there was a sign which read "Tourists Accommodated." Judge Wilcox fined each $25 and costs amounting to $35.35, and they were paroled in custody of Stonington Police Officer William Ostman until the bill was paid. White made claim upon the young men also to pay for the damage done the rear of her auto.

Held in $500 Bail

Frank Novack, 27, of 228 Pallisade avenue, Garfield, N. J., was admitted to $500 bail for appearance in Stonington Town court Tuesday morning following his alleged evasion of responsibility in leaving the location of an auto accident. Novack Friday night drove his car at a rapid rate of speed through the streets of Stonington and Westerly to escape Byron Davis of 11 Washington street, Mystic, who was following, after his own auto had been driven into the ditch by a collision.

Beecham's Pills
THE NATION'S LAXATIVE

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1893 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breadth, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

W. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 85

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. A trial is sure to convince any household of the merits of this famous prescription.

CADILLAC LA SALLE

REVELATION WEEK

MAY 20th–27th

A Period of Practical Proof (for women in particular) of Handling Ease and Safety Features found in no other cars which alone almost compel the choice of Cadillac-La Salle

It is plainly apparent that one of the most valuable factors in motoring today, for whose easeful gear shifting no substitute can be found, is the exclusive Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission covered by basic patents.

Syncro-Mesh was introduced by Cadillac-La Salle with the restraint which has always characterized their public announcements. The excitement and enthusiasm it has created has been a result of the growth in public consciousness that here was something in transmissions which literally transformed that particular phase of motor car performance.

The emphasis that is being placed upon it in this Revelation Week (for women in particular) is the result of this public acclaim and the realization of Cadillac-La Salle that they had builded even better than they knew.

Revelation Week will endeavor to demonstrate to all women what thousands of women already know—that this is a new element of extraordinary ease in shifting and handling of which they cannot afford to deprive themselves.

Owners have also brought home to Cadillac the realization that the exclusive Cadillac-La Salle Duplex-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes covered by basic patents are a revolutionary contribution, both from the standpoint of easy mastery and greater safety; and public acclaim, therefore, makes these new brakes a second item of good news for Revelation Week.

Exactly the same thing has happened with regard to Cadillac-La Salle Crystal-Clear Non-Shatterable Security-Plate Glass—what amounts to an actual reproach from the public for our seeming failure to lay stress on a feature which owners consider absolutely vital. All Cadillac-La Salle windows, doors and windshields are equipped with this vastly important safety feature.

Cadillac-La Salle came to Non-Shattering Glass through conscientious conviction and that conviction has been given tremendous impetus by public approval.

A mere witnessing of the demonstrations which will be given during Revelation Week will convince everyone that here is an additional security feature of such paramount importance that it simply cannot be brushed aside.

CONSIDER THE DELIVERED PRICE AS WELL AS THE LIST PRICE WHEN COMPARING AUTOMOBILE VALUES

DANIELSON

PHILIAS JORDOIN DIES AFTER PROLONGED ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 19—After an illness of several months, Philias Jodoin, 57, died early this morning at his home on Broad street. Mr. Jodoin suffered a shock several months ago and this was followed by another. He had been confined to his home for weeks. Mr. Jodoin was for years engaged in business here, and had built up a very profitable business from the sale of tea, coffee and extracts for flavoring in the surrounding countryside, which he covered regularly in selling on the trade. A few years since he practically discontinued this business and had been retired excepting for managing his real-estate holdings here. Mr. Jodoin was the owner of two business and apartment blocks fronting Main street, just south of the Main street Railroad crossing. He made extensive repairs to these holdings and thoroughly remodeled and modernized them about two years ago, making them among the most attractive of business properties here.

Mr. Jodoin was born in Williamsville, for years past known as Goodyear, February 6, 1872, a son of Philias and Hermale Beausoliel Jodoin, and lived there during the early years of his life. His entire career had been spent in eastern Connecticut. Mr. Jodoin leaves his wife, a daughter, Miss Blanche, and the following brothers and sisters: Theophile Jodoin, North Attleboro, Louis and Joseph Jodoin of Attleboro, Miss Annie Jodoin of Pawtucket, Mrs. Maria Finnegan of Phenix, R. I., and Mrs. Adeline Shriner of New York.

Frederick L. Babcock of Boston, publisher of a textile journal and affectionately known as "the father of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association" has offered awards aggregating $45, in gold, to go to those appearing at the coming textile products show at the state armory here in costumes made of materials manufactured in mills represented by the association. Those who are familiar with the beautiful fabrics produced in various mills that are of the association sense the fact that the designer of some very handsome dresses is possible and that the winners of the awards will be attractively gowned. Incidentally, these dresses are expected to bring home to thousands of women who visit the textile show that it is possible, and helpful to manufacturing interests and to New England generally, to buy New England made products.

At the week end funeral services were held in New Bedford for Felix Tetreault, formerly a resident of Danielson. He was 63 years of age. Mr. Tetreault was a native of Canada, but came to this country as a young man. He leaves a son, Felix, Jr., a grandson, Maurice, four brothers, Joseph and Philias of Danielson and Isiah and Amadee of New Bedford. There are also two sisters, Mrs. Mary Vaudry and Mrs. Gaspard Peppin, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Azzelia Tetreault, of Danielson. Local relatives were at New Bedford to attend the services.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at A. F. Wood's funeral home on Mechanic street services were held for William J. Davis, who died at his home in South Killingly. Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church was the officiating clergyman. The bearers were Emory K. Davis, Walter R. Davis, Earl Davis and J. Elmer Keene. Burial was in the South Killingly cemetery.

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the A. F. Wood's funeral home services for Mrs. Lena Solomon Kohler, wife of Louis Kohler, were conducted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church, with relatives and numbers of friends in attendance. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were William J. Craig, Frank Winkleiman, Arndt Bretschneider, Augustus Graves, Frank Schroll nad Henry E. Anderson.

This year in the two score cemeteries within a few miles of Danielson graves of men who have served the country under arms will not be difficult to locate by those who seek them out to place flags and flowers upon them at Memorial time. Practically all of them now have markers provided by the state, these markers bearing the names of the deceased, and their service records. The work of locating these graves of the honored dead was largely carried out by Sidney R. Bard of Danielson and Brooklyn, working in harmony with a state agency interested in having such graves properly identified and marked. The new markers are to be found in about all of the cemeteries in town, and Killingly is said to have more cemeteries than any other town in Conecticut.

Darkness like that of early evening set in here early this afternoon, preceding a heavy downpour of rain. The storm dove hundreds to cover and broke up various outings that had taken people out into the country for the afternoon. No damage of special importance was reported from the storm.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding, at the Westfield Congregational church, June 6, of Miss Helen Keech, daughter of Mrs. Herbert C. Keech of Hutchins street, and Elbert Briggs of Moosup.

On Saturday, with Bernard Casey of the Danielson postoffice force as examiner, an examination to fill the place of clerk and carrier in the postal service was conducted. Two local persons took the examination, and of three others who tried to qualify one was from New Bedford, one from Providence and one from Pawtucket.

An evening meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange is to be held next Saturday with Highland grange at South Killingly. From 6 to 7 p. m. supper is to be served by Highland grange. The business session is scheduled for 7:30, to be followed by a period during which the lecturer's programme will be presented. S. McLean Buckingham, commissioner of agriculture, is to deliver an address. A vocal selection will be given by Gladys Benoit, member of Putnam grange, and there is to be a reading and a selection by the Highland grange orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Burton were visitors over the week end with Eric Gilbert, who is at Mt. Mondanock, in New Hampshire, for the summer season.

Miss Mary Taylor of Webster was a visitor with relatives here over the week end.

Walter W. Murphy, who has been manager there for the past two or three years, has purchased the Dayville hotel from Harry Evergates. The house has been closed for several weeks until rcently.

Ray Partington, tenor, who sings over WJAR, Providence, was a visitor here Saturday.

Leon Gauthier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyonell Gauthier of Hawkins street, underwent a surgical operation at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. The child's mother has been remaining with his much of the time for the past few days.

Prof. Arthur Rudman of the faculty of the Baypath institute at Springfield is to be the speaker at the commencement exercises of the snior class of Killingly high school next month.

On Memorial day while members of the American Legion, with other patriotic organizations are at Brooklyn for the services in that town, a squad will be detached to proceed to Wauregan, where a salute will be fired in memory of the honored dead and other tributes to them paid in formal manner.

Friday evening neat a typewriting contest between representatives of Killingly, Plainfield and Putnam high schools is to be held at Killingly high school. This is an annual event, which Plainfield high's representatives will enter this year with one win toward the permanent possession of the trophy offered last year.

Planes from the Putnam aerial circus, held over the week end, were objects of interest to Danielson people as they flew over this territory.

On Saturday Undertaker L. E. Kennedy removed six bodies that have been entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery in Dayville since the cold weather season and burials followed in the churchyard.

Manager Henry Johnson of the Orpheum theatré said that "talkies" are assured for Danielson, but it has not been dognitely determined just when the necessary equipment for them will be installed here.

Motor traffic poured through Danielson in a steady stream today on all of the trunk line highways, and the number of machines on the roads indicated just how difficult it is going to be to go riding on Sundays during the next few months, if one considers what a driver must contend with.

Dayville has plans well advanced for its annual observance of Memorial day, and the programme will be much the same as it has been in othre recent years.

Further progress has been made with the work of resurfacing the state highway on the Danielson-Brooklyn route, the work being underway from near Brooklyn Center for a distance of about two miles toward Danielson.

The Treble Clef Chorus and string ensemble that appeared in the Music Week Service at Westfield Congregational church Sunday evening, May 5, under the direction of Henry N. Flagg, is not to be confounded in any way with the Treble Clef Chorus and string ensemble advertised to appear at a forthcoming production of the Rotary club minstrel show here in Danielson, and also in Putnam.

PUTNAM

HUNDREDS GO ALOFT AT AIR MEET AT MANTUP

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 19—Sensational advertising drew hundreds to Mantup field on Friday and Saturday anticipating a hitherto unseen aggregation of airships that were to take part in a three day air circus, as was promised by omcials of a Hartford aircraft company earlier in the week. All day Friday and until a late hour in the afternoon on the second day, craning necks scanned the western horizon for the expected detachment of eight planes, but they did not arrive.

Two planes which came on Friday attempted to patch up the breech of disappointment among the vast crowds. Passenger carrying occupied the greater part of the programmes on Friday and Saturday. At intervals, when lulls in the business of taking passengers for a sky ride arose the intrepid flyers would hop into the ships and perform a few stunts which tended to thrill those who watched from below.

Lieut. Carl A. Dixon, 43rd division air corps pilot was present Saturday. The flyer on a number of occasions exhibited a bit of skillful manoeuvering above the city. He sent his ship into loops, silenced his engine several hundred feet from earth and made perfect landings, known as "dead stick" and participated in a race with the only other craft on the field.

Ted White, 18-year-old parachute jumper of national fame, appeared upon the field shortly before dusk Saturday, attired in flying togs and a silken sack securely affixed to his back, mounted one of the ships and went aloft, while remnants of the afternoon crowd stood by. At a stipulated altitude of 3000 feet the young airman was seen to hurl himself out of the cockpit into space. His rapid decent was suddenly halted when the giant silken umbrella unfurled. The captured air currents within the chute gently lowered the youth earthwards. The awe inspiring sight brought vast applause from the spell bound gathering as White alighted in to top of a tree about a 1000 feet distant from the spot where he took off a few minutes before. Saturday's leap was the 143rd successful jumps in the fast mounting career of the young birdman.

Sluggish, misty skies this morning greeted the fliers on the third day of the supposed air meet. At noon the two planes were seen hovering over the city. Mayor and Mrs. Charles A. Richard were intending to make their initial flight as the guests of the fliers.

On Saturday morning about 240 youngsters of the city were taken aloft and viewed Putnam from the air. The children's flights were made at reduced rates.

A broad stretch of grass covered acreage, three thousand feet in length and known as Mantup field, situated in the Gary district, has been rated as one of the best undeveloped airports in the state. The aviation commission of the state has paid a visit to Mantup and passed a favorable inspection. Landings may be easily made and the successful air maneuvers of the past week end may serve to arouse a wave of local interest in the development of Mantup field as an airport for Putnam.

SAFETY FILMS USED AT DAY KIMBALL HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 19.—Miss Nellie E. Bloxham, superintendent of the Day Kimball hospital, stated emphatically this afternoon that "safety films" are used exclusively in the x-ray laboratories of the hospital. When asked by a newspaperman this afternoon as to the type of films with which x-ray photographs are made in the Day Kimball, Miss Bloxham replied: "Only the safety films, and we have used them now for five years."

A tragedy, such as the one which occurred in Cleveland three days ago because of the improper care of x-ray film storage, is not likely to happen at the Day Kimball hospital in this city. All possible precautionary measures relative to the storage of films are taken, Miss Bloxham said. As the films are brought into the laboratories they are carefully checked, and within a short period after, if not used, the films are removed from the hospital to the quarantine house several hundred feet distant from the main institution and carefully stored in vaults.

Miss Bloxham said this afternoon that the Day Kimball hospital, under her supervision, adopted the safety or non-inflammable x-ray films as the standard for x-ray photographing, immediately after its appearance upon the market five years ago. All obsolete film then in possession of the institution was discarded and the new used in its place. The safety film used here slowly oxidizes but cannot explode.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Irons was held today at the home of her daughter in Providence. Mrs. Irons is a native and former resident of East Thompson. She died Friday in Providence at the age of 75 years. The body was brought to East Thompson where burial took place.

Lieut. Everett S. Davis of the United States army air corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Davis of the Gary district left his home post at Langley field, Virginia, last Wednesday with a squadron of airplanes to take part in the mimic war maneuvers with the red and blue armies in the "bombing of Columbus, Ohio." Several aviation enthusiasts, who did not go to Mantup field Saturday, sat comfortably beside their loudspeakers and enjoyed the account of the air spectacle as told by the radioman. Lieut. Davis is one of the older officers in the army air service. He is assigned to the attack squadron and most likely was flying one of the fleet of planes which won the "Battle of Columbus."

June will be a busy month for the town clerk and clergymen in Putnam since all indications point out that nearly fifty weddings will take place in the city during the marriage month. The bans of marriage were published for the first time this morning at all the masses at St. Mary's church for several couples and announcements of June weddings have been made in the Protestant church circles.

The new 2500 pound bell for St. Mary's church was rung for the first time this morning. The bell was hoisted into the remodeled spire during the past week and work on adjusting the tone qualities was partially completed so the first notes of the bell could peal forth today. The belfry of the church where the new bell rests, in line with the two older pealers, has not been completed. A copper lining is to be placed on the four uprights of the tower and on the floor, and a screening to prevent birds from nesting in the hidden nooks of the enclosure is to be evident when the work is completed.

A detailed report of the receipts obtained by the Connecticut board of education of the blind, during the week for the sightless, held in this city and in Danielson two weeks ago, will be prepared and published within a few days, Stetson K. Ryan, secretary of the board announced Saturday. The money derived from the sale of articles has been tabulated and directed to persons who made the salables. The report to be issued will name those who benefited from the purchases.

Rev. George J. Donahue, pastor of the Holy Trinity church in Pomfret and of the Sacred Heart church in West Thompson, delivered his farewell sermon in both churches of his pastorate this morning. Father Donahue sails from New York on the liner "La France" of the French line for Europe. During his stay there Father Donahue will visit Switzerland, Germany and France. He expects to be gone about 10 weeks.

The colors of the Eastland stables of Charles Van Brunt Cushman of Pomfret fared well in the Jacobs Hill hunt show held yesterday at Seekonk, R. I., near Providence. The foremost horseflesh in the east was represented at this notable gathering of society leaders. At the close of the events the Cushman mounts had clinched a number o fcoveted prizes. Mr. Cushman's "hunt team" which received the admiration of the throngs at the meeting of the Connecticut sheep breeders association last week, took fourth place in the hunt team classics. The Cushman horses have met success in nearly every meet or shows entered.

Two electrical storms, accompanied by the worst downpours of the season took place between three and four o'clock this afternoon. The rain pelting in large sized drops beat for nearly a half hour flooding streets and lazing gutters and sewer drains to capacity. There were no reports of any damage being caused by lightning at a late hour tonight.

The city highway commission has launched the work of repairing Furrows street, and have nearly completed the preliminary stages of repairing. A new road bed of gravel has been laid, preparatory to the application of coatings of oil. The oiling of this thoroughfare marks the end of a long struggle of property owners on the street to have the oil treatments applied. During the past two years of the present administration of city government several petitions have been made asking that this work be carried out.

The monthly shifting of officers to different beats became effective in the police department this morning. Officer Joseph Page, who performed duty in the north end during the past four weeks has relieved Officer Alpherie Sponcey of the uptown beat during the daytime. Officer Sponcey has reverted to the uptown beat nights supplanting Officer Benoni Durand who commenced night patrol duty in the north end Saturday evening. The routine duties of Sergt. George Liard as usual remain unchanged.

Louis Lucier of Hartford, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Lucier of School street.

A new industry, that of canning turtle, has been opened on Eleuthera island, in the Bahamas, where thousands of young turtles have been placed in ponds to be fattened for the market. Turtle soup and turtle meat will be shipped to the United States and Canada.

LEADERSHIP IN PROSPERITY

The peak of prosperity for all time for all the world is the conclusion to be drawn from the report on American prosperity which has been made by the committee on recent economic changes, the so-called Hoover committee, because it was organized while President Hoover was secretary of commerce, although it was created in 1921 by President Harding and recreated in 1928 by President Coolidge.

The report confirms other less complete surveys in the view that in America today there is a greater degree of prosperity, more widely distributed, than in any other country at any time. It classes the period from 1922 to 1929 as unexampled. In this period there has been a growing spread between wages and the cost of living, leaving an increasing margin of excess for saving and for buying commodities which a few years ago were classed as luxuries. The increasing buying power of the people is attributed to various changes, especially the leisure made possible by shorter working hours, but there is less definiteness about the source of the means for buying. Increase in the per capita output of factories has, of course, created most of the means. Lower costs and higher wages have put so many "optional purchases" in the necessity class that there appears to be no limit to the volume of domestic trade. "We seem to have touched only the fringe of our potentialities as a home market," is the conclusion of this section of the report, which goes on to show how the people have gone into the ownership of business enterprises in the twelve years since the war, for in that time the number of Americans owning stock in business concerns has increased from two to seventeen million.

Popular belief will be in accord with the committee's conclusion that this prosperity could be increased by more careful conservation of natural resources, less greed on the part of a few who force prices above a fair level and less transfer of money from production to speculation. In spite of the rosy outlook, there never was more need for sound leadership in business and government. Now that the country has experienced some of the advantages of widespread prosperity, its main duty is to support leaders who helped to bring this about and who are able to continue it.

LESSENING PASSPORT NUISANCE

That agreement between the United States and France to cut the cost of passports from ten to two dollars is an act of international comity. It strikes at a nuisance that the ever-increasing army of globe-trotters has found costly and annoying. The French treasury surrenders an estimated annual revenue of about two million dollars but the cut in American treasury receipts from this source will be only about one hundred thousand dollars. In what nations call comity and in direct financial return, especially to the French tourist industry, the slash in passport costs is destined to be worth many times its actual extent in money.

For five years the United Statse has been trying to reduce the high cost of travel by bringing about a reduction in thep rice of passports. Not every country is willing to concede them, for it means a considerable loss of revenue. Another kind of hindrance was raised by the British government through refusal to cut its visa tax because the United States declines to exempt British emigrants from passport fees. Denmark, Belgium Esthonia, Finland, Germany, Italy and Sweden have abolished visa charges.

Until 1914 only Russia and Turkey required passports from foreigners. In war time the usefulness of such papers is apparent, but they could well be done away with in times of peace. However, if that has not been accomplished yet, American tourist travel will at least get satisfaction over the reduction agreement which hase been reached between the United States and France. It will make a worthwhile difference in the family budget on a European trip.

AN EXCEPTION BY CANADA

The suggestion from the United States that the government of Canada become a party to aiding the enforcement of the prohibition law receives a cold shoulder from the Canadian authorities. It is one thing for the federal government to expect from the states concurrent legislation for the enforcement of prohibition. It is quite another thing to ask it from a neighbor nation, whose people do not generally indorse or approve the prohibition theory and have said so by popular vote. The recent incident of the sinking of the I'm Alone, which our neighbors think went considerably beyond the terms of the liquor ship treaties of 1924, does not encourage the Canadians to make new treaties for cooperation in the control of rum running.

The American problem and protest are concerned with the fact that exports of Canadian liquor by Canadian ships have increased by fifty per cent in two years to the large total of more than $15,000,000 in 1928. This is known to be only a minimum figure for the flood that finds a way across the border. The United States government has suggested that Canada do something about it. The Canadian government, with equal politeness, points out that the most that can be expected is to submit proposals for enforcement legislation with little likelihood of approval by the Canadian people. Canada has a method different from ours in its campaign for temperance and it is a good deal to expect it to go aside from its own policy to help solve another nation's problems. If rum-running cannot be controlled from this side of the border, it is hard to see where there is much hope for its control on the other side by a people who have adopted their own internal policy and will not feel called upon to accept responsibility for the workings of our policy with which, as a whole, they are not in accord.

UNIVERSAL DRAFT

So far the sentiment discoverable in congress indicates that any bill providing for universal draft of men for military service, if the United States were to have another war, would have to contain a provision for drafting "capital" and the remainder of the male population for work at home. The subject has been brought before the senate recently by the introduction of a bill which seeks to write into the permanent statutes a draft law similar to that which was put through at the time of the World war. The purpose is apparently to prepare for war in time of peace.

The whole citizenry owes the country military service in time of emergency and the fairest method of recruiting military forces is the universal draft. But there are other kinds of necessary service to be rendered. To put millions of men under arms at a stipend which is no adequate compensation for their services and at the same time allow the stay-at-homes to obtain wages vastly in excess of peace-time pay, is manifestly an unfair proposition. Labor and capital both enter the profiteering class under conditions that have existed and the making of millionaires has been at the expense of the multitude. Making money out of the blood and sufferings of nations is as old as war itself. The stay-at-home profiteers have been found in every ccuntry that has been at war.

The American Legion has gone on record in this matter forcibly and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania who has introduced such a bill as has been referred to is in full accord with the American Legion's position that there shall be no profiteering in case of another war in which the United States should be involved. The next draft bill—if there be one—to be put through congress will provide not merely for conscripting men in time of war, but for conscripting material resources, such as labor and capital. When such a measure is taken up for consideration, congress should have plenty of time to deal with it, for there will doubtless be an alignment of strong forces against it.

CRIME AND THE RADIO

Both Chicago and Detroit are using the radio as an emergency device to apprehend criminals and police officials are inclined to the belief that it will prove effective. Observing neighbors of the Illinois city will be inclined to remark that if any city needed to use the radio for that purpose, Chicago is the place.

The method is for cruising police squads to have receiving sets with which they pick the messages and warnings broadcast from police headquarters. Emergency calls have sometimes enabled the police to meet robbers even as they were coming out of the place they have robbed, something of a new experience for the surprised gangsters. On a recent Sunday evening the pogramme at WGN, which is the station Chicago uses, was interrupted five times within about thirty minutes by emergency police calls, which shows what a busy night may be in Chicago for the police and for gangland members. The plan resulted in important arrests in both Chicago and Detroit. On one occasion a message said a man was then robbing a dwelling house and the squad receiving the message was just around the corner, which made capture easy. The experiment may grow into the regular use of the radio, not only for city police departments, but for state police, until the gangland workers doublecross the process by carrying receiving sets while at work.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Burned food is the sign of a careless cook.

Custard pies should be absolutely cold before slicing.

Don't try to fix electrical connections unless you know what you are doing.

Always be certain the hands are dry before touching electrical apparatus.

Instead of pouring the fudge or seafoam candy into a greased tin, pour it on waxed paper.

The two essentials in cooking tough meat are moisture and prolonged cooking at a gentle heat.

If the buttonhook has been mislaid, shoes may be easily buttoned with a closed safety pin.

A wire basket is handy for scalding several tomatoes at once. Scalded tomatoes peel easily.

To prevent the bristles of a toothbrush coming out, soak the brush when new in cold water for 24 hours before using it.

Give house plants a little liquid plant food during the winter. Soil grows poor in the house and needs to be enriched.

Always soak salt mackerel in cold water over night before using.

Carefully remove crusts before crumbing bread for puddings or escalloped dishes.

A roll of brown paper is very useful in the kitchen for draining foods fried in deep fat.

Enameled kitchenware will not stand intense heat. Once it chips off, it must be thrown away, because small articles will continue to separate and become mixed with the food.

The old problem of candles that will fall out of their holders has been solved by the invention of small rubber rings now on the market. These are slipped over the end of the candle, to anchor it fast.

Broiled meat should be turned once soon after it is placed on the broiler, and then left to cook. The turning sears both sides so that juices are retained.

DISHWASHING

Put a little boiling water and a teaspoon of ammonia int the greasy pan before you begin the dishwashing and you will havae no difficulty in readily washing the pan.

WASHING WINDOWS

Add a litle vinegar to cold water for washing windows and uyse newspaper instead of coith, both for washing and wiping, so the windows will glisten and not hafe a streak.

LEATHER-COVERED FURNITURE

Leather-covered furniture can be saved from cracking if polished regularly with a paste made of one part vinegar and two parts linseed oil, bottled and shaken until thick.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Lemon juice keeps the hands free from stains.

The water drinking habit means a clear complexion.

Speak in low tones, but clearly, when in a sickroom. Never whisper to someone in the room, as the patient will invariably imagine you are talking about him and his condition.

You may remove the warts from your hands with the following lotion: One dram of salicylic acid, one ounce of flexible collodion. Mix well. Apply with a tiny brush for four nights. Then soak in hot water. Remove as much of the horn covering as possible. Repeat the treatment until the warts have disappeared.

FIRST TEETH IMPORTANT

Many parents believe that because children's temporary teeth are soon to come out it is not necessary to keep them in good repair. Decay of the temporary teeth is of the utmost importance, because if these teeth are lost prematurely they fail to hold the spaces needed for the permanent teeth. Dr. F. H. Richardson explains in an article on the teeth of the runabout child in Hygeia.

Especially is this true of the first permanent or six-year molars. If spaces for these important teeth are not held or if after they come in they are allowed to decay and go untreated, under the impression that they are temparary rather than permanent teeth, the whole "bite" of the child's mouth is deranged. The painful results that ensue from this necessitate the expensive and long-drawn-out efforts of the orthodontist if there is not to be permanent deformity of the face, the physician warns.

SLEEVE BOARDS

With more elaborate styles coming in again, and especially with the emphasis there now is upon intricate sleeves, one should either bring out the old-shaped sleeve board from its hiding place or purchase a new one. They are inexpensive and worth their price.

RUGS

Rugs may be of such color or pattern that they do not show the dirt, but the dirt is there, and if not frequently and thoroughly cleaned this settles in the fibers and not only becomes harder to remove but is a wear on the rug.

GAS OVEN

When broiling steak in a gas oven, frequently the fat will catch fire. To prevent this, cover the bottom of the broiling pan with water. This will catch the fat from the steak and prevent its catching fire.

PINE CUSHION

One housewife has a small cushion of pine needles and if she suspects the house smells of cooking she places the pine cushion on a heated radiator in the living room. Very soon a faint woodsy fragrance replaces the smell of cooking.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The plaid frock that is knitted is very new and very chic and will make a welcome addition to any wardrobe.

A soft taffeta printed frock, fine blue figures on black, has a pleated apron overskirt across the back that ties in front with a pert bow.

A deep lavender kasha suit for spring has its coat lined with lavender and a lavender crepe blouse to complete it.

The first of the early spring hats showed a preference for either bakou or Paris meme straw used in conjunction with fine felts or fabrics.

A delightful coat for southern wear is of white kasha, with a white caracul collar. Three small red gardenias give an accent to the all-white.

A new bridal gown is of flesh satin with its cream Alencon lace veil lined with flesh chiffon. Slippers are of flesh satin and gloves of flesh kid.

The apron follows where the frock leads, so far as style goes. Spring kitchen aprons can be made very swanky by introducing little gussets of color in the sides.

Delightful bags are made of silk in a small pattern. They have slide-fastenings and are finished with a tassel of pearls. Scarfs of the same silk accompany the bags.

Very effective are slippers of silver kid, with tiny round cut-outs that reveal green kid dots, sprinkled all over the surface. Bags of the same accompany the shoes.

Gulmpes are in again! The woman clever with her needle can add much to her street frocks and suit blouses by fashioning little hand-made dainties to dress up her neck.

The most exquisite organdies this season have small prim looking bouquets of flowers embroidered over the surface. They would make the most ravishing frocks for small girls.

An unusual bathing suit, made with a circular flare, is a combination of yellow and orange wool. A circular cape is worn with the suit and a round "gob's" cap tops off a very smart ensemble.

ALPACA SUIT

Navy blue silk alpaca fashions a Gerlaur suit that is stunning. The skirt seems straight line but really has five gores hanging as loose panels over a tight drop skirt with kick pleats in each side. The coat slopes from hipline in the back to a short Eton in front. All edges are bound in matching satin showing the season's tendency to high-light style.

FOR THE BRIDESMAID

A delightful bridesmaid frock is made of light green chiffon, and is trimmed at the belt and shoulder with two large bunches of violets. Violet tulle is thrown around the shoulders and the same color is repeated in the wide hat of horsehair.

COLARS 'N' CUFFS

Smart daytime frocks increase their use of collars and cuffs of white georgette, organdie or batiste. Dressy afternoon gowns often have a frill of creamy lace ending in a flat jabot. Even strictly tailored suits are making use of soft lace touches at collar and cuff on their chic satin blouse.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

When putting on ruffles, lace or anything else you want eased onto a dress, always hold the thing you want eased towards you. Otherwise it will pucker.

If the silk stocking is perfect except for a darn in the heel above the shoe put a little tuck in the stocking's heel under the foot and the darn will come below the shoe line.

Think of the time saved if instead of having to hunt up cord and scissors separately one owned a small blue leather case containing a ball of cord with a pocket on the side for the scissors!

GASOLINE

Whenever you use gasoline for cleansing purposes, pour the residue down the kitchen sink, followed by boiling water. This process will cut all grease deposits that may have gathered and give a thorough cleaning to the pipes.

FILLED DOORWAY

In rebuilding an old house, a charming bookcase was made right in the doorway in the living room by boarding it up on the back and putting the shelves across. In the next room the boarded door was papered like the room and unnoticeable.

HANGING MAT

Hang the bathroom mat high if you would keep the floor tidy. A good way to encourage the family in this habit is to crochet two rings the mat's color, attach rings to the corners of the mat and screw two hooks into the back of the bathroom door to hang it on.

BLOOMER TAPE

If you put a little loop of tape at the middle front of the waistbands of children's bloomers, it gives you something to hang them up by and also shows little ones at a glance which is the front and which back.

HEAVY HANGINGS

Heavy hangings should never be stored away without being thoroughly cleaned, as an accumulation of dust and dirt will wear out the material and encourage the breeding of the destructive moth.

APPLE RINGS

If your family is tired of apple sauce and baked apples, try apple rings. Core apples and cut each apple crosswise in inch rings. Fill the center with nuts, raisins and candied fruit, sprinkle with cinnamon and a dash of nutmeg, cover with water and bake slowly.

ANT PREVENTION

Adding a little ammonia to the water in which you wash your pantry shelves is an aid to keeping ants away.

CONCERNING WOMEN

School girls from 12 to 18 years of age are engaged in building new roads in Kweichow one of the most isolated provinces in China.

Madame Talagrande, known as the oldest typist in France, has worked at the palace of justice in Paris continuously for the past 50 years.

Lady Astor, the first woman to enter the British house of commons is planning her fifth campaign for reelection to Parliament next summer.

Mme. Kamaneva of Rostov, Russia, is the first woman militia chief in the northern Caucasus. Only recently appointed, she is well known in Soviet military circles.

Lady Tyrrell, wife of the British ambassador to France, has completed the writing of a history of the world, beginning with the Azoic age and ending with the death of Alexander the Great. She has written in the form of historical notes, primarily for students.

WHEN COOKING LIVER

Before cooking liver pour boiling water over it and allow it to stand for five minutes. A pinch of soda may be added.

WHEN COOKING CHICKEN

Rub a chicken well inside with a lemon cut in halves before putting it on to cook. This will make the meat white, juicy and tender.

RECIPES

Strawberry Buns: Make a biscuit dough, adding two tablespoons of sugar to the dry ingredients. Roll out to a quarter of an inch in thickness and cut the dough into three-inch squares. Place a spoon of sugared berries on each square, bring the corners together and place the "buns" on a well-buttered pan. Melt one tablespoon of butter and one tablespoon of sugar and brush the buns with this mixture. Bake in a hot oven and serve with a foamy sauce to which some strawberry juice has been added.

Strawberry Crusts: Cut stale bread into small squares, place a few berries on each, sprinkle with sugar as which cinnamon has been added as for cinnamon toast, and lo with butter. Put the squares into a hot oven until the bread is crisped. These are nice for breakfast or to serve at lunch time, and they require but little time and effort to prepare.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 19 — When Senator George Norris has no legislative windmills of other folks' erection to tilt at, he promptly sets about putting up some of his own.

He seems to enjoy political battle for the sake of the battle itself. If he should make good his threat to retire to private pursuits when his present term ends in 1931, American public life would lose a very colorful figure and a mighty able legislative fighting man.

Not that it is by any means certain he will retire. He's such a hale and hearty 68 this year that no reason of health seems to be pressing him to take his ease.

Nor does the fact that he stands frequently almost alone in congress on his highly liberal political views cause him disquiet.

He has been by way of being a political lone wolf too many years for that to concern him and the mere fact that any project he espouses may be voted down, however overwhelmingly, only stimulates his activity in its behalf.

May Not Quit

Norris is the only political survivor of the six senators who voted against the war resolution in 1917. That action did not trouble his political career in the least.

Gossip from Nebraska has it now that steps to discipline him for having supported Smith against Hoover are in prospect.

The only visible effect such reports have on Norris is to make him doubtful about carrying his desire for retirement into execution until he has given his opponents a chance to beat him at the polls, if they can.

He has rather a sporty feeling about it, by all accounts. He last was elected to the senate much against his inclination to get out of public life and virtually without raising a hand in the campaign.

Probably there is nothing his political enemies can do to make his continuance in public life more probable than to shout warnings of disciplinary action against him.

Radical Plan

But to get back to the Norris liking for windmills to tilt at, the senator has been considering a crusade to lift the postoffice out of politics.

He contemplates a measure to give the postmaster general a 10-year term of office and to endow him with power to appoint all postmasters without the advice and consent of the senate.

It is a highly radical plan and Norris cheerfully admits that chances of its enactment in his lifetime are just about nil. What of that? He believes it would make for better government and that is enough warrant, in his eyes, for urging it.

For immediate purposes, Senator Norris' motion appears ocmplicated.

Both Senators Watson and Couzens have ideas about rearranging the federal mail, telegraph, telephone and radio business on the independent commission plan, while Postmaster General Brown harbors a thought of turning his department into a ministry of communications.

YOUR HEALTH

How Do You Select Your Family Physician?

By Harold Bailey, M. D., Springfield, Missouri.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute).

Magazines of the day are replete with articles advising the public how best to invest their money. All very good. Even more pertinent is the security of health and life. You understand the purchase of stocks and bonds, but do you know how to buy yourself a doctor?

You have Dr. Jones because he belongs to your church. Dr. Smith is an examiner for your lodge. Dr. Brown is a good patron of your bank. Wonderful security! How much money would you lend him on the strength of it?

Yet you freely entrust to his custody the health and lives of yourself and family. "What fools we mortals be."

Do you know aught of his eduaction? Where he graduated? What post-graduate work he has taken? Where he practiced before entering your community? Why he left? No, you don't know any of these things. You assume that he passed the state board of medical examiners and has a license to practice medicine in your state. All right as far as it goes.

How, then, shall we select a family physician?

Choose first a man who is honorable, honest and conscientious. He will afford you greater protection than the law. Secondly, one of good habits. Thirdly, one of sound judgment. This is a wonderful asset to a physician.

Beware of the doctor who is not a member of his county medical society. It is true that many poor ones belong, but few good ones do not. Select, if possible, a man who is on the staff of a recognized hospital. The directors of a hospital are in a better position than you to judge of his qualifications. Regard with suspicions a doctor who objects to meeting others in consultation. His ignorance is probably worthy of concealment.

Consider twice the doctor who demands payment in advance. True, "the laborer is worthy of his hire," but a dollar is dearly earned that costs us the respect of others.

Everything considered, doctors are not very different from other commodities. The cheapest is not always the best buy; and those who charge most sometimes sell inflated values.

Would that we might recall the old type of family physician, he who radiates sympathy and kindness. Some doctors are so cold-blooded that they have to carry alcohol in their radiators to keep from freezing. We need more of the spirit of humanity and less of the spiritus frumenti.

With the best information available, the choice of a physician may, for many, prove something of a lottery; but if fortune does not favor you in the first draw, you can always call for a new deal.

Then go to him, on every birthday, for a health inventory. Ask him to help you keep well.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Strong Men

Mr Editor: In my last letter I spoke about Eastern Voluntown news and my friend Dad Shaw wrote about the strength of the Bitzood brothers and Gus Lambert and about the hospitality shown. I know Mrs. Bitgood through her correspondence as I read between the lines her strength is in God. I knew Gus Lambert twenty-five years ago. He is a strong man physically and that is all I know about him. He is alive today. In one of Dad Shaw's letters he told of a trip and spoke about the empty small church in the country. Rev. C. Storek, pastor of the First Lutheran church, Franklin street, answered by calling Dad Shaw your venerable correspondent. By the way Dad is a strong man: also Rev. Storek gave to my mind the correct answer. He says in part: "Is the church losing her influence, are people turning away in disappointment?" And he says "No, the church has a stronger hold on the people than formerly and the reason for the empty small churches is the automobile that is swift and dependable, that takes the people to the stronger city churches."

Mr. Storek says he is a newcomer. When I saw his furniture as he was moving in to his new home I thought what kind of a man he was to come from such a long distance. I think he came from Philadelphia. I have never spoken to him although I have seen him often as I pass his church and read on the wayside pulpit the good Bible thoughts and the topics that he preaches about, sometimes in German and some times in English. How liberal to preach in both languages. I have seen a difference in the church since he came. The thought comes to me what a strong man for God. At the north of the German church was an unsightly vacant lot. There is to be a garage there now. At first I said "what a shame" but as I see it nearing completion I think differently. Perhaps God placed it there for a purpose for it will improve the looks of the street and there will be a great many as they go in and out that will read the topics in the wayside pulpit and as they see the people going in the church with their Bibles in their hands, for I have seen them often, they will know that church stands on the word of God. I was going to attend the German church this morning for the first time but I went to the church that I belong to. The minister preached on Youth and Pentecost. His wife had charge of a young peoples chorus. There were more than fifty from ten years of age up to fifteen or sixteen. A young lady played the piano and two young men the violins as the chorus marched on the platform and took their places. What control the minister's wife had over them. The music and singing were perfect, all under the control of one woman. I have known the minister and his wife for eight years. All some could see was the children and the sound of music and song but I know that back of it all was the influence of a strong woman to lead the children for good and a love of God. I remember when I was young just such times. Instead of fifty perhaps there were ten or twelve. Instead of a beautiful church at the foot of a steep hill there was a hotel and saloon. At the top was a hall where in the old days they used to have walking matches. I wonder if Dad ever saw one. Inside they used to walk for days. They used to have dances and small shows and other things. At one time it was a private school but on Sunday the minister would preach and have Sunday school. My clothes were not like the children have today. They were made over from my father's, perhaps the reason was the saloon at the bottom of the hill but I was always happy when I was at the entertainments at Christmas and the children today will remember the influence of their teacher, the minister's wife.

DIED IN MACHINE WHILE DRIVING THROUGH WATER STREET

Henry Fredette, 44, of No. 42 Mercer street, New London, died at the wheel of his automobile as he was driving through Water street about 7 o'clock Sunday evening. Mr. Fredette had driven to this city to take his wife, who is a patient at Uncas-on-Thames on a visit to her mother. As he and his wife were driving through Water street, his head suddenly shot backward and a moment later the machine had collided with a machine owned by Cornelius T. Crowley and parked in front of the Auditorium hotel.

Officer Henry Fenton immediately went to the scene of the crash and opening the car door noticed Mr. Fredette slumped in his seat. A volunteer driver, took the wheel of Mr. Fredett's car and hurriedly drove to the W. W. Backus hospital. The man was dead when the machine arrived at the hospital.

According to Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, death was instantaneous and was caused by heart failure. After the sudden death of her husband, Mrs. Fredette was taken to the home of her brother, Alfred Dubaime, on 10th street.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON AT UNITED CONG. CHURCH

The 16 members of the 1929 graduating class of the William W. Backus hospital training school for nurses attended an impressive service at the United Congregational church Sunday evening in connection with the graduation exercises, which are to be held this (Monday) evening at the Samuel Huntington school, Norwich Town. The baccalaureate sermon to the class was rendered by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor.

Besides the class members, all of the nurses at the hospital, with the exception of those on night duty, and representatives of the alumnae were present. At the conclusion of the organ prelude Maestoso and Adagio (Second Sonata), Merkel, played by the organist, Prof. J. Lawrence Erb of Connecticut college for women, the nurses making a splendid appearance in their uniforms, marched into the church and took places in a reserved section at the front.

They remained standing until after the processional hymn, Hope, was sung, which was followed by the prayer of invocation by Rev. Mr. Abbott and the anthem, Jubilate Deo, A-flat, (Foote), by the church choir. After the scripture reading there was the organ meditation, the prayer of supplication and the hymn, The Eternal God.

In his baccalaureate sermon to the class Rev. Mr. Abbott, said in part: "It is not without significance that the Parable of the Two Builders comes at the end of what we have called The Sermon on the Mount. As if it were a sort of Baccalaurente at the close of a period of training, and just at the beginning of Christian activity by the student-disciples of Jesus Christ. These disciples had had the advantages of their race's training in religion and in the practical labor out of which their own Palestinian civilization had come; and also they had sat at the feet of Christ Himself as he had taught them intimately. And the end of one epoch served Him as the moment to point the necessity of sensibleness and the folly of stupidity, as they were to make explorations on their own account. The foolish and stupid man he who disregarded the material things out of which any life is to be built; as if there were such a divorce between spiritual and secular forces that the winning of the former could be, only when one disregarded the latter; as if a house could be built without taking wind and rain and storm and structure into account. The wisely sensible man is he who puts the material at hand to great uses; that greatness and genius and spirituality have their residence only where the materials of life exist; that unless these latter things are properly regarded and used, no excellence of life is possible. God never created man out of material that did not exist in the universe; He created man out of the stuff that was already here. Christ did not create discipleship out of anything else than human material; that was the only material He had for such creation. Supreme excellence in building anything depends on the use to which the building-material is put.

At the close of the sermon, the nurses sang the school hymn, The Grand March from Aida (Verdi) was played by the organist and benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Abbott.

The junior president, Dorothy Prentice, presided. The meeting opened with the usual exercises followed by reports of officers and committees. Notice was given of the omission of the memorial exercises at Norwich Town cemetery. Excellent reports of the national convention of the C. A. R. in Washington last month were given by the delegates, Beatrice Eggleton and Beatrice Babcock. A picture of the tomb of the unknown Revolutionary soldier, with the C. A. R. in the foreground was shown.

Election of officers for the ensuing year closed the business part of the meeting. The program for the afternoon was arranged especially for the younger members of the society. Mrs. Roy T. D. Judd read the true story of Mary and the Little Lamb and showed pictures of Mary, the lamb, the red schoolhouse to which the lamb followed her one day and pictures of Mary in later life. This schoolhouse has been purchased by Henry Ford for his collection. Barbara Elliott recited the poem of Mary's Little Lamb, Nedda Burdsall, in the costume of a little girl of long ago, sang Mary Had A Little Lamb and, greatly to the amusement of all, she had a real live lamb by her side. The puppet show proved highly entertaining and these were Felix the cat, Alice and the rabbit, the pirate, Little Bo-Peep with one of her sheep, little Red Riding Hood and the wolf, Popsy and the couple illustrating Soldier, Soldier, Will You Marry Me, and all dancing to the music of the radio.

Refreshments of grape juice, sandwiches and cake were served. Mrs. Elijah E. Rogers, senior president, poured. A rising vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Burdsall and her daughters, Ruth and Nedda, for their delightful and unusual entertainment. The hostesses assisting Mrs. Burdsall were Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell, Mrs. Lester Greeman and Mrs. Charles Standish.

The June meeting of the society will be the usual picnic at Gardner lake as guests of Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., and her daughters, Marion and Catherine.

ASKED CONGREGATION TO READ DAY'S EPISTLE

Preaching to a congregation which filled the auditory of St. Patrick's church at the 7:30 low mass Sunday, the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, especially requested the people during the day to read and ponder the epistle for the Sunday, which was Acts 2.1-11. The day was Pentecost, or Whitsunday, so called in ancient times from the white robes of those who by custom were baptized on the eve. This epistle narrates the descent of the Holy Ghost on the Apostles. Monsignor May had read the day's gospel, its lesson that those who truly love God will keep His word.—John 14, 23-31.

His text was the words of Christ, "The Holy Ghost will teach you all truths. "The account in the epistle he called one of the most extraordinary, most miraculous events in connection with the Saviour's earthly career. The change in the souls of those upon whom the Holy Ghost had come meant for them an infusion of spiritual courage and strength. Before that they were timid, denied Christ's divinity, shrunk away from the crowd; now they were emboldened to go forth and preach and teach the doctrines of their Master, even to die in upholding them. The coming of the Holy Spirit had given them true knowledge—"I will teach you all things." These untutored, unlettered men spoke boldly to the crowd representing all nations, so that each heard in his own tongue their proclamation of the wonderful works of God.

The same knowledge comes to us on Pentecost; we are made strong spiritually. While it may not be our mission to go forth to teach and preach, yet we will learn all things necessary to save our immortal soul. The Apostles were not made astronomers, nor great engineers, nor chemists, nor learned men in other branches; but they learned well the lessons Christ taught them, to make known the words Christ had spoken to them.

To all of us temptations come, all are prone to evil. Our only safeguard is the grace of the Holy Spirit. We received the seven-fold gift of the Holy Ghost in confirmation; do we co-operate with this gift? Christ died to save men—but to earn salvation men must co-operate with Christ. Only in this manner can they gain strength and enlightenment to save their immortal souls.

Backus Hospital Need

There is urgent and immediate need for old linen and for worn cotton cloth at the Backus hospital. Worn table cloths, napkins, towels—all old linen is wanted at the hospital; but, as well, old soft cotton—such as bed sheets and pillow slips or nightgowns or men's shirts or any pieces of old clean white cloth—is of real value to the hospital. This is house cleaning time and every housekeeper is urged to sort out all her pieces of cloth, of any size, for which she has no need in the home, and telephone the chairman of the "linen committee" of the auxiliary, Mrs. Charles A. Saxton (2043-5) who will gladly call for it. The need is pressing as the shelves are bare and must be restocked. This cloth is of untold help to the hospital. The pieces are sterilized and used in many ways. Small cloths make eye and mouth wipes, dozens of which may be used for one patient during one day, while larger ones make dressings and bandages or are used for packaging dressings to be sterilized. This is one practical way in which the hospital can be served by the community and the money saved be used in other ways. Norwich women have always responded instantly and generously to this appeal in the past and need only to realize the pressing need to relieve it.

"Hospital News" Distributed

Copies of the "Hospital News," an eight page pamphlet published by the Backus hospital, have been distributed by mail to every member of the Women's auxiliary and are to be obtained at the Otis library and other places in the city. It presents valuable information of the work done at the hospital and of the school for nurses. Mention is made of the gift of $10,000 by Gilbert Lamb to establish a free bed for the people of Franklin and the picture of a smallpox patient on the back page is a strong argument for the necessity of vaccination. Many items of interest in the pamphlet show generally what a service hospitals render to a community, both in curative and preventive work.

Big Trout From Voluntown

Steve Duffy of Voluntown set a high mark for the anglers to equal or beat when he brought in a trout weighing 2 pounds, 12 ounces, on Saturday. The big trout was displayed in the Hanover-Curland window, as a contestant in their big fish contest.

362 Vaccinated Saturday

At the vaccination clinic at the court house Saturday 362 persons were vaccinated by Dr. Paul F. Gadie. To date 3,254 persons have been vaccinated at the clinic, which is held at the town hall, daily from 11 a. m. until 12 noon and from 4 p. m. until 5.30 p. m.

THADDEUS LEAHY DIED AT HOSPITAL SUNDAY

Thaddeus Leahy, cashier at the water department office, died Sunday morning at the W. W. Backus hospital, as the result of a shock suffered Friday morning at his home, No. 59 Colt street. Mr. Leahy, on the morning he was stricken, was preparing to leave his home for his duties at the water department office. He collapsed in the bathroom and was taken to the hospital, in an unconscious condition. He failed to rally, death claiming him Sunday morning.

Mr. Leahy was born in Ireland and was the son of Mrs. Margaret Moriarty Leahy and the late Michael Leahy. He came to this country when a young man and located in Norwich. Mr. Leahy made his home with his aunt, Miss Ellen Leahy on Colt street.

For seven years he held the office of cashier at the water department faithfully and efficiently. Mr. Leahy was a member of White Cross council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, Rev. Daniel Mullen assembly, Fourth Degree, K. of C., the Holy Name society and of St. Patrick's parish.

For 25 years Mr. Leahy was an usher and a collector at St. Patrick's church. He was prominently identified with the democratic party and widely known throughout the city and town.

Surviving Mr. Leahy are his mother, in Ireland, and his aunt, Miss Ellen Leahy, with whom he resided. Mr. Leahy had many warm friends who were deeply grieved to learn of his unexpected death. The sympathy of all is extended the surviving members of the family.

PULLED BELL ALARM FOR FREIGHT CAR FIRE

A bell alarm, the private box No. 234, at the Brainard and Armstrong plant, was pulled in by Demetrios Yatroussis about 12.25 o'clock Sunday afternoon, for a fire on a freight car standing near the silk mill on South Golden street. Strips of paper attached to the sides of the car door, for protection against the elements were burned off without causing any damage. The blaze was out on arrival of the firemen. It is said to have been started by boys playing with matches.

In the car was a consignment of lumber for the Shetucket coal company. In ringing in the alarm Mr. Yatroussis, instead of pulling down the lever as far as it would go and releasing it, held onto it, causing the number 434 to be registered on the indicator in the central fire station. Later the correct strokes registered. Acting Deputy Chief Brennan said Sunday evening that all that was necessary in ringing in an alarm was to break the glass, pull down the lever to the limit and let it go.

MAN SMASHED WINDOW WHILE RESISTING ARREST

Clarence Waite of this city sustained four painful lacerations to the left leg early Sunday evening, when his foot went through a plate glass window in Hertz's meat market on West Main street. He was arrested by Officer Michael Pouich for intoxication and immediately showed fight, in the course of which he kicked in the window and was cut. Officer Eugene Calkins assisted in the arrest. After subduing Waite the officers took him to police headquarters, where charges of intoxication and resisting and officer were placed against him. His injuries were attended by Dr. Clarence Thompson.

Morgan Homestead Destroyed

Fire of unknown nature destroyed the old Morgan homestead, owned by Tony Mitnick and located at Poquetanuck, about 8 o'clock Friday evening. The loss is estimated at several thousand dollars, partially covered by insurance. Some of the furniture in the house was saved as well as several outbuildings, including a barn and sheds, by a bucket brigade and the fire department from the Norwich State hospital.

ACADEMY PLAYS BRILLIANT BALL BEHIND WEISGRABER TO BEAT BULKELEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19—Norwich Free Academy's undefeated Wildcat team ran its string of victories to 12 Saturday afternoon at Mercer field by shading Bulkeley high, its ancient rival, 5 to 2.

By winning N. F. A. kept its league slate clean with six wins. Butsy Weisgraber, Academy ace, was not in his best form but brilliant support, especially by Buck LaCroix and Red Fagan, outfielders and Hal Cummings, third baseman, enabled him to pull through with a six-hit game. Weisgraber, visibly tired from pitching against Chapman Tech last Wednesday and in most of the games for the last few weeks, fanned seven most of these coming in the pinches. He walked two and hit one. John Petrosky, after a bad first inning, twirled fine ball for the Whalers and struck out nine although touched for ten hits.

N. F. A. Opens Scoring

The Academy got the jump with three runs in the first inning, scoring with but one hit, which was mixed with two errors, three passes, a stolen base and a sacrifice. They added another in the third on two hits, a single and a triple and ended with one in the ninth on a pass, infield out and a hit.

Bulkeley had a big inning in the fourth but only got two runs out of two passes, a double and two errors, for Weisgraber fanned the side to extricate himself from a bad hole. Bulkeley threatened but one other time, that in the third when Mitchell was thrown out at the plate when he attempted to score on G. Brennan's single to center, with two away.

The Wildcats ran the bases like their name implies, losing at least three runs by foolish work. This has been a big fault all year and some day may mean the ball game.

Murphy Hit by Ball

John Murphy, Bulkeley left fielder, was rendered unconscious when hit by a pitched ball in the eighth. He fell to the ground, and after he had been revived, collapsed again in the dugout. He was then taken to the hospital.

The Academy's strong start came when Arico walked to open the game. Gibbs singled into right and when the ball got away from Gigliotti, Arico came in and Chubby went all the way around to third. Gibbs scored on Cummings' grounder to Campbell. LaCroix walked, stole second and continued around to third when Campbell missed Brennan's perfect throw. Fagan walked. LaCroix scored on the squeeze with Tombari laying down the bunt.

The next scoring, in the Academy third, came when Gibbs led off with his second hit, also a single to right. Cummings walked and both stole bases on successive pitches. Gibbs was trapped, however, at the plate when the signals for a squeeze play went wrong. LaCroix then tapped to the box but Fagan followed a minute later with a rousing triple to right field, scoring Cummings. Tombari put up a fly to Petrosky.

Bulkeley's Big Inning

Bulkeley fans had their chance to cheer in the fourth. Weisgraber passed Watterson to open the inning. J. Brennan was safe when Arico dropped the ball after tagging him at first, Watterson going to third on the play. Brennan took second and Campbell scored both with a double to right field. Weisgraber was then in a hole. Petrosky fanned. John Murphy was safe when Gibbs fumbled his grounder and he took second shortly after. Gigliotti struck out but Beebe was passed filling the bases before Mitchell, who had doubled on his first trip to the plate, also struck out. That was all for Bulkeley for the day.

In the ninth the scoring ended when, with one out, Gibbs walked, took second on Cummings grounder to second and scored on LaCroix's single to center. Bulkeley went out in order in the last half of the ninth, using two pinch-hitters.

A big crowd saw the first of the two-game series between these old rivals with all the old-time rivalry in evidence. Next Saturday the series will be concluded at Norwich.

The score.

WILDCAT SCRATCHES

Runs were scored as follows: N. F. A.—Arico, 1; Gibbs, 2; Cummings, 1; LaCroix, 1. Bulkeley—Watterson, 1; J. Brennan, 1.

The Bulkeley band played throughout the game, being seated on the first base bleachers. This is a fine organization.

The Academy got a great ovation when they took the field in the first inning.

Ideal weather greeted the opening of this important series.

Petrosky's wildness in the first practically lost him the game. He went very good after that.

Hal Cummings had a great day at third, handling four difficult chances in perfect shape.

It's these teams again Saturday at Norwich. Tuesday N. F. A. plays Westerly at the campus.

YANKS WIN; TWO KILLED IN PANIC IN STANDS

NEW YORK, May 19—(AP)—The Yankees defeated the Red Sox 3 to 0 here today in a five inning game broken up by rain in the home half of the fifth and followed by a tragedy as 50,000 spectators surged toward covered runways to escape the downpour. A man and a woman were killed in the crush and from 15 to 20 injured. The abbreviated game was the first part of a scheduled doubleheader, the second contest of which was postponed.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig entertained the crowd with one home run each in the third at the expense of Jack Russell, and the crowd was merry, despite threatened rain, until the tragic touch put upon the afternoon when the storm broke. Babe's drive was his seventh, and Gehrig's his ninth. Lou's drive was within the field. The other Yankee run was scored in the first on a pass to Earl Coombs, an error and Ruth's infield out.

Fred Heimach had the better of Russell in the brief clash. Each pitcher allowed only two hits, but Russell's two were home runs. The Boston pitcher also passed three men. The game was called with two out in the Yankee fifth. The score:

Didja ever try to teach a woman to drive a car?

Well, if you never did, don't. And if you have, you have my sympathy.

I got a girl friend, who is going to get a car and she wants to learn to drive before she gets it. I'm the victim she picked out to teach her.

I never did a thing to her in my life, so I don't see why she should pick on me. Of course I got to do it and Saturday I give her her first lesson.

And I'll tell the world her next lesson is to be given at the Niantic National Guard parade grounds. Oh, that somebody would invent rubber telephone poles.

After telling this young lady the fundamentals of operating a car and rehearsing her until she was letter perefect in each operation I told her to get in back of the wheel.

She did as she was told, I'm sorry to say. "Now don't tell me a thing," she said, "I want to do it all myself." And I, like a fool, let her.

She turns on the ignition and steps on the starter, but forgot to take her foot off and the result was a sickening grinding of gears, a couple coughs and the motor refused to stand such treatment.

I explained her trouble but the only answer was "Don't tell me, I want to do it all myself." She tried again with better results. The motor started and she smiled happily. Next came the shifting of gears.

I had explained which operation came but she had ideas all her own. Instead of disengaging her clutch she just gave the shifting lever a general thrust in no particular direction.

There was another heart-rending grinding and the car shot back down the road. The kid had put it into reverse and stepped on the gas. All that stopped us was a very convenient state road fence. Now I know why they build those fences.

Did it bother her a bit? It did not. A bent bumper and a crumbled mudguard meant nothing in her young life. "Don't tell me, I want to do it myself" was her only comment.

I'll admit she did get it into low the next time and we started along the road. Another car was approaching and it seemed to have an uncanny fascination for her for she headed right at it.

The driver went clear into the gutter and she missed him by inches and my heart missed a beat or two. "Did you ever see such a road hog?" she asked. "No," says I, "You're the worst yet." "Oh, I mean the fellow that nearly hit me" she comes back.

A few seconds later as she was misguiding the car eratically along the highway a cow ran out in front. Taking both hands off the wheel she waves them at the cow shouting at the top of her lungs, "Get back, get back."

I made a grab for the wheel but not in time. The car went off the road and bumped smack into a telephone pole. I bumped my head on the windshield and when I came back to earth the girl says "There, don't you think I do well?" I drove home.

Say I heard a good one tonight. A certain man in our town goes into a restaurant for a glass of milk. Thinking a raw egg would go good in it he orders one. He takes the egg, breaks it, opens it and dumps the yolk on the counter and then puts the egg-shell in the milk. Can you beat it?

CARDS NOSE OUT REDS IN 11-INNING BATTLE

CINCINNATI, May 19—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals eked out a 2 to 1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in an 11 inning game here today.

Hafey walked and when Holm hit to Ford, High was caught between third and home, Holm going to second. Gelbert singled to left, however, scoring Holm with the winning tally. The Red Birds marked up their other counter in the fourth on two singles and a sacrifice fly.

The Red Legs drew first blood by scoring a run in the second after two were out. The score:

WHITE SOX MAKE MOST OF ERRORS BY TIGERS

DETROIT, May 19—(AP)—Taking advantage of four errors and wildness of five Detroit pitchers, the White Sox won an even break in their series here by trouncing the Tigers today, 10 to 3. It was the first series not won by the Tigers since they came home May 4.

Each team got ten hits but the Sox blows were good for 17 bases while Detroit hit only for 12. Eight Chicago batsmen were walked. Clarence Hoffman rapped out a home run in the eighth with none on base.

Johnny Mostil who recovered sufficently from a training camp injury to enter the lineup only two weeks ago, fractured his right ankle when he tripped over the plate in the fourth inning. The result of an x-ray examination was awaited before it could be determined how long he will be out of the game. The score:

MYSTIC OPENS SEASON WITH WIN OVER CORBIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, May 19—The Mystic baseball team opened the season Saturday afternoon by taking a hard fought game from the Corbin Red Sox, 4 to 3. Harry Mills pitched brilliant ball, being exceptionally good with men on base. Lefty Buckland who opposed Mills, pitched well fanning ten men but Mystic bunched their hits at opportune times. Barraclough and Berger starred with spectacular catches in the field, while Tug Wilson played a brilliant game at the first sack.

On Sunday Mystic was supposed to play at Putnam but was rained out. Putnam and Mystic play next Saturday and on Sunday the team goes to Norwich to play the J. B. Martin club. The score:

AMERICAN WOMEN TENNIS STARS DEFEAT FRENCH

PARIS, May 19 — (AP) — Winning three matches out of four in a long afternoon of hard-fought tennis, the touring American women's squad defeated a picked French team today, four matches to three.

Those who came to Roland Garros stadium were few—numbering not more than 2,000—but the tennis was worthy of Wimbledon's crowded stands.

For one thing, Helen Wills, queen of the courts, had what she herself called the toughest match she has played since Suazanne Lenglen defeated her. The 21-year-old Frenchwoman, Mme. Mathieu, who was Mlle. Simone Passemard, matched her almost stroke for stroke through the long first set of their match which Miss Wills finally pulled out of the fire by 8 to 6.

The pace of the long first set exhausted the Frenchwoman, however, and Miss Wills rushed through to victory in the second set without losing a game and yielding only nine points.

The two met again in the final and deciding match of the

PRACTICALLY NO SIGNS OF SEASONAL SLACKENING DURING THE PAST WEEK

NEW YORK, May 19—(AP)—The extraordinarily brisk activity in heavy industries was maintained with practically no signs of seasonal slackening during the past week, but retail trade was still retarded by wet and cool weather in many sections.

The most unsettling development of the previous week, the sharp break in wheat prices, appeared checked until late in the week, when estimates of a heavy new crop on top of the large carry over from last year, again depressed prices close to the $1 a bushel level. The tangle in congress over farm relief was also rather discouraging to agriculture.

An interesting development of the week was the report of President Hoover's committee on recent economic changes, which depicted the country as enjoying an era of unprecedented prosperity, but stressed the fact that prosperity can be maintained only through maintenance of economic balance, and indicated that savings have recently been diverted from business into speculation. President Simmons of the New York Stock exchange, in his annual report, however, again stated his position that money placed in the call loan market is not diverted from business.

The credit situation continued to cause uneasiness. The San Francisco and Minneapolis Federal Reserve banks raised their rediscount rates to the 5 per cent level prevailing in New York and elsewhere. Building contracts, which showed considerable improvement in April, again dropped off sharply in the early part of May.

The steel industry maintained its extraordinary vitality, with U. S. Steel again operating above its rated capacity, and the automotive industry continued to turn out cars at or near record rates. The nonferrous metal markets were quiet, but leading copper producers reduced output, indicating a determination to stabilize red metal prices around 18 cents a pound. The copper industry, which leans heavily on foreign markets, is watching the reparation conference with especial attention.

The petroleum industry continued to regard the future more cheerfully. Gasoline prices were increased a full cent a gallon by Standard of Indiana, and President Teagle of Standard of New Jersey, in his annual report, pointed to the substantial headway that is being made toward controlling production.

Freight car loadings for the latest week still indicated that distribution of goods was going forward near record levels. While the total was slightly less than the previous week, it was again above 1,000,000 cars. The insolvency record, as reported by R. G. Dun and Company for the previous week, was a little less favorable, showing 47 more failures than for the week before, and 23 more than for the like week a year ago.

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—Charles Boettcher of Denver, Colo., member of the New York stock exchange firm of Boettcher, Newton, and Co., has been elected a director of Alexander Industries, Inc. J. Don Alexander, president of the company, reports that unfilled airplane and motion picture advertising film orders on hand total $2,000,000, and he estimates the current year's net earnings between $1,000,000 and $1,250,000.

Trading in raw silk futures on the national raw silk exchange established a new high record last week, with a turnover of 1,254 contracts, equivalent of 6,170 bales.

Curtailed production of tin is reported from the Malaya, Cornwall and Bolivia fields as the result of recent declines in prices below 50 cents a pound.

Ralph Hornblower of Hornblower and Weeks has been elected a governor of the Investment Banking Association of America to represent the New England district. He succeeds Frederick Boynton who resigned because of his removal from Boston to New York.

Total value of agricultural machinery and equipment produced in the United States this year may exceed $467,766,250, according to statistics gathered by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank and the United States department of commerce.

The St. Regis Paper Co., and subsidiaries report a consolidated net income for the year ending Dec. 31, 1928, of $5,952,316, equal after preferred dividends to $9.36 a share of the 600,000 shares of common stock outstanding prior to December 20, and to $7.30 a share on the 150,000 shares outstanding December 31. The earnings were considerably higher than in 1927.

Dipper Introduces Mrs. Grebe
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

In other folk's affairs go slow;
Their secrets you've no right to know.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit couldn't keep away from the Smiling Pool. Ever since he had seen Dipper the Grebe there, he had taken every opportunity to go visit the Smiling Pool. For several visits he was disappointed. He saw nothing of Dipper. Grandfather Frog wasn't in the best of spirits and refused to tell Peter whether or not Dipper had been there.

"It's none of my business and it's none of your business, Peter Rabbit," said Grandfather Frog gruffly. "You are altogether too fond of poking that wabbly little nose of yours into other people's business."

"I am not poking it into anybody's business!" declared Peter. "I certainly am doing no one any harm by coming over to visit Dipper the Grebe."

Grandfather Frog chuckled. "Your visiting doesn't seem to be much of a success," said he.

But there came a day when Peter did not call at the Smiling Pool in vain. Hardly had he peeked over the bank when he discovered Dipper swimming near the upper side of the Smiling Pool. This was where the Laughing Brook entered the Smiling Pool. The alders grow there and it is somewhat swampy. It is back there among those alders that Longbill the Woodcock and Mrs. Woodcock make their home. If Dipper saw Peter, he made no sign. So Peter sat down on the bank in plain sight and waited patiently. Peter Rabbit is an excellent sitter. He has cultivated the habit of sitting. When he has nothing else to do he sits, and it happens that he has special ability in finding nothing else to do. Some people are that way.

At last his patience was rewarded. Dipper came swimming over to that side of the Smiling Pool.

"Good morning," said Peter.

"Good morning, Peter," replied Dipper. "It is a nice spring morning, isn't it?"

"It certainly is," replied Peter. "Are you going to stay for the summer?"

"Perhaps so; perhaps not," replied Dipper. "I really haven't anything to say about it."

"Peter pricked up his long ears. "Why not?" he demanded.

"Is there a Mrs. Peter?" inquired Dipper.

"Certainly. Of course there is," replied Peter.

"Then how could you ask that question?" replied Dipper.

Peter grinned foolishly. "I suppose," said he, "that that means there is a Mrs. Grebe."

Dipper nodded. "There is," said he. "If there were not, I wouldn't be wasting my time here."

"Then that means that Mrs. Dipper is here, too," cried Peter eagerly.

"Of course," replied Dipper. "You wouldn't expect me to be here alone at this time of year, would you?"

"But where is she?" cried Peter eagerly.

Just then Grandfather Frog jumped from his big green lilypad with a splash. Peter looked over there. It was for only a moment that he looked and when he looked back at Dipper the latter seemed to have suddenly become twins. Two Grebes sat there on the water, side by side.

"Meet Mrs. Grebe, Peter Rabbit," said one of them.

Peter Rabbit sat on the bank of the Smiling Pool, staring in the most impolite manner at the two birds on the water just below him. A moment before, when he had turned his head, there had been but one there. When he had looked back there were two. To make it more perplexing, they looked just alike, hey looked as if they might be twin. Tahey were not, however, because one of them—and that one he knew was Dipper the Grebe—had just said: "Meet Mrs. Grebe, Peter Rabbit." The trouble was Peter Rabbit didn't know which one had spoken.

"I am pleased to meet you, Mrs. Grebe," said Peter, trying to be polite all thetime wondering which was Mrs. Grebe.

Just as Peter spoke, Rattles the Kingfisher flew overhead, making that harsh, rattling sound that no one but he can make. Peter looked up. When he looked down again there was but one of the Grebes in sight. "Oh!" exclaimed Peter. "Where has Mrs. Grebe gone?"

"Mrs. Grebe is right here, thank you," was the reply.

Peter felt foolish and looked it. "Excuse me," said he. "Please excuse me. I thought you were Dipper. Where has he gone?"

Now Peter, no matter how much interested he may be, doesn't forget to watch out for danger sitting out there on the open bank of the Smiling Pool. He knew that he could easily be seen from a considerable distance by some of his enemies. Therefore, he must be extra watchful. He turned his head for a hasty look behind him, to make sure that Reddy Fox was nowhere in sight. Then he turned back to speak to Mrs. Grebe once more.

"Did you come up from the Sunny South with Dipper," he inquired very politely.

"I couldn't have come without him," was the reply.

"Why not?" inquired Peter.

"For the very goodreason that I am Dipper," was the prompt response.

"But you just said that you were Mrs. Grebe," protested Peter.

"Oh, no, I didn't," replied Dipper. "It was Mrs. Grebe herself who said that."

Once more Peter turned his head for a hasty look around and then when he once more looked down in the water it was to find that neither Grebe was there. Both had disappeared completely. Peter stared this way and stared that way. He couldn't see a sign of either one. He began to get provoked. He stamped his feet on the bank impatiently. "They are just having fun with me," said he. At that very instant a headpopped out of the water in front of him.

"Who is having fun with you?" demanded a voice, and Peter was sure that it was the voice of Dipper the Grebe.

"I suppose," said Peter, "that you think you are smart. But I can tell you one thing, Dipper, andthat is——"

"Please do not call me Dipper," interrupted the Grebe. "I am not Dipper. I am Mrs. Grebe. What were you going to say?"

By this time Peter had forgotten what he was going to say. It was most annoying not to be able to tell Mr. and Mrs. Grebe apart. And he wasn't quite sure yet just how it was that they managed to appear and disappear in such a mysterious manner. "I don't acre which you are," said Peter. "I'm glad you're here and I hope you'll stay. So please do stop teasing me."

GOSHEN

FIVE FORMER PASTORS COMING FOR CHURCH EVENT

Plans are being made for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of Goshen church to be held Sunday, June 30. There will be forenoon and afternoon services with a basket lunch and social period from 12m to 2 o'clock. Five former ministers of the church, also Prof. Harry C. Vail of Utica, N. Y., are expected to participate in the services.

Robins Are Numerous.

The leading singers at the early morning bird concert seem to be the robins. They are spending much time and pains in their nest building. The thrush family, sometimes called the American nightingale, do not seem to be singing as loudly as about the same place as in former years and bob o'link has his usual rollicking story to tell, one of his aunts is to sing while he is in flight. Whippoorwills for some reason are not so numerous in this locality as in former years. The little white house on the corner is good enough for them, the house wren. The oriole, who ties up his hear with a string, also the fire hung bird are for his beauty of looks, rather than song. C. H. "Dad" Shaw might be able to tell us something about the song birds.

The Ladies' Aid society met for an all-day session at Goshen parsonage Thursday.

A meeting of the members of the Norwich chamber of commerce and New London county farm bureau is to be held in Lyman High school auditorium, Lebanon, Monday evening, May 20. The members of the 4-H club are to give the entertainment. A prominent speaker from town will be heard.

H. H. CULVER, CALIFORNIA, GIVES NEW LONDON REALTORS PEPPY TALK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19—Harry H. Culver, president of the National Real Estate association, was honor guest of the local realtors at the Mohican hotel Saturday evening when about forty members and friends assembled to greet him. Mr. Culver spoke with enthusiasm and expressed his faith in the east. He is a Californian and possesses the enthusiasm and optimism of that section. He sees in Connecticut all the advantages that could be desired to make for progress, but he urged greater energy on the part of the people who reside here.

A code of ethics and the display of energy are the requisites of greater success for the east, in the opinion of Mr. Culver. He urged that membership in the association should assure the confidence of all who did business with realtors.

Mr. Culver is an enthusiastic devotee of the airplanes and a flier who has a record that stamps him a master of the wings. He declared that he had never had an accident, had taken his family and his aged mother aloft with him and considered the airplane no more a menace to life in use than was the automobile. He declared that he never flew in a fog, never attempted stunt flying and always was sure that his plane was in condition when he made use of it. He saw in the development of airports a source of the greatest prosperity for small cities and towns, and urged that attention be given to providing such places for the planes. He recited instance after instance wherein prosperity in marked degree had followed the establishment of airports. His talk was enlightening and informing in the extreme.

Archa W. Coit, of Norwich, spoke briefly in advocating the display of activity and energy on the part of realtors, referring to the fact that Norwich had sent one of the leading realtors to business in New York in the person of Charles Floyd Noyes.

President Sidney H. Miner of the local board of real estate men, presided at the meeting and introduced Mr. Culver very felicitously. He was followed by Mayor Scott who extended the greetings of citizens and expressed the pleasure it afforded him to welcome Mr. Culver as a guest of New London.

ONE NORWICH DRIVER COLLIDES WITH ANOTHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19.—Alexander Padurgull, 53 Maple avenue, Norwich, was arrested early Sunday morning charged with reckless driving and will be in court Monday. Padergull was driving his automobile on Williams street and when near Connecticut college the machine collided with a car driven by Fred Stiles, of the Wauregan hotel, Norwich. The police was notified of the accident and Padergull was taken into custody. Stiles requested that Padergull also be charked with driving while under the influence of liquor, but the former charge was the only count made against Padergull.

Frank W. Davis, about 70, and residing at 8 Tenth street, was arrested this afternoon by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran charged with breach of the peace. When the officers arrived at his home, Davis was armed with a shot gun, but it was not loaded. An Italian caller, who quarreled with Davis refused to make a complaint against the latter and his identity is not known.

Abe B. Neiman, 36 Cleveland street, proprietor of a automobile sales station, was arrested this afternoon by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws, his license having been suspended last week.

FRANK BABCOCK JABBED BY ALEX CHIPLINSKY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19. — Alex Chiplinsky, 118 Shaw street, was arrested this afternoon by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey charged with assault with intent to kill and will be given a hearing tomorrow. Chiplinsky, who is known to the police as Shaw street's bad man, and Frank Bobock, of Howard street, engaged in a fight at the home of the former. The police found Bobcock stretched out on the floor with his scalp bleeding from a series of lacerations. The wounds, it is claimed, were received when Chiplinsky attacked Bobcock with a blunt instrument. Bobcock was removed to Lawrence Memorial hospital, where it was said that the injured man may have sustained a fracture of the skull. A woman who was present when the assault was committed, was also locked up as a witness. It is claimed that the fight was precipitated during an argument originating while Chiplinsky and Bobcock were drinking.

DRUNKEN DRIVER HELD A MENACE BY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19—Edward Foster, naval officer, residing at 715 Ocean avenue, was in the police court Saturday charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. The case was continued at the request of Foster, the date of the trial being assigned to Saturday next. Foster was driving on Ocean avenue late Friday night and as the car took a course that indicated that the driver was drunk, Sergeant John Courtney and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin ordered the driver to bring his machine to a stop. When Foster's condition was evident, he was placed under arrest and later was liberated in bail of $500. In presenting the case in court, Actine Prosecutor Max Boyer said that he seriously considered recommending a jail sentence for Foster and added that the naval officer might just as well promenade with a loaded revolver while in his drunken condition as to drive an automobile.

Alleged Discrimination

William Hobby, also stationed at the submarine base, was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and was fined $100 and costs. Hobby was driving on Ocean and Pequot avenues Friday night and as the machine approached Neptune and Mott avenue, the attention of Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell was attracted to it because of the zig-zag course it took and more so because the auto narrowly averted a crash with a trolley car. When Hobby was ordered to come to a stop and when his condition was noted he was arrested. Hobby had his nerve with him when presented before the court, remarking that he believed that the police devoted their energy and attention to observe the acts of uniformed men, more so than they did civilians. It was the opinion of the court that the uniformed men had been treated extremely leniently for in the vernacular, "the uniformed men had gotten away with murder."

Celestial Too Ready With Flat

Lee Kee, proprietor of a Chinese laundry on Golden street, was charged with breach of the peace and was fined $10 and costs. Kee and a fellow-Chinese were at the former's place of business several nights ago and engaged in an altercation. The more the Celestials talked the more heated their argument became. Finally Kee wielded a hot flat iron on his adversary's head and face, inflicting severe, but not serious wounds.

Continuance for Birch

John Birch, Cheevy Chase, Md., was charged with driving without a license. The case was continued to the 25th inst. Birch was driving a Ford car on Bank street, near Fay street, two weeks ago and in attempting to pass another auto going in the same direction, it collided with a car driven in the opposite course. Birch's auto was overturned and wrecked and the driver and a companion were injured.

The accused were fined $400 and costs each and paid.

Langlands, Madison and Angelo DeVito, 164 Wooster St., New Haven, were charged with various violations of the city's parking ordinances. None of the drivers appeared in court and their respective bonds of $2 were forfeited.

THIEF WITH NERVE STOLE COTTAGE TOILET AND SINK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19—Mrs. Max Zimmer, of New York, owner of the cottage at 21 Midway place, Ocean beach, made complaint to Patrolman Thomas Lyden at the week end that the cottage had been entered and that the toilet and sink had been removed. It is believed that the thief was aware of the absence of the owner from the city, for it required much time to disconnect both toilet and sink and load them into a vehicle. The cottage has not been tenanted since last year.

Mystic Woman Injured

Mrs. Henrietta Porter, 67, of Mystic, was painfully injured Friday when struck by a commercial truck owned by the Bamby Bread company and driven by James Kelly, 198 Montauk avenue. Kelly was not arrested for state police officers who investigated the accident found that the driver was exercising due care in the handling of the truck. The truck was being backed from the Jones garage on Thames street, Groton and at a slow rate of speed. Just as the truck was about to pass over the sidewalk to reach the highway, Mrs. Porter started to pass and was backed upon, being knocked down, but was not run over. After Mrs. Porter had been attended by a physician she was taken to her home.

WILLIMANTIC WOMAN AGENT BALKS A HOLDUP CROOK

NEW LONDON, May 19—Anna Colerado, Willimantic real estate agent, had an unpleasant experience on the outskirts of New London Saturday when an attempt was made by an unidentified man to hold her up and rob her. Through her presence of mind the woman escaped being relieved of whatever money she had in her possession for she attacked the holdup man with a jack she happened to have alongside of her in the car when she brought the car to a stop at the command of the holdup man. Mrs. Colerado was driving to New London and near Quaker Hill, a man who was walking beside the road called to her that she had a flat tire. She stopped the auto and the man approached and to the surprise of Mrs. Colerado, she peered into the muzzle of a revolver and at the same time heard the man demand her money.

While trying to convince the holdup man that she possessed but a few dollars and while the fellow peered along the highway to watch approaching autos, the woman seized the jack and dealt the man a blow on the head. Mrs. Colerado then stepped on the accelerator and the car speeded to New London, where Mrs. Colerado informed the police of what had occurred. The state police were acquainted of the attempted holdup, but officers sent to the New London-Norwich highway failed to find any trace of the man.

Tony Battaglia, Shaw street, was arrested by Detective Sergeant Nelso Smith Saturday charged with non-support. He furnished a surety bond of $200 and will be in court tomorrow.

Albert T. Ferris, 60 Stevens street, White Plains, N. Y., complained to the police Saturday that he parked his auto in the rear of the Hotel Mohican Friday afternoon and when he returned to the auto Saturday, he discovered that it had been damaged, another auto having collided with it. The bumper was smashed, the mudguards disfigured and the engine forced out of position.

George Strugis, proprietor of a parking station in the rear of the First Baptist church, on Washington street, reported to the police last night that an automobile carrying Connecticut registration, N-7131, had been parked there Friday, but the owner had not claimed the car.

Andrew Pedro, Mitchell court, was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Lawrence Fardy and Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran charged with breach of the peace upon complaint of his wife. He furnished a surety on his bond of $50 and will be in court Monday.

The burglar alarm connected with the Shalett Cleaning & Dyeing company, caused three police officers to be rushed to the establishment, corner of Montauk avenue and Hobron street late Friday night when the alarm sounded, indicating that an attempt was being made to enter the building. HUMPHREY'S UNPAID TAX MAY START LEGAL FIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19—Charles Humphrey, proprietor of the Standard Garage corporation, was arrested by City Sheriff Charles White Saturday on a tax warrant issued by Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander, it being claimed that Humphrey owed the city $1,800. Humphrey was taken to the New London county jail, but did not remain there long for his counsel, Arthur T. Keefe, obtained the issuance of a habeas corpus warrant, signed by Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of comman pleas ordering the release of Humphrey. Humphrey was taken before Leon Beisheim, commissioner of the superior court and discharged. The tax warrant set forth that Humphrey owed the amount claimed, while it was contended by counsel for the garage man that Humphrey could not be held liable for the payment of the tax of the corporation and that the only tax he was required to pay was his personal tax, either on realty or personal property. It is understood that Humphrey intends to bring suit against the city for false arrest. Whether he has a legal right to do so will shortly be determined for in being released from jail, Humphrey, it is understood, waived his right to legal redress by signing a waiver to refrain from bringing civil action against the city.

Rev. D. J. Beveridge was elected president of New London Phi Beta Kappa association and Dr. Henry W. Lawrence was made secretary and treasurer at a meeting held Friday night at the Hotel Mohican, which was preceded by a dinner. Seventeen members and guests were present.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Symphony Orchestra

The Norwich Symphony orchestra of 60 musicians, under the direction of Frank Drago, will give its first concert on Wednesday evening, May 22, at Slater Memorial hall. This will be the first symphonic concert given in Norwich by a local orchestra in 25 years. Frank Farrell, who was the conductor at that time, has justly been chosen to be the first soloist of the new organization. This will be a treat to Norwich music lovers, where Mr. Farrell's friends and followers are legion. A few of the musicians who played under Mr. Farrell are now members of the new orchestra.

Mr. Drago has chosen a program which is sure to find favor with all music lovers, and no effort has been spared to present a performance of high standard. Such is the enthusiasm of the musicians, that they have asked that rehearsals be continued immediately after this concert and to continue through a good part of the summer. This enthusiasm, judging from the large advance sale of tickets, has been communicated to the public of Norwich and has also reached nearby towns, Hartford, New London, Westerly, Colchester, Jewett City, Taftville and Fitchville will be represented.

Broadway Theatre.

"Lady of the Pavements" is one of the most daring stories to come under Griffith's direction during his twenty years of motion picture production. Rejected by her nobleman lover because of her infidelity, a mistress of Napoleon lays plans for a disgraceful revenge. From the cafes of the underworld she gets a magnetic girl whom she schools in the ways of her set. She then contrives to have the man marry the girl and at the wedding feast makes a scathing denouncement.

Contrary to the usual procedure in handling such subjects, Griffith, advance reports state, has treated the story in an altogether modern and light vein, achieving his effects rather by contrasts than sombre realism.

The leading parts have been admirably well cast. Lupe Velez, so captivating as the heroine opposite Douglas Fairbanks as "The Gaucho" is the girl of the cabarets. William Boyd of "The Volga Boatman" and "Two Arabian Knights" fame, is the man, while Jetta Goudal, long established as a character star, portrays the other woman.

The especially prepared sound accompaniment devised by Hugo Riesenfeld, famous composer and conductor, will be a feature of the presentation of "Lady of the Pavements" at the Broadway Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The synchronized musical score includes the Irving Berlin theme song "Where is the Song of Songs for Me?" sung by Lupe Velez, heroine of the film, "Nena" and "At the Dance," both popular numbers are also sung by Miss Velez. Some of the most dramatic scenes in the picture are presented with a dialogue accompaniment featuring the principal players.

Breed Theatre

In a vivid story of grim revenge, set amid dark Africa and the sweltering sun-baked fastnesses of its surrounding country, John Gilbert is drawing large and enthusiastic audiences to the Breed theatre, where his latest starring vehicle, "Desert Nights," opened last night.

The story is a thrilling one, dramatically and realistically told. Its locale is a part of the African desert, where men and beasts are alike, fall within a few hours if they are compelled to go without water. In this dramatic setting the three leading characters play out their absorbing story of hate, revenge and love.

Gilbert brings to this role a dramatic fire never before witnessed in his screen appearances. His characterization is positively thrilling. He becomes the tyrant and how he satiates his lustful desire for revenge, yet in the end saves his erstwhile tormentors from a terrible death, is told in colorful and exciting fashion. Woven through the whole is a most unusual love theme. For much as Gilbert desires revenge, he loses his heart to the girl and the working out of their romance affords something new in filmed love stories.

Each of the characterizations are sharp and well defined.

Mary Nolan plays the girl in a most convincing manner. Her blonde loveliness would be an asset to any production and she also proves herself a capable little actress.

Ernest Torrence gives another one of the characterizations for which he is noted. It is finished, interpretive but telling in every respect.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. George Warren Potter, pastor of Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church preached on "Burdens", at the morning service. He took three texts Gal. 6:5 "For every one shall bear his own burden" Gal. 6:2, "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ" and Psalms 55:22 "Cast thy burden upon the Lord and He shall sustain thee." The Junior Choir under direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich sang and Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter told the children a story. The church was decorated with spring flowers by Virginia Ward, Muriel Rose, Florence Gembel and Bertha Backus. The Junior Epworth League meeting was led by Florence Gembel and was in charge of the pastor. Mrs. Richard Carter gave a most interesting talk on "Why Is Jesus the World's Greatest Leader," at the evening meeting of the C. E. society. In the evening church service the pastor gave a stereopticon lecture, "India in Transition." Over sixty beautiful hand colored slides were thrown on the screen by the operator of the stereopticon machine, Ralph Smith.

At the 40th anniversary service of the Epworth League Sunday evening in Willimantic Methodist church, installation service followed the address of the evening given by Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter of Norwich Town. Her subject was, "Polishing Up the Links of the Epworth League Chain."

Troop 2 Boy Scouts connected with Norwich Town Methodist church are to hold a meeting from 7 to 8 Tuesday night at the parsonage.

MAN SLIGHTLY HURT WHEN MACHINES COLLIDED

Machine driven by William G. Agnew, son of Dr. R. B Agnew of this city, and Walter Symyd of No. 185 Standish street, Hartford, collided about 9 o'clock Sunday night, when Symyd attempted to cut in front of the Agnew machine on Broadway. Mr. Agnew was driving his father's Cadillac sedan north on Broadway at the time. Symyd, at the wheel of a Chevrolet coach, headed down Broadway, attempted to turn into Broad street, in the path of the Agnew machine.

The radiator, both front wheels and both front fenders, on the Hartford man's machine were badly damaged and the front left mudguard, bumper and a headlight on Dr. Agnew's machine were damaged. Symyd received a small cut on the head. No arrests were made.

Two Courses in English

Because of the recent additions which have been made to its English department, Connecticut college will be able to offer two courses in English next year which have not been offered for some time. The courses are entitled Old and Middle English, and English Literature, 1557-1700. They have not been offered recently because of inadequate facilities.

HARVARD'S NEW VARSITY CREW QUARTERS

HARVARD VARSITY CREW'S NEW QUARTERS AT GALES FERRY

Those who come to the Thames river for the annual rowing classic between Harvard and Yale will be impressed by the sightly new building that stands on the bluff on the Gales Ferry side of the river just opposite the line at the north end of the four mile course. The building is the new quarters for the Harvard varsity crew and is one that the Harvard Athletic association may well be proud. It has been built at a cost of something over $40,000, it is understood.

For many years the Crimson crews have been housed in inadequate quarters, some living at the old farmhouse on the Harvard reservation while others were staying in the old building familiarly known as Red Top. Now the varsity crew have modern and convenient quarters that are second to none in the country. The only thing lacking will be the traditions that surround such crew quarters, but these traditions will be in the making.

The new building is one of beauty as well as convenience and is most ideally situated. From the porches a beautiful view down the river is to be had as far as the submarine base and Mammicoke island, and the progress of the races can be seen for nearly two miles. The quarters are located in a grove of pines and there is always a breeze from off the river.

The exterior of the building is finished in colonial shingles, very widely spaced. The building is of the southern colonial type and is painted white. Entering from the front one steps directly into the living room of the quarters which is very nicely appointed. At one side of the room is a large fireplace of brick with a granite mantel. The room is paneled off with celotex and the floor is of oak, the same as prevails throughout the building. Off the living room are sleeping quarters, two small rooms and one large room of four beds. There are two lavatories on the first floor and one on the second floor.

On the second floor are six single rooms along the front of the building with three more rooms in the rear. There are also drying rooms on the second floor as well as locker rooms. There are locker rooms and shower baths in other parts of the building.

The quarters are well laid out, light and airy, and finely equipped throughout. An administration building with quarters for the coaches and others of the rowing personnel is being built just east of the main building.

BELIEVES CONSUMER SHOULD DEDUCT GASOLINE TAX

With Colonel Robert O. Eaton, collector of internal revenue for Connecticut, receiving official notification on Friday of a ruling from the internal revenue bureau in support of his contention that consumers of gasoline cannot deduct the two-cent tax on gasoline from their annual income tax returns, Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles, announced that he was preparing to go to Washington to protest against the ruling and to submit a brief in the matter to the internal revenue bureau.

The ruling by Washington authorities, while denying motorists reduction of taxes paid on gasoline, allows distributors of the gasoline to deduct the total from their returns.

Commissioner Stoeckel has taken the stand that it is the motorist who pays the 2-cent tax on every gallon of gasoline which he purchases, and that the distributor merely acts as tax collector for the state. To prove this, the commissioner pointed to the futile plea made to the past legislature by the distributors, who sought a commission of 5 per cent. of all taxes collected for the state, maintaining that they were entitled to some financial consideration for the work done in collecting and handing over the tax to the state.

"It is my contention," said Commissioner Stoeckel, "that persons who actually pay the tax should have a right to deduct it on their income tax returns. According to the recent ruling, the distributors, who pay absolutely no tax out of their own pockets, have a right to deduct from their income tax returns the amount they have taken in from consumers and in turn have handed over to the state."

Commissioner Stoeckel explained that his formal arguments on the matter are not ready and that it will be some time before they are completed, due to the fact that he is extremely busy on other matters for the next few days. The commissioner said he hoped to go to Washington some time next week for a preliminary conference with internal revenue officials, after which he would put into writing his arguments in the matter.

Colonel Eaton explained that the ruling which was passed on to him, by the Washington office Friday should clear up the situation in the minds of income tax filers, hundreds of whom deduct "gas" tax payments, making considerable work for the local income tax staff.

The ruling holds that gasoline taxes paid in Connecticut are not deductible by consumers, excepting when the tax is included in the cost of gasoline and that cost is deducted as a business expense, and in cases where the commissioner of motor vehicles has allowed the sale of gasoline to the consumer before the tax is collected.

FARMER-CITY MEETING TONIGHT AT LEBANON

Fred Kamiller of Dubuque, Iowa, who is to address the farmer-city meeting of the chamber of commerce at Lyman high school at Lebanon this (Monday) evening at 7:30 on the subject, The Greatest Thing in the World-Friendship, arrived in Hartford Sunday and is to be the guest of Hartford Rotary club at their Monday noon luncheon.

Mr. Kamiller enjoys an enviable reputation in the west as a speaker and much interest has been evidenced in his Lebanon address by the fact that practically all the space available in the high school building has been reserved and only eight tickets remain unsold out of the 200 for supper.

The state commissioner of agriculture, S. McLean Buckingham, is to be the toastmaster and will speak briefly upon agriculture in Connecticut. This meeting is the first undertaking of the agriculture committee of which Walter T. Clark is chairman, and has the purpose of establishing a better understanding and acquaintanceship between the business man and the farmer. Several attractive features are to be provided in the way of entertainment by the 4-H clubs, for which three prizes are offered by the chamber of commerce. President Joseph C. Worth is out of town but is expected home in time, but if he is delayed, Harry F. Powers, first vice president, will preside. William G. Park is to be song leader and Henry J. LaFontaine is to be at the piano.

announced. The appointment of Mr Welte by the state board of education was announced by State Education Commissioner Albert B. Meredith.

LEBANON, HEBRON AND COLUMBIA CORNER MARKED

Bulletin readers whose memories hark back to its issue of August 27th, 1926, will perhaps remember an article entitled "Marked Corner of the Lebanon Five Mile," and it may not be a surprise to them to hear that the same trio of conspirators in ancient landmarks have again broken loose with the corner of Lebanon, Hebron and Columbia, an objective point. Various maps of various vintages, ranging from Webb's Lebanon of 1770-2, and county maps galore, to the state topographical of 1893, vary a half mile or more as to the exact point, and these students in the lure of landmarks have had their consciences sorely troubled for some time.

Town Clerk Collins of Columbia, between legislative session days, finally unearthed a record stating that in 1895 a dispute arose between Lebanon and Columbia on this point and a committee of arbitration decided that the northwest corner of Lebanon and the southwest corner of Columbia should forever be at this point where "Root's Will Brook" intersected this well known line between Lebanon and Hebron. This apparently settled the matter so far as records go, but to find and mark this location required some outdoor work. So on Saturday, May 11th, Town Clerk Charles J. Abell, then seer of Lebanon, John A. Spafford, attorney of Bridgeport and Lebanon, and F. C. Bissell, he of Hebron and Hartford, actively retired mostly, met at a bound in the Lebanon and Hebron town line and with the assistance of a civil engineer, who, by the way, found that line to run north one degree west as the compass reads today, located the corner in the old Porter sawmill pond—a 12 foot piece of gas pipe driven firmly into the bud of this brook marks the corner.

What these antiquarians will find next to engage their attention, remains to be seen. Signs indicate that they will try to find other "worlds to conquer."

NEARLY 500 KILLED, OVER 12,000 INJURED

Automobile accidents are increasingly serious in result although the collision rate is not advancing as rapidly as the growth in car registration and use. Traffic hazards are multiplying in proportion to the increased use of automobiles. Careless and reckless operation is still the outstanding cause of accidents.

"Seasoned" operators, the most efficient in theory, are the chief offenders, but women and minors, the groups with the best records in the past, are losing rank because of more frequent accidents. Increased mileage for these groups is the primary contributing cause of poorer driving records.

These conclusions are reached by Miss Ethel Usher, statistician of the state motor vehicle department, after a study of all Connecticut accidents in 1928 and comparison with statistics of other years. She has made the results of her study the subject of the current monthly bulletin of the department.

That accidents are increasingly destructive is apparent in the comparative tables presented in the bulletin. In 1928, there were 468 persons killed and 12,797 injured by motor vehicles in this state, while the property damage exceeded $2,900,000. All of these totals are above those of any year. The previous high figures were in 1927 when 356 persons were killed, 11,879 injured, and the estimated damage was $2,760,000.

"Traffic hazards are increasing," says Miss Usher "both because of a greater number of registrations each year and a much greater use of motor vehicles as evidenced by an increase of 7.7 per cent. in registrations and 13.5 per cent. in gasoline consumption for 1928. The accident increase is 2.5 per cent., which may be due to improvement in average driving, indicating that all efforts aimed at reduction in accidents have not been in vain."

In analyzing the records of drivers, Miss Usher finds that "the operators of passenger cars and motorcycles are showing a real decrease in participation in accidents while those operating all other types of cars except busses show increases. The rate chart indicates need for more effective effort to improve the record of operators of commercial cars and public service cars, particularly the busses which have a record of nearly as many accidents as registrations in a year. A comparison of the average mileage of busses and other types of vehicles fails to show a sufficiently greater number of traffic hazards to warrant this condition.

"Apparently the owners of cars are loaning them more freely than formerly or are demanding less of the operator. A note of warning must now be sounded else there will soon be a departure from all past records. The women and sixteen and seventeen year old operators should study their group records and take heed lest they lose their now enviable record.

"The intersections of streets or highways continues to be the favorite spot for collisions. Each intersection or location should be given thorough and scientific study by the traffic authority to determine the proper traffic direction methods for that spot. All other locations in the highways have shown a smaller contribution of accidents except the straightaway, which shows a considerable increase. As always the increases occur on the good road surfaces and in clear weather. An exception to former findings, but a corroboration of popular beliefs will be found in a table which shows a decrease in accidents occurring in daylight and an increase after dark. This increase is largely between the hours of 3 and 4 a. m.

GRADUATING NURSES HELD DINNER SATURDAY EVENING

The 16 members of the 1929 graduating class of the William W. Backus hospital training school for nurses enjoyed a broiled chicken dinner at the Mohican hotel in New London Saturday evening, and a delightful programme arranged for the event. Instructors and supervisors of the staff, seven in number, were guests of the class members.

The menu comprised grape fruit, tomato bisque, broiled chicken, green peas, peach fritters, lettuce salad, mayonnaise potatoes, cranberry sauce, ice cream and cake. Miss Helen Towers, chairman of the supper committee, acted as toastmistress.

A feature of the banquet was the reading of the class prophecy by Miss Esther Hyman, the class will by Miss Alletta Fox, the class history by Miss Ruth Parker, class poem by Miss Mary Ellen Foley and the dedication of the class book by Miss Ruth Allen. Dancing was enjoyed during the dinner hour.

The graduation exercises will be held this (Monday) evening at the Samuel Huntington school, Norwich Town.

STEREOPTICON SLIDES AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY SERVICE

At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the parlors of the local Y. M. C. A. an interesting service was held. Some 40 stereopticon slides portraying the life of Saint Paul were shown on the screen, and the picture story of this unusual man was most interesting and instructive. Several illustrated hymns were used during the service, and Louis Mell who officiated at the piano rendered the hymn "There is a green hill far away" in solo.

General Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk in line with the pictures bringing out the strong points of the life of the great Apostle. In closing the speaker urged his hearers to emulate St Paul in his courage and consecration to the greatest cause in all the world, namely the cause of Christ. Emery H. Davis operated the lantern for the service.

REV. RICHARD FANNING TO BE ORDAINED SATURDAY

From the pulpit of St. Patrick's church at the four masses Sunday it was announced that a Norwich young man, Rev. Richard Fanning of 31 Lincoln avenue, who in the course of his reception of Holy Orders had been advanced to deacon a short time ago at St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore, will be ordained a priest the coming Saturday morning at 9:30 at St. Joseph's Cathedral, Hartford, at public services. He will celebrate his first solemn mass the following day, Sunday, May 26th, at St Patrick's church, Norwich, at 10:30. Following the mass the young priest will impart his blessing individually to every member of the congregation.

At the meeting of the auxiliary to the Peter Gallan Post No. 104 held in the Red Cross rooms, Taftville, Wednesday night, May 15th the poppy committee composed of Mrs. Ruth Grant Sears, Mrs. May D. Frohmader and Mrs. George Blood, Ponemah nurse who has consented to act on this committee, reported that the poppy drive would start next Tuesday night. The members are to canvass throughout the village Lisbon, Occum and Versailles and urge everyone to contribute to this worthy while cause. The territories are to be canvassed as follows: Lisbon—Mrs Clara Coron and Mrs. Johanna Gelino; Norwich avenue and Terrace avenue—Mrs. May Frohmader and Mrs. Annie Vetter; Hunters avenue and Merchants avenue—Mrs. Frances Kelly and Mrs. Phillip Poirier; North Side of village—Mrs. Ruth Grant Sears and Mrs. Rose Belval; South Side of village—Mrs. Lucy Fogarty and Mrs. Dorothy Nagle. The teams will then get together and canvass Occum and Versailles.

NEW HAVEN DEGREE TEAM INITIATES CLASS OF 42 AT MOOSE HOME

A class of 42 candidates, known as the Bill Bennett class, was initiated Sunday afternoon by the New Haven Moose degree team at the local Moose home. Dictator Bernard Wunderlich opened the meeting at 2:30 o'clock and turned the gavel over to the New Haven degree team.

Blind Orator Rogers of New York addressed the large gathering as did William J. Bennett, district supervisor of New Jersey who spoke of the progress being made in the Moose world. Mr. Bennett, during the course of his remarks spoke of Norwich as a beautiful city.

Supreme Dictator Theis spoke of Mooseheart where 1500 children are cared for and of Moosehaven where 185 old men and 25 aged couples are being cared for. In addition 2,000 children are receiving aid from the Moose extension fund.

Judge Curtis, dictator of Brooklyn lodge, Brooklyn, N. Y., was also a speaker at the meeting. He told of how hundreds of children are being educated at Mooseheart and of how 235 aged people are being taken care of through the extension service. There are 3,472 dependents outside Moosehaven and Mooseheart.

Judge Curtis presented to Henry Couture a beautiful white gold Moose ring, as a mark of appreciation of Mr. Couture's activities in securing the Wauregan class, initiated some time ago. Mr. Couture personally secured 14 candidates for the class.

Dictator Wunderlich presented to Judge Curtis, Mr. Bennett, and Mr. Theis, Thermos bottles in handsome leather carrying cases. Dictator Wunderlich appealed to the members of the lodge to sign up for the convention trip from Norwich to New Haven, June 22. It is possible that a special train will be secured for the trip. Men, women and children, will make the trip as each of the three lodges will hold conventions in New Haven that day.

After the meeting closed supper was served, the menu comprising potato salad, ham, pickles, rolls and coffee. During the evening Seeley's Entertainment Bureau of New Britain gave a splendid programme in the assembly hall. The numbers included songs, dances, banjo selections and skeiches. Nicholas Sullivan was chairman of the committee in charge.

AMERICAN NOTE MAY HELP THE REPARATION EXPERTS

New Proposal Suggests a Revision in Time of Payments on the American Army of Occupation Costs—The News Caused Quite a Sensation in the French Press and in Circles Close to the Reparations Committee—Experts Themselves Are Treating the Note With the Greatest Discretion.

PARIS, May 20.—(AP)—The reparations conference, now in its fifteenth week, took on a more optimistic tone today with announcement that a memorandum had been received from Washington through the American embassy for the two unofficial American delegates, Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan.

The note, which Edwin C. Wilson, secretary of the embassy, talked over with a special committee of experts charged with receiving reparations from countries not officially represented, was the new feature of today's proceedings.

The news caused quite a sensation in the French press and in circles close to the reparations committee, but the experts themselves treated it with greatest discretion.

"If the American government is ready to contribute its mite to a final paring down of the shares of the creditors in reparations payments to meet the annuities suggested by Mr. Young things will be easier," was the only comment made but whether any actual figures were given in the note the experts would not disclose.

During the day the experts of the creditor countries continued their study of the German conditions and they hope to be able to talk over their conclusions with the German delegates tomorrow.

The special committee, presided over by Commendatore Pirelli of Italy, which heard Mr. Wilson, the embassy secretary, concerning the American note probably will report to the different delegations tomorrow morning. If the committee of Sir Josiah Stamp, which includes Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation, meets during the day, it will thus be able to take cognisance of what Washington has to offer.

UNITED STATES MAY CUT CLAIM AGAINST GERMANY

WASHINGTON, May 20—(AP)—Reduction by the United States of its claim against Germany for expenses of the army of occupation was considered a possibility in official circles tonight if the other allies agree to make a similar cut in their claims.

The decisions on the entire reparations problem which have so far been reached by government officials, including those at the conference President Hoover held Sunday night with executive department officials and congressional leaders, have merely been in the nature of anticipating questions which will necessitate the shaping of a policy by the American government. It was emphasized in high government circles today there has so far been no change in the American policy on the question of reparations. The attitude which it is believed this government would take in the event the anticipated questions arise has been made known to the American representatives, who do not represent the Washington government officially, at the meetings of the experts on reparations in Paris.

At present the principal decision made by officials here has been that, if the other allied nations agree to reduce their claims for occupation costs of their armies on the Rhine, this government will probably feel called upon to do likewise. The amount of this reduction is not yet known, but Secretary Stimson of the state department suggested that conclusions might be drawn from the fact that the other allies have approximately ten per cent of their claims still outstanding. Only about 30 per cent of the American claims for army costs have been paid but Secretary Stimson intimated that the United States would be willing to cancel a proportional amount of its outstanding claim of $203,667,110.75 if the other allies should see fit to cancel a part of theirs.

In the other category of American claims against Germany, those included in awards of the mixed claims commission and amounting on September 1, 1928, to $143,777,734.84, the secretary said the general feeling was that a reduction of Germany's annual payments would be acceptable to the United States if the other nations agreed to such a cut, and provided the percentage of distribution among the allied and associated powers remains the same. He emphasized, however, that in this category, there would be no reduction in the total but that the amounts collected annually by each country would be smaller and the payments would be spread over a longer period of years.

Secretary Stimson added that from the present reports the experts probably would make recommendations on both the total amount Germany will be asked to pay and on the amount of each annual payment, thus establishing a definite length of time over which the payments would extend. Should the committee recommend that amounts Germany is now paying are above its capacity, he noted that a smaller division of the sums would have to be evolved.

The secretary of state said the actual effect of such a plan would at most be a slight postponement of payment of some of the American claims but not any reduction of the claims.

FLOOD WATERS SPREAD OVER ABOUT 50,000 ACRES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 20.—(AP) — While flood waters were spreading over 50,000 acres of farm land in Dunklin county, Missouri, near Kennett, the board of Mississippi levee commissioners met at Greenville, Miss., today, to urge emergency precautionary measures at the Mounds Landing levee on the Mississippi.

A break in the St. Francis levee near Kennett occurred early today and water tonight poured through a gap more than 200 feet wide. Much of the overflowed land was in crops, which were ruined.

Two score persons were made homeless, but because the break had threatened for several days the residents had ample time to reach higher points.

The levee commissioners, meeting in special session, passed a resolution asking President Hoover to rescind an order that prevented convicts from working on government projects.

Governor Theo. G. Bilbo of Mississippi has offered 300 Parchman prison convicts to aid in strengthening the Mounds Landing dyke, where the most disastrous break of the 1927 flood occurred, but his offer could not be accepted because of federal regulations. The resolution asked that the regulations be set aside for the emergency.

VIEWS ON INVESTIGATION OF SO-CALLED POWER TRUST

BOSTON, May 20—(AP)—Henry C. Attwill, chairman of the department of public utilities today expressed fear that enactment of a measure to investigate the so-called power trust in this state migh result in the postponement of action on a bill to permit municipalities to take over all or parts of lighting plants. He gave the ways and means committee of the house his views on the proposed investigation.

Attwill said the bill providing for the taking of the plants was very beneficial. Enemies of the bill might be studied by the committee investigating the activities of the power interests, he said. Such delay would be harmful, Attwill claimed.

He did not give wholehearted support to the proposed investigation. Attwill said, "this resolve might be beneficial." At least it might make people ashamed and that has a tendency to restrain them." He doubted if the $25,000 appropriation called for in the measure would finance a suitable investigation.

ARCHED EYEBROWS LED TO ARREST OF TWO GIRLS

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., May 20.—(AP)—Arched eyebrows proved the undoing of two girls arrested at Moorestown today wearing boys' clothing. They were committed to the Burlington county jail for ten days pending investigation.

The girls, Josephine Wodyla, 20, and Anna Godzky, 19, told Moorestown police they were bound for Philadelphia in search of work, having left New York because "time were dull there." They said they came originally from Manchester, N. H., and wore boys' clothing "to make traveling easier."

Policeman Walter Erickson, who arrested the young women, said their arched eyebrows had aroused his suspicion.

PLANE WILL ATTEMPT TO "BOMB" TWO COAST CITIES

WRIGHT FIELD, Dayton, O., May 20.—(AP)—New York, Atlantic City and other eastern points will get a glimpse of Ohio's war of the air tomorrow night and the rest of the country will hear about it first hand when a giant Keystone bomber accompanied by a plane equipped for radio broadcasting, will set out from here to "bomb" the two coast cities.

The plane is scheduled to make a non-stop re-fueling flight, speeding to New York to drop imaginary bombs on the metropolis, taking a side trip to Atlantic City, then returning to Wright field. The radio broadcast plane, an army transport, will fly with the bomber and broadcast its activity on two wave lengths, 750 meters and 50 meters.

A re-fueling plane also will accompany the bomber. At Bolling field, Washington, the bomber will be refueled from the accompanying plane and it will receive another stock of fuel while aloft at Bolling field on the return trip.

Uncle Sam's war game came down to earth tonight as 500,000 imaginary soldiers "dug in" along the shores of Darby Creek, near Columbus, in preparation for the joint air ground maneuvers which start tomorrow.

CLAIMS AN ENDURANCE RECORD FOR AIRPLANES

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla., May 20—(AP)—An endurance record for airplanes powered by 90-horsepower motors was claimed tonight by Laurie Yonge, veteran Jacksonville aviator, who remained aloft in his monoplane "Hotsy Totsy" for 25 hours and five minutes, before bringing it to a landing on the beach here shortly after noon today.

The previous mark for planes powered with similar motors was made by Miss Eleanor Smith of New York. She remained in the air for 13 hours and 19 minutes.

In establishing his mark, Yonge successfully combatted two thunderstorms which forced him to deviate from his monotonous route over the beach. He was compelled to fly as far as Palatka, in the central part of the state late yesterday to avoid inclement weather.

The second storm caught the aviator just before he finished his flight, with his fuel tanks virtually empty. Fighting choppy winds and rain squalls, he kept his ship aloft until he had less than a gallon of gas left.

MORALES INAUGURATED PRESIDENT OF CUBA

HAVANA, May 20.—(AP) — General Gerardo Machado y Morales at noon today took the oath as president of Cuba for a term of six years, to which office he was elected without opposition. He had just completed a term of four years in the executive position.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

HANKOW, China, May 20—(AP)—General Ho Ying Ching, chief of staff of the nationalist army, made at a banquet last evening what was considered as nothing less than a declaration of war in speaking of the situation with regard to Marshal Feng Yo-Hsiang.

PEKING, China, May 20—(AP)—Police and military authorities have taken extraordinary measures here and elsewhere to prevent any untoward incident in connection with the removal of the body of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, founder of the Chinese republic, from the ancient capital of Peking to the new national capital of Nanking.

LYON, France, May 20—Edouard Herriot, minister of education, who announced his retirement as mayor of this city when his party was beaten in the recent elections, yesterday was re-elected mayor, much to his surprise. The socialists who had a majority on the council refused to vote out of pique, claiming that since in the past they always had given confidence to M. Herriot his party ought now to support their candidate.

READY TO HOP OFF ON A PROJECTED 4,700 MILE FLIGHT TO ROME

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 20—(AP)—Preparations of Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey, his navigator, to hop off in the monoplane "Green Flash" tomorrow on a projected flight to Rome, were halted tonight by reports of bad weather along the ocean pathway.

Advices which Williams received from Dr. James H. Kimball meteorologist at the New York weather bureau, said that storm, fog and generally unfavorable weather would prevail for at least 24 hours.

The fliers, who arrived here late today from the Teterboro airport, N. J., indicated no attempt would be made to take off until conditions were favorable. Fueling of the plane, which was begun earlier tonight, was halted and the craft housed in a hangar.

MISSING LINK SUPPLIED IN HUNTINGTON CASE

HARTFORD, May 20—(AP)—County Detective Edward J. Hickey, seeking additional evidence to give further support to his theory that Walter Treadway Huntington, 21 year old Harvard junior found dead in a lot two miles from his Windsor home early May 8, committed suicide, belatedly accounted today for another hour the youth's last days.

His informant, Miss Catherine K. Cassidy, stenographer for the California Fruit Growers' exchange, this city, not only supplied one of the missing links, but also told the detective that young Huntington was in such good humor that he could not have destroyed himself, but had been murdered. Her story refuted statements attributed by Hickey to the Huntington family that the student's visit on the Saturday preceding the shooting was expected and gave rise again to conjectures as to his desire to eliminate such elements in his home life as he opposed.

Hickey, in the early days of the investigation, had learned in Cambridge that Huntington had left for his Windsor home early May 4. He had also learned that the youth's friend, Burdette Williams, of Windsor, an employe of the fruit exchange, had gone that day to Cambridge to visit the student. Hickey said that though informed of the impending visit, young Huntington had nevertheless evaded his friend and had made a hurried trip to Windsor. The detective admitted, however, that he could not ascertain whether the telegram sent Huntington by Williams had been opened by the student.

Miss Cassidy said today that Huntington arrived about 3 o'clock on that Saturday, May 4, at her office, and demanded, in a tone of great urgency, to see his friend. When Miss Cassidy told him Williams had gone to Cambridge, Huntington expressed surprise. Then he telephoned from the fruit exchange office to his home, making several futile efforts to get his family on the wire. Eventually, Mrs. Burns, the housekeeper, answered and told him his mother, sister and brother had left. Miss Cassidy overheard Huntington tell the family housekeeper that he wanted one of the family cars sent to him in Hartford, as he had a distaste for riding in a crowded street car.

Mrs. Burns was unable to accede to the request, and Huntington remained in the fruit exchange office chatting with Miss Cassidy, who said she had known him for four years, the time she has been in her present position.

At 4 o'clock, when Miss Cassidy closed the office, Huntington assisted her to her street car because she had many bundles and on leaving her said he was taking the street car to Windsor. She never saw him again.

"He told me he had exchanged letters with Burdette about that visit to Cambridge and that there must have been some mixup in their plans," Miss Cassidy declared. She added: "He was in such good humor, being his usual self, that I can't believe he committed suicide. He wasn't the kind of boy who would do such a thing. He must have been murdered."

TO TEST INJUNCTION PROHIBITING PICKETING

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 20—(AP)—Test of an injunction prohibiting striking textile workers from picketing the highways was delayed today, as Chancellor Miller set trials of fifty strikers on contempt charges for Wednesday.

The fifty strikers are charged with contempt for alleged violation of an injunction granted the American Glanzstoff and American Bemberg restraining the more than 5,000 striking employes from interfering with the operations of the plants.

Trials of 15 had been set for today, but nearly two score strikers arrested on various charges last week were identified and charged with contempt of court. A number of strikers given a hearing last week were ordered released because they were unidentified. Contempt charges were brought by anti-strike leaders who allege picketing violates terms of the injunction.

Announcement was made by William F. Kelly, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, and Major Paul Divine, counsel for the union, that the strikers would take legal steps against the textile corporations and Adjutant General W. C. Boyd, who is directing national guardsmen acting as state police in maintaining order in the strike area.

House May Vote on Debenture Proposal

House Members of Conference Committee Agreed to Suggestion Made by Senate Members.

WASHINGTON, May 20—(AP)—A roll call vote in the house on the export debenture plan was seen as a possibility today after members of the farm relief conference committee from that branch had agreed to the suggestion of the senate conferees, to ask their party leaders if such a vote might not be authorized.

Varying views were expressed immediately on whether the house should undertake such a vote because of the attitude there that the senate had no right to initiate the debenture section, and indications were that the strongest inclination was to permit an early ballot in order to convince the senate that the plan was not desired by the house.

More definite information is expected to be laid before the conference committee tomorrow. This committee is attempting to compose the differences in the farm bills passed separately by the two congressional sections.

At the outset of today's meeting, senate members were confronted with what amounted to an ultimatum from house members that no sections of the two bills would be considered until the debenture controversy had been settled. The senators had hoped to dispose of all the minor differences first and then try to agree concerning the debenture section, but the house members flatly declined to arbitrate until satisfaction had been given their view that debentures must not be included in the farm measure.

Senate members countered with a contention that enactment of the farm bill would be seriously threatened unless house leaders permitted a vote in that branch directly on the debenture section. The house has never taken such a vote, the debenture plan having been barred from consideration as a part of the farm relief bill there on a point of order.

FAIL OF AGREEMENT ON CUT OF TARIFF ON SUGAR

WASHINGTON, May 20—(AP)—Failure of a divided federal tariff commission to agree on figures to support its recommendation for a reduction of the tariff on sugar was disclosed today in a report sent to the senate as the reason why Calvin Coolidge declined to act on the matter in the middle of his presidential campaign in 1924.

In a letter sent to the three commissioners who filed a report with him suggesting a reduction from 2.202 cents a pound to 1.54 Coolidge declared "there was a wide conflict of opinion within the commission over the questions at issue."

Two of the six members of the commission had submitted a minority report, and one member took no part in the inquiry.

"These differences," Coolidge said, "appear to be based on different methods of use and different interpretations of the cost and other data collected by the commission."

In another statement, which was made a part of the report, Coolidge promised, however, that a "change in conditions might warrant a reconsideration" of his decision to postpone action indefinitely, "if through decreased production, or other conditions, the world market should be relieved of the weight of sugar now pressing upon it."

WALL STREET STUNNED BY MARKET'S BEHAVIOR

NEW YORK, May 20—(AP)—Prices of railroad shares started to soar on the New York stock exchange today in a frenzied outburst of buying which followed the decision of the U. S. supreme court upsetting the low valuation which the interstate commerce commission had placed upon the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad, but the rally was suddenly checked in the last hour of trading by a mysterious outbreak of selling in the industrial and public utility stocks.

Extreme gains of $4 to $22.50 a share in the railroad group were quickly cut in half, and a whole flock of other issues crashed $5 to $20 a share below last week's final quotations. Based on The Associated Press index of 50 leading industrials, the net reaction was even more severe than the break which accompanied the first serious flurry of the year in call money rates on March 25.

Sales today fell just below 4,000,000 shares, as against nearly 6,000,000 on March 25 and more than 8,000,000 on March 26 when the market broke wide open and then staged a spectacular rally.

Wall street was stunned by the market's behavior, as there was nothing in the day's news to account for the liquidating movement.

LORD ROSEBERY DEAD; FORMER PREMIER OF ENG.

EPSOM, England, May 21. (Tuesday)—(AP)—Lord Rosebery, statesman, author and sportsman, died at 2:42 a. m., today.

The illness of the 82-year-old former premier began with a cold on Friday and his temperature rose alarmingly.

After a meteoric career as prime minister in 1894-95, the earl had been for thirty years completely retired from political activity.

During this period he had devoted himself to literary labors, orations and social functions. He was the only prime minister to win the Derby while in office and had won that race three times.

The loss of a son in the world war caused him great grief. He suffered so from insomnia that he had been accustomed to make midnight drives in his carriage with postillions in an endeavor to quiet his mind.

Law Enforcement Commission Named

George W. Wickersham Has Been Selected by President Hoover as Chairman of the Commission.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP) — George W. Wickersham, attorney general in the Taft administration, has been selected by President Hoover as chairman of the national law enforcement commission and will have associated with him nine other lawyers and one woman representing all of the major geographical divisions of the country.

In announcing the personnel of the commission late today, white house officials said Mr. Wickersham would call the group together here later in the week to map out a preliminary program for the work which is expected to last upwards of two years and which is regarded by the chief executive as the most important task confronting his administration.

Heading the list of members of the commission is Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson administration, and chairman of the national crime commission. The other members are:

Frank J. Loesch, vice president of the Chicago crime commission; Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard law school; William I. Grubb, federal judge for the northern district of Alabama; Monte M. Lemann, president of the Louisiana Bar association; William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, United States circuit judge; Kenneth R. MacKintosh, former chief justice of the Washington state supreme court; Paul J. McCormick, federal judge for the southern district of California; Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, Va. and Miss Ada L. Comstock, president of Radcliffe college, Cambridge, Mass.

Announcement was made that appointment to the commission had been tendered to Associate Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, of the United States supreme court; Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state; Owen J. Roberts, of Philadelphia, of government counsel in the celebrated oil prosecutions, and Benjamin Cordoza, judge of the New York state court of appeals.

Because of other comments these four men declined appointment. The president had hoped to have Justice Stone as chairman of the commission, but unofficial information is that the jurist concurred in the view of Chief Justice Taft and other associates that the highest court should not have representation on the commission.

In making his selections, Mr. Hoover did not name a recognized leader of the drys or the wets although there had been suggestions from some of the leaders of the prohibition forces that he do so.

In prosecuting its work the commission will seek the cooperation of state enforcement agencies which have been studying reorganization of state judicial processes and which have prepared a number of recommendations to the state legislatures. The commissioners also will seek aid from the American Bar association; the national crime commission and other bodies which have had experience along this line of work.

ATTACK ON "POWER TRUSTS" BY SENATOR NORRIS, NEB.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 20—(AP)—During an attack on the "power trusts" today, Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, declared the federal trade commission ought to reopen its investigation of the ownership of the San Diego Tribune by going "to the bottom" of the holdings of Ira L. Copley, publisher of the paper, in the Insull utility organizations.

Norris read a telegram from a man in San Francisco whose name he said he could not reveal although he knew him well, in which it was declared the commission "only skimmed" the Copley matter.

The telegram declared that Copley still owned $5,000,000 worth of securities in the Insull companies and that when he wanted to sell a bond issue on his paper, he turned the sale over to W. W. Armstrong and Company, of Aurora, Illinois, declared by Norris to be "regional distributor in Illinois for utility securities."

The telegram added that Copley "overlooked" this interest when he appeared before the commission.

"It's peculiar," Norris said, "that Copley overlooked the $5,000,000 and that his bonds were handled in Aurora, Illinois".

TARIFF BILL DEBATE NEARING END IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 20—(AP)—General debate on the tariff bill neared an end in the house today with democrats again opposing the proposed increased duties on manufactures and opponents of an increase in the sugar tarif fadding further protests.

Tentative plans call for closing debate tomorrow or Wednesday, after which another republican conference will be called to agree upon a special rule to guide the measure through the amendment stage. Before the house met today, the majority members of the ways and means committee gathered to consider amendments to the bill suggested by members who are working for higher rates than those provided in the bill. Sub-committees were prepared to study those amendments affecting schedules assigned to them during the writing of the bill and they are expected to report to the fifteen republican committeemen tomorrow.

Should any of the proposals meet with favor, they will be offered as committee amendments on the floor.

SUPREME COURT DECISION FAVORABLE TO RAILROADS

Adverse to the I. C. C.'s Method in Valuing the Roads—Court Decides That the Commission in Its Valuation Work Must Observe Such Elements as the Present Cost of Construction or Reproduction—Court Was Divided, Five to Three, in the O'Fallon Decision, Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone Dissenting—Justice Butler Did Not Participate.

WASHINGTON, May 20—(AP)—The result of years of labor by the interstate commerce commission in valuing railroads for rate making and other purposes was seriously impaired, if not entirely swept aside today by the supreme court.

The highest tribunal, dividing five to three, with Justice Butler not participating, held that the commission in its valuation work must observe such elements as the present cost of construction or reproduction.

The controversy reached the supreme court through an appeal by the St. Louis and O'Fallon railroad, nine-mile coal line in southern Illinois. It sought to have set aside an order issued by the interstate commerce commission calling for a refund of a part of its earnings, coming under what is known as the recapture clause of the transportation act, permitting railroads to retain one-half of their earnings in excess of six per cent, and requiring them to pay over to the government the other half. The case was based primarily on the validity of the methods used by the commission in valuing railroad property.

The opinion of the court was delivered by Justice McReynolds after a quoting of the law which requires the commission to "give due consideration to all elements of value recognized by the law of the land for rate-making purposes" and of the court's former decision on the subject of valuations for rate-making purposes. The opinion stated that among the elements "is the present cost of construction or reproduction."

The commission had carefully refrained, the decision said, "from stating that any consideration whatever was given to present or reproduction cost in estimating the value of the carrier's property."

The court, however, reached the conclusion that substantially no consideration had been given.

"In the exercises of its proper function this court has declared the law of the land concerning valuations for rate-making purposes," the opinion stated. "The commission disregarded the approved rule and has already failed to discharge the definite duty imposed by congress.

"Unfortunately, proper heed was denied the timely admonition of the minority (of the commission) that 'the function of this commission is not to act as an arbiter in economics, but as an agency of congress, to apply the law of the land to facts developed of record in matters by congress to our (the commission's) jurisdiction.'"

The question on which the commission divided, as stated by the court was "when seeking to ascertain the value of railroad property for recapture purposes, must it give consideration to current, or reproduction costs?"

"The weight to be accorded thereto is not the matter before us," it added. "No doubt there are some, perhaps many, railroads the ultimate value of which should be placed far below the sum necessary for reproduction. But congress has directed that values shall be fixed upon a consideration of present costs along with all of her pertinent facts: and this mandate must be obeyed."

The court did not indicate the weight to be given reproduction value, but it was the opinion of some of those familiar with the commission's valuation work that much of it must be revised, and that while the decision was in a recapture case it would affect all valuations of railroad property by the commission, including those for rate-making purposes.

Justice Holmes, Brandeis and Stone dissented. The latter two justices read statements explaining their contrary views but Justice Holmes merely assented to Brandeis' opinion.

"As was pointed out in the case of Smyth versus Ames," Justice Brandeis said "we are dealing with a legislation question which can be 'more easily determined by a commission composed of persons whose special skill, observation and experience qualifies them to so handle great problems of transportation as to do justice both to the public and to those whose money has been used to construct and maintain highways for the benefit of the people.'

"The difficulties by which the commission was confronted when requested to apply the evidence of reproduction cost can hardly be imagined," he said, explaining "the evidence was of such a character that it did not satisfactorily establish what would have been the current cost of reproduction during the recapture periods."

Another obstacle to applying the evidence, he declared, was a lack of evidence to show to what extent, if any, higher reproduction cost in the recapture period "implied a value higher than that theretofore prevailing.

"The commission believed it could act only on proof x x x and that to assign, under the circumstances, any weight to the evidence of reconstruction cost would be mere conjecture."

Justice Stone approved Brandeis' judgment and added that evidence that the commission gave consideration to present reproduction costs "appears not only from its own statement but from the fact that it gave full effect to increased current market values in determining the value of land and to additions and betterments.

"Had the commission not turned aside to point out in its report the economic fallacies of the use of reproduction cost as a standard of value for rate-making purposes, which it nevertheless considered and to some extent applied, I suppose it would not have occurred to anyone to question the validity of its order.

"In any case, in view of the statement of the commission that it considered all the elements of value brought to its attention by the carrier, I should not have supposed that we could rightly set aside the present order without some consideration of the probative value of the evidence of present reproduction costs which the commission discussed at length in its report."

SECOND NIGHT ALOFT FOR RE-FUELING ENDURANCE

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 20.—(AP)—The single motored Ryan brougham monoplane Fort Worth, soared into its second night with two hopeful civilian pilots aboard determined to topple the refueling endurance record of 150 hours 40 minutes and 15 seconds established by the army monoplane Question Mark. The ship, entirely rebuilt for the venture took off here Sunday at 11:33 a. m.

The Fort Worth's chief pilot is Reg L. Robbins and the co-pilot is Jim Kelly, both residents here.

Floodlights were kept burning last night and tonight at Municipal airport in order to guide the pilots. The plane visited the airport frequently Sunday and made regular trips over the field through the night.

The fliers are carrying flares for use in case of a forced landing after dark beyond the limits of the flying field.

Until the ship lands, two officials will be on duty to keep the ground record of the flight. A comprehensive log is being kept in which sightings of the plane are being recorded with remarks about altitude and other data.

The first refueling contact was made early this morning, 110 gallons of gasoline being transferred with oil and food. In notes dropped in the forenoon, Robbins said he had been sick everytime Kelly had been at the controls and requested that he be sent some medicine, explaining that he always becomes ill when in a plane he is not flying himself.

Under the rules that apply to such tests, the fliers must exceed the record by one hour to break it.

NOMINATIONS FOR BRITISH PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS

LONDON, May 20.—(AP)— Nomination day for the British parliamentary elections May 30 anticipated today in seven cases the suffrages of the nation.

Four conservative candidates and three nationalists, including "Tax Pay" O'Connor, "father of the house of commons," were returned unopposed to the next parliament by the simple act of filing their nomination papers.

Conservatives jestingly claimed a "plurality of one" in the new house and took it as an augury of success May 30.

Those elected by acclamation included the speaker of the house, A. E. Fitzroy, conservative candidate for Daventry, Northamptonshire, and the nationalist, T. P. (Tay Pay) O'Connor, who will continue to represent the Scotland division of Liverpool. He first represented this constituency in 1885.

David Lloyd George, liberal leader, was the only one of the three party chieftains to attend his own nomination. He is standing again in Carnarvon district, Wales, and is opposed by J. Bowen Davies, K. C., conservative, and Thomas A. Rhys, laborite.

REPAIRING ENGINES OF THE GRAF ZEPPELIN

CUERS, France, May 20—(AP)—Engine repairs to the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin were well under way today, with the airship's crew and mechanics working day and night to get her ready for the return to Friedrichshafen.

Captain Lehmann today said that all plans depended upon Dr. Hugo Eckener, who is expected to return from Friedrichshafen Wednesday morning. There will be no trial flight. The Zeppelin will start direct for home once she is out of the hangar.

Lieutenant Commander Vincent Clarke, U. S. navy observer, Sir Hubert Wilkins, British explorer, and all the German passengers will be aboard when the Graf Zeppelin returns to Friedrichshafen.

The gorilla "Susi" seems to be the only passenger making any money off of the trip. She was taken to Nice for exhibition at the zoo, but was brought back, crated and shipped to Friedrichshafen by rail today. There she will be shown to the curious at two gold marks a look.

CONTEST FOR SITE FOR NEW VETERANS' HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, May 20—At the hearing today at the Veterans' bureau on the site for the new veterans' hospital, representatives from New Haven, Hartford, Putnam, Willimantic, Glastonbury and Wallingford urged that the site might be in their locality. Gen. Hinds made it known more than 50 sites had been examined by engineers and that the limit of within approximately 20 miles of Hartford but some of the sites urged today out of the running. Apparently the real contest is between Wallingford and Newington or Windsor, although the Veterans' bureau makes no announcement. Gen. Hinds called attention to the fact that the Cape Cod district of Massachusetts would be included in the new hospital patients and its convenience must also be considered. An early announcement of the site is expected.

LOCAL MAN FINED $100 AND COSTS IN COLUMBIA COURT

WILLIMANTIC, May 20—In the Columbia town court this afternoon, Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins imposed a fine of $100 and costs on Paul Beladeau of 411 Prospect street, this city. Seventy-five dollars of the fine was remitted, however, by the court. Beladeau was arrested early Sunday evening by State Policeman Charles Dalley of the Stafford Springs barracks for driving a car while under the influence of liquor and pleaded guilty to the charge when presented by Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke.

The case of William Ensling of Norwich, charged with driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and while having no operator's license in his possession, was continued in police court today by Judge Frank H. Foss until next Monday morning upon the request of the accused. Ensling was placed under arrest early Sunday morning. He is employed at the Mansfield State Training school and hospital.

Disposition of Three Other Cases

There were three other cases before the court for disposition. Frank Gwozds of Chapman street was arraigned on charge of intoxication and assault upon his wife, Mrs. Mary Gwozds. He pleaded guilty and was given a 30 day sentence in the county jail at Brooklyn on each count. Warren E. Graham of 469 Edgewood street Hartford, was fined $3 and costs for defective brakes. The other case concerned an accident on Main street Sunday afternoon near Mansfield avenue. John Olszewski of 19 Yellow Row, this city, being fined $10 and costs for failure to give the right of way. Olszewski was the driver of an Overland Whippet proceeding in a westerly direction on the main thoroughfare in the rear of which was a Buick sedan driven by Joseph Maziarz of 31 Cooley avenue, Middletown. The other car that figured in the mishap was a Pontiac sedan operated in an easterly direction by Napoleon J. Rodrigue of 835 Park street, Hartford. The evidence in court indicated that the car driven by the local man occupied a portion of the road nearer the left than the right side and stopped when a collision appeared to be imminent with the Pontiac. This was during the heavy shower and the road was slippery at the time. In an attempt to avoid striking the Overland, Rodrigue pulled to his left, at the same time applying his brakes. His car skidded and struck the Buick at practically a right angle. The Pontiac was the more badly damaged. Olszewski pleaded not guilty. The witnesses in the case were Rodrigue Maziarz, Walter Lasky of Middletown, Wilfred Bernard of Hartford, Officer Hurley who made the investigation and the accused himself.

JEWETT CITY

SILK FINISHING PLANT POSSIBLE AT ACCO MILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 20.—Late last fall, with a winter ahead the weather of which was all uncertain, Contractor E. E. Gilbert turned the first sod and began the heavy granite underpinning for the Acco addition. Today the new mill is running, sixty operatives being employed in the upper floor and this number is receiving steady additions, as the new machinery is placed in operation. Those actually in service today include warpers, winders, quillers and slashers. In the north weave shed, 200 of the new looms which replace those taken out, are in operation, with the management finding much satisfaction in the excellency of the first finished production.

There is a possibility that within the next few weeks plans will be underway to install a silk finishing plant on the main floor of the new mill. Although not included in the original plan, it appears as a development to the advantage of both the officials and operatives. All warping and winding machinery in the old warping room is now being transferred to the upper floor of the new part, and within a very short time all rayon yarn in process of warping will be handled in the new mill.

Trout, appeared on the home menu of the writers for this column Monday. Three fine ones from three different Griswold streams, and from three local masters of the rod and reel.

BIRTHDAY MAY BASKET HUNG TO A. A. DAVIS, 87

The visiting party accepted with much pleasure the invitation to come in. Music and dancing, with a lunch of sandwiches and cake, went to make up the pleasant features of the evening call.

Among those present were friends and relatives from Fitchville, Voluntown, Danielson and Jewett City.

Many congratulations were received by the aged soldier and as many were the very sincere wishes, that yet again, he might answer the bell to usher in the same merry company.

ASHLAND BOYS' BAND TO PLAY IN NORWICH

P. W. Chase, who looks after the marching drill of the Ashland boys' band, tells this of their past successes and speaks of their jobs to come: Everyone is pretty well agreed that the Ashland club boys' band made quite some hit on their first parade job, the date of the dedication of the new St. Mary's parochial school Sunday, May 5th, with thousands of people looking on, hundreds from out of town. If the boys did not play a note they would have made a favorable impression with their striking uniforms, but they did play and in a manner most surprising to the hundreds who had not heard them on previous concert occasions. It required considerable effort to train these boys to march and play at the same time, with only a week for preparation, but they came through and did a marching job the equal of many experienced bands and there is no question but that they will be in demand from now on for parade events. As a matter of fact they have already been forced to turn down one very flattering parade job for Memorial day due to the fact that the boys are already booked by the local post of the American Legion to do the parade job here May 30th. In addition the boys will play at the memorial services at Finn's opera house Sunday, May 26th. The boys are also booked for two concert jobs during June. One at Uncas-On-Thames under the auspices of the Elks of Norwich and the other at a luncheon of Norwich Rotary club. Within the past week three instruments have been added to the band, making a total of 29. The boys are putting a lot of effort into this band business and are busy with new numbers for both concert and street work and within a short time will have mastered some pleasing novelty numbers. It is planned to hold band concerts at Ashland park during the summer and a bandstand for this purpose will probably be erected soon.

One man got what was coming to him when he told his woman caller that he "didn't buy books on Sunday." "What," said she, as she noticed a Sunday newspaper on the stairs inside, "You can spend all your money for Sunday papers, yet haven't a cent to buy a book of me about the bible."

She and her sister Alice, were members of the Congregational church choir here at one time.

DANIELSON

PLANS FOR IMPRESSIVE ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 20—It was stated today that an effort will be made to have an impressive observance of Armistice day in Danielson this year. For several years past Danielson has sent its delegations to various other eastern Connecticut communities in which the day was being observed in an impressive manner, and for that reason no such formal observance has been held here as Legion members desire.

So this early in the year attention is being given to ways and means of carrying out one of the best Armistice day observances that Danielson has had since those who were under the colors during the World war returned to their homes. During the past few months Leo J. L'Homme post of the American Legion has recruited its membership from the many eligibles in this and nearby territory. With its greater strength it will be in a position to worthily observe that 11th anniversary of the signing of the armistice on November 11th next.

Definite plans have not as yet been made, but the general plan is for a parade in which it is hoped to have many visiting members of the Legion and Legion auxiliaries and a formal program of exercises having to do with the great event observed.

This year Legion members are closely co-operating again with other patriotic bodies for the observance of Memorial day, and will have a part in the exercises here and at Brooklyn, with the possibility of being represented at other observances in this vicinity.

May Build Another Highway.

The taking of some measurements in Broad street tends to indicate that the state highway department still has in mind the construction of another trunk line highway, starting out from the present route to Norwich at the north end of Davis park and running southerly through Broad street, through the Green Hollow road and into the town of Plainfield. This road has been talked of for several years past, but some opposition to its construction developed here because of talk of what was represented as the state's plan to turn back several miles of the present trunk line between Danielson and the Plainfield line to the town, provided the Green Hollow route was built. A prime object in building the proposed Green Hollow route was to divert a great amount of traffic from passing through the business section of Danielson, where there is usually congestion, and travelers slowed down.

Elected Regent of D. A. R.

Miss M. J. Mendell is the newly elected regent of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R. Miss Amelia B. Hutchins is the new vice regent and Mrs. Arthur L. Cundall, recording secretary. Mrs. Maude Keech has been elected historian. Upon retiring from office after having completed her term as regent Lena C. Tripp was presented with an ex-regent's pin by the chapter, and in receiving it Mrs. Tripp expressed her appreciation. The chapter received reports on the recent sessions of the Continental Congress of the D. A. R. held in Washington from Mrs. A. L. Cundall, who was the delegate from the local chapter, from Miss M. J. Mendell, alternate, and from Mrs. E. H. Keach, and each of these women presented the chapter here with a lineage book. Annual reports show that Sarah Williams Danielson chapter had a successful year, which closed with a balance in the treasury. The hostesses for the last meeting were Mrs. A. L. Cundall, Mrs. Lillian A. Frissell, Mrs. Ida Law and Mrs. Henry W. Chapin.

Oil For Killingly's Roads.

It may be a revelation to the average citizen that the town of Killingly by itself applies 40,000 gallons of oil to its highways this spring. This amount is over and above the thousands of additional gallons that the state uses on trunk line highways within the limits of the town of Killingly. The state oils the five miles between Main street and Westcott road to the Rhode Island-Connecticut line, it oils the Waureagan trunk line route from Water street to the Killingly-Plainfield line, and it oils sections between Elmville and Attawaugan on the Putnam route as well as other stretches of state aid road in Killingly. It is likely that the total amount of oil applied to Killingly's roads this year will be in excess of 100,000 gallons.

Added to its other purchases and planned textile developments in southern states the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, with its original textile plant in this town, is reported as negotiating for the purchase of the new plant of the Connecticut Mills company at Albany-Decatur, Ala., where a number of former residents of Danielson are now employed. Whether there is any substantial background for this rumor could not be established here today. The Connecticut Mills has a fine new plant in the Alabama town, and its manufacturing efficiency has been steadily increasing during the past few months. The Goodyear company is operating some monster fabric plants in sections of the south not distant from Albany-Decatur, has recently bought another big plant at Cartersville, Ga., and is to increase the capacity of all its plants in that area.

Of the 47 students to be graduated from Killingly High school next month a number are to enter higher institutions of learning, some attending colleges in Connecticut and nearby states and some going to more distant points.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman M. Coulter of New Bedford have been guests of Mrs. Coulter's father, F. E. Bitgood, and other relatives here.

Sand neatly deposited in heaps along the edges of streets of the borough the past week, preparatory to oiling operations, was washed about by Sunday's heavy rain, but put back into piles by town workmen today. Oil for the streets is here and also the oiling tankers. The work is to start at once.

Pierre Chabot of Putnam was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to answer to a charge of failing to give a proper signal for a turn while operating his car at Attawaugan the past week. He was fined $5 and costs and appealed. Judge S. S. Russal appeared as his counsel. Chabot's car was in collision with another machine, the incident resulting in an order that he appear in court.

In the town of Pomfret southward from a point above the Haskell stand work is now underway on the construction of the state aid highway that is to run into Brooklyn and there connect with a new highway that has been built to Canterbury Green and is being extended southward from that point toward Newent.

The Brooklyn Fire district recently passed resolutions expressing appreciation of the district for the service rendered by the late Henry J. Burbank during the three decades he served the district in an official capacity.

Henry A. Desautels of Woonsocket returned to his home after visiting with friends here for a few days.

With good weather, this week will suffice to complete the surfacing of the Danielson-Brooklyn highway. Some fencing remains to be built and some attention given the shoulders of the new road.

When the recently organized Killingly high school band gives a concert this week the public will have an opportunity of hearing it for the first time. The usual weekly rehearsal was held today.

PUTNAM

PRESENT GREAT ROTARY MINSTRELS WITH SUCCESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 20—A capacity audience at the Bradley tonight saw the Greater Rotary Minstrels presented by the combined talent of the Putnam and Danielson Rotary clubs.

The large ladies chorus, snappy olio, witty sayings, new songs and jokes that made more than one in the audience blush as his name entered into the theme of the skag, all went to the success of the greatest amateur stage undertaking ever presented by any group in Putnam. The show opened with the song "Wedding Bells" sung by the chorus.

The laughs and roars commenced immediately upon the entry of the end men, the parts being taken by Warren Averill, Edwin Hill, Burdette Hopkins, Edgar Lunier, Alexander Maitland and William Sangster. The ladies stringed ensemble composed of Eleanor Irving, Dorothy Prince, Gertrude Werner and Katherine Lown delighted the audience with a number of the old favorite compositions of the sunny south.

William "Bill" Sangster of Danielson registered one of the best hits of the play with his unique and novel accordion presentation. Earl Winslow sang a vocal solo in which he was assisted by the Danielson Rotary quartette. Alexander Maitland, one of the black faced comedians in the role of "Al Jolson," came out with a new jazz song, that will perhaps be copyrighted by one of the local dance teams.

The audience held tight to their seats as a group of Rotarians presented their conception of Chicago's great underworld. The thud of an automatic and the cackling of other hand weapons was heard during the "Hot Air" fight which took place between the end men.

The chorus followed with the plantation number, "Down Among the Sugar Cane." A feature of the first part was Miss Betty Maitland's clever presentation, the specialty dance. Two other specialties, were Robert Bethel's and Fred Maryott's colored comic dance, "Soft Sho' Dance" and George Washington Shoe Polish.

The chorus again opened the second part of the show with the song, "Get Out and Get Under the Moon." William E. Wheaton of this city followed with a bass solo, which was highly received.

Mrs. E. L. Beebe of this city attired in the costume of an Indian maiden sang two songs. Her part of the programme was one of the best novelties of the evening. Edwin Hill of Danielson, the minstrel's leading "black man" brought the house to a roar when he presented his eccentric dance.

What happens when four ladies get on a golf course for the afternoon? This question was answered when Chet Irwin, professional at the Putnam country club, staged his number "On the Golf Course," in which Lillian Brown, Majorie Gaffney, Louisa Hill, Dorothy Lathrop, Ethel King and Alice Olsson took part.

The show was brought to a close with a wee bit of Erin as the curtain dropped to the strains of "My Wild Irish Rose," as sung by the ladies chorus.

Arthur Cordier appeared again in city court this morning to answer a charge of intoxication as preferred against him by State Officer John Murphy of Danielson barracks. Cordier plead guilty to the charge, but pleaded to Judge Geissler to exercise leniency in disposing of his case. Judge Geissler reminded Cordier of the numerous chances he had favored him in other apearances made by Cordier in court. He was sentenced to serve a sentence of 30 days in the county jail in Brooklyn. Cordier was arrested by Officer Murphy, Saturday afternoon. As usual the arresting officer was forced to exert physical strategy in placing the man under arrest. Following a tussle on Main street between the officer and Cordier, Cordier was taken away to the police station and held for hearing.

A Danielson man arrested last evening by Officer Joseph Page of the local police was fined $1 and costs on a charge of intoxication.

Miss Corinne M. Wilson is spending a few days at her home in this city after her graduation on Friday from the Fannie Farmer School of Cookery in Boston. Miss Wilson wrote the class song given at class day and graduation by the class of 29. She will return to Boston this week to complete her year's work as a junior at the New England conservatory of music where she has also studied the past year.

A little more than a month remains for aliens to establish their entry rights into the United States before the modified code of naturalization and deportation laws are made effective by the labor department of the national government. Since March the superior court authorities in Windham county have issued about 300 first papers to foreigners who have insured their residences in the county and nation, when the new system of laws take effect. Miss Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk of courts of Windham county, said today that only a few naturalization papers of the first stage were issued Saturday. Special issuing sessions have been held since the announcement of a new code of laws by the government, both in Putnam and in Willimantic, and in each instance scores of non-citizens made application for papers.

The small number who appeared Saturday is indicative of the fact that the deportation clause will affect few, if any, in Windham county. A wave of uneasiness prevailed among a great number of French-Canadians in this section of the county when notice of the new laws was first given, but this seems to have abated since the majority of papers issued were to subjects of British Canada.

Announcement of additional sessions of naturalization to be held in Putnam and Willimantic superior court offices will be given in newspapers in the near future.

PUTNAM'S MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAMME COMPLETED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 20—Plans for the solemn observance of Memorial day have been completed. The programme of the day is in charge of a general committee consisting of representatives of the city of Putnam, town of Putnam and all of the patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations in the city. A parade will be held in the morning, forming in Union square at 9.30. The marching columns will move to Main street, north to Providence, to Marshall street, to Woodstock avenue, to Church street, to Pomfret street over World war memorial bridge to Front street, to South Main, to Grove street. Thence the participating bodies will march to Grove street cemetery where the exercises will take place.

At the close of the speaking exercises in the cemetery the parade will re-form and counter march to the monument erected to the memory of the soldiers and sailors of the Civil war on Grove street. The national anthem will be played by the band, while the gathering pauses to salute the flag as it is hoisted to half staff. The parade will continue its counter march to Union square where disbandment will take place.

All graves of soldiers in the various cemeteries of the city will be decorated with flags by the decorating corps of the general committee. Arthur C. Keith is in charge of this work.

The parade formation is as follows: Platoon of police; Marshall A. D. McIntyre and aides; Albert J. Breault post, 1523, Veterans of Foreign wars drum corps; Headquarters Company 43rd. Div., National guard; Goodyear band; Anslem Mayotte post, 13, American Legion and auxiliary; St. Mary's Boy Scout band; Boy Scouts; school children; G. A. R. in automobiles, city and town officials.

The committee requests that the merchants display the sidewalk flags of the Shenandoah system and that the homes of the city have the flags flying.

The ever thinning lines of the Boys' of '61, to whom Memorial day is dedicated, consist of eight veterans of the G. A. R. in Putnam. The Grant campaign hats will be worn this year by Chauncey Morse, Richard Gibney, John Whitney, Anson A. Buchanan, Marcus Lewis, Thomas L. Taylor and Alfred LeValle, the surviving members of that great strife of 65 years ago. Nearly all are octogenarians and are in good health. They are now awaiting May 30th, when once again they will respond to the call to "march" in memory of the comrades who have gone on before them.

The Boys' of 1918 will don the kahki again on the Saturday of May 25 and on Memorial day in the sale of the poppy. The proceeds of this sale will be devoted to the brightening of the lives of their disabled buddies whose health was shattered on the battlefields of France in the last conflict. The general committee has approved and urges each individual to assist in this great work.

Harold A. Lyons of Hartford was in Putnam today.

Carl B. Kent and family of Meriden spent the week end with Mr. Kent's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Kent of Grove street.

John B. Byrne of the Hartford Connecticut Trust company returned to Hartford this morning after spending the week end at his home on Seward street.

A POLICY VINDICATED.

Whenever our Latin-American neighbors have asked for it, the United States has been willing to interpose, in a friendly way, in their affairs. It was practical altruism that contained many elements of danger and misunderstanding, but it has at length succeeded in enabling Chile and Peru to settle their difference of forty-six years standing over Tacna and Arica. The announcement contains a vindication of our policy and should be accepted as such.

More than once during the friendly attempts of the United States to bring Chile and Peru back to speaking terms and to settle the argument over the provinces lying between them, this nation's policy seemed on the point of only intensifying the differences. More than once there was demonstrated the theory that it is better to mind one's business at home than to meddle in the affairs of one's neighbors. For since 1922, when the representatives of Chile and Peru met in Washington and asked President Harding to arbitrate their dispute our efforts have been a series of ups and downs. Chile and Peru were led to agree to arbitration, which was good as far as it went, but difficulty arose when the arbitrators handed down a decision calling for a plebiscite to determine the nationality of the provinces in dispute. And the low level was reached when Gen. Pershing and his advisers endeavored to make acceptable to both parties the method of conducting the plebiscite. The United States was pictured as a bungler that was adding fuel to the flames of antagonism between Chile and Peru instead of cementing their friendship.

But last July, after many quiet and perservering attempts, former Secretary Kellogg induced the two countries to re-establish diplomatic relations. That much accomplished, he urged them to settle their difficulties by direct negotiations. These negotiations were begun last September, with our state department offering its good offices to facilitate them. The announcement now made that Chile and Peru have reached an agreement indicates the success of the negotiations, although success will only be certain with the ratification and signature of the treaty that Chile will take Arica and Peru will take Tacna. The course of this treaty may not run smooth, but the chances are that it will eventually lead to safety and security.

Bolivia, which had hoped to buy or otherwise obtain at least a portion of the provinces in dispute, thus giving her an outlet to the sea, is left as far away from the ocean as she ever was. But patience on the part of Bolivia may bring its reward. If she will stand quietly by until the national honor of Chile and Peru has been satisfied, she may find either or both willing to part with territory which has been the source of too much trouble already.

THE HOOVER METHOD.

Members of congress and other observers in Washington are discussing the so-called Hoover method of transacting public business, including the handling of political affairs. The Hoover method, it seems, is simply the method employed by skilled business executives.

The reports say that President Hoover refuses to allow himself to be troubled about details of administration and minor appointments. He is showing that will be his plan to determine policies, lay down principles, indicate objectives and explain purposes to be attained, but he leaves everything else to the heads of departments or bureaus. If those heads are efficient, alert and experienced, they do not need to bother the President with minor questions arising in the administration of public affairs. That the Hoover method is successful in business is certain. It is indeed the only method possible to competent executives with many important matters to occupy their attention. Doubts now said to exist in certain anxious minds in Washington have to do with the applicability of business methods to public affairs, loaded down as they are with the incubus of politics. But why should doubts exist? Should it be necessary for the President of the United States to devote hours daily to interviews with job seekers, with advocates of budget items or minor bills? Whatever the practice may have been, it is common sense and business sense to relegate all such matters to department heads and their assistants. This practice will, without doubt, cause some workers leaders to feel themselves slighted, but once the practice is understood, the great majority of persons interested in legislation, administration and appointments will agree to its wisdom. The President's time should be conserved for major problems and issues.

GOVERNOR FOR THE PHILIPPINES.

The appointment of Dwight F. Davis as governor general of the Philippines and his acceptance of the post seems to fill that important governmental position with one well qualified for the place. Mr. Davis is no stranger to Philippine problems for as secretary of war he was in close contact with affairs in these distant islands since their administration comes under the jurisdiction of the war department.

The Philippine islands are far greater in extent and in importance than many Americans, living thousands of miles away, realize. Upon their proper administration much depends, not only for the people of the islands themselves, but also for the continued good relations of the United States with the nations of the Far East. Mr. Davis made a distinguished record in demonstrating his executive ability as secretary of war and as assistant secretary of that department, so that there is indication of his fitness for the post to which he has been appointed. He served in the army overseas in the World war, receiving the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in France. Ever since he left college in 1900, and returned to his home in St. Louis, he has interested himself in public affairs, and one of his accomplishments was the establishment of public baths when he was a member of the St. Louis park commission, which laid out an elaborate system of public parks.

In the estimation of President Hoover, the office to which Mr. Davis has been appointed is one of major importance, and the President is to be congratulated upon being able to fill the post so adequately. Problems of administration as well as development of policies to be carried through call for diplomatic ability, common sense and firmness. The trade relations between the Philippine islands and the United States are always a matter of keen interest to both. The new governor general will be in a position to advance American interests as well as those of the islands.

STANDARDIZED CANNED GOODS.

There is pending before congress a bill which would amend the pure food and drug laws to the extent of authorizing the secretary of agriculture to establish a standard for canned goods, except meats and milk, which are already covered by legislation now in force. Where the standard established by the secretary was not met the proposed act would require the packer or distributor to label so that the consumer would know the exact condition of the contents. Substandards would be so marked, and any deception, whether innocent or intended, would be eliminated. This bill passed the house unanimously and was on the road to approval in the senate when Senator Copeland of New York objected that it would grant too much power to the secretary of agriculture.

The measure has the active support of national organizations of canners, wholesale grocers, consumers and farmers. It has been linked with the work of the special session of congress because it seeks to aid agriculture. The canners paid farmers more than $200,000,000 last year on a basis that does apply to ordinary farm crops. They contract for their supplies before the growing season begins and the grower knows in advance what he will receive for his peas, corn, tomatoes, pumpkins or other crops utilized in the canning industry.

It is argued that fixing a standard and adhering to it will result in a greater confidence on the part of the buying public and that as the demand for canned products increases it will be reflected back to the farm, where the raw materials are grown. The answer to Senator Copeland's objection to the authority that would be vested in the secretary of agriculture is found in the fact that congress could remedy the situation without delay, if the bill becomes a law and there were any abuse of power by the agricultural department.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, May 16—Senator Bingham of Connecticut was the principal speaker at the dedication of the new high school in Washington which is one of the finest in the country.

The senator took for his topic, Education as a Foundation for Citizenship. He put the little red schoolhouse at the head of the list and paid a tribute to the old fashioned "one teacher" as against "mass production" in rural districts.

Senator Bingham does not deplore the use of modern scientific methods but believes character of a sturdy, self reliant patriotic citizen is not machine-made and that the personal touch enters into it.

Commenting on the proposal to eliminate the little red schoolhouse as has been proposed by men of high position in educational circles, Senator Bingham said:

"As a matter of fact the one-room school house with its single devoted teacher, comes nearer being a satisfactory successor to the home school than any device of modern education. For untold centuries the character of our ancestors was dependent upon the training they received at home from fathers and mothers whose duties did not take them far afield. Fortunate indeed, is the child today who learns to read at his mother's knee and whose parents choose to take the time to fashion the character of the little citizens under their care. Next best is the small school where during the years between seven and fourteen the child may have the affectionate guidance of a teacher deeply interested in giving young citizens that foundation in character which will make them useful members of the republic.

Where conditions are such that this is not possible, as in our great cities, it still remains the duty of those with the supervision of the public schools to see to it that in their desire to be up to date and modern they do not overlook the real aim and end of the public school education."

Senator Bingham praised the splendid public school buildings and those who had reached the time when they could study under specialists. By the time the high school is reached a character has been pretty well developed and then it depends on the student whether or not he becomes a useful citizen.

It is the elementary school that frames the characterization outside of family influence.

Schools should make a strong effort to develop a sense of personal responsibility and pride in self reliance to justify the burden such public schools put on the shoulders of the tax payer, because such schools provide a strong body of citizenry to carry on the burdens of the republic" said Senator Bingham in closing.

The senator had previously explained that the great amount of money spent by states, cities and towns to provide education for the boys and girls of the nation, was because while food and clothing are necessary the government does not provide them, but education has been found the solid basis of good citizenship because it trains the young, develops character and tends to make useful and intelligent citizens. It is not merely the acquisitation of "book learning" to use an old fashioned phrase, but the public schools help turn out good citizens.

All the same Senator Bingham believes the first rudiments of citizenship are fostered best by home training or by one teacher and one little red school house.

When Psi Upsilon fraternity held its convention here this week, Senator Bingham remarked: "Well, the Psi U seems to control the air." Then he added that all three secretaries of the departments carrying aviation as a part of their program were Psi U men. They are Davison, Ingalls and McCracken. Moreover although the senator did not mention himself in that regard, it is noteworthy that Senator Bingham a member of that fraternity, is president of the National Aeronautic association, chairman of the special commission having in charge selection of an airport site for Washington as well as member of several other commissions and committees with aviation as their main purpose. Moreover, Mr. Bingham is an ardent aviator himself.

The Psi Upsilon meeting here was noteworthy also, in the number of distinguished men in congress, cabinet and court who are members and attended the various affairs given by or for the fraternity. The members include Senators Bingham Walcott and Moses, Republican Floor Leader Tilson, of Connecticut, Chief Justice Taft and Secretary of State Stimson.

Senator Bingham conducted the members to the white house where they were greeted by President Hoover, and also to the senate and house where they found at that moment, Senator Moses presiding as president pro tempore in the senate and Col. Tilson was in the chair at the house.

A number of Washingtonians, especially those connected with the department of agriculture, will attend the annual convention of the National Fertilizer association to be held at New London, June 10-13. Notices of the events are being sent out here. Among the speakers as mentioned by advance notices are Dr. Harry A. Curtis of New Haven, professor of chemical technology at Yale; K. D. Jacob, associate chemist of the U. S. department of agriculture will also be a speaker.

The senate chamber has many desks of historic interest among its furnishings. The house long ago discarded desks, on account of the space they took up, but the senate did not find it necessary to make a similar arrangement and as a result desks used in the past by distinguished statesmen are objects of interest to those fortunate to see them at close range.

Senator Watson, republican floor leader, uses the desk known as the Daniel Webster desk, as Webster used it during his term in the senate. Senator Hoar of Massachusetts took over the desk when he was a senate leader. It is old fashioned and they tell the story of how one of the men suggested to Hoar that it should be modernized to be more convenient. Hoar fairly roared, "What was good enough for Webster is good enough for me," and to this day the desk remains unchanged with no hinged top or other modern contraptions to mar its old fashioned dignity.

The Fenn reapportionment bill, now known in the senate as the Vandenburg bill, is now the bone of contention, and probably on its disposal largely depends the summer plans of congress. The outlook at this moment is for a recess while the finance committee works on the tariff bill, beginning about June 1st, length indefinite.

A BOOST FOR BESSIE

Miss Polk and Mrs. Giles were cronies. For several years now they had been discussing the affairs of the universe, pro and con. Most of the pros were of matters within the office where they both held positions of trust—peaceful matters. All of the cons related to the outside world, peaceful or not so peaceful, as cases might be.

And then Miss Polk, needing a new secretary, out of the candidates appearing from the Fentress school picked Bessie Claiborne.

Bessie was 19 and competent. She was not uncomely, but she was utterly inarticulate. She could answer telephone calls perfectly, but the most important client failed to raise her to her feet; inquiries as to the whereabouts of old Mr. Hamilton or nervous Mr. James or even Miss Polk or Mrs. Giles elicited from her sounds that might have meant yes or no, but which sounded like all out grunts.

Miss Polk and Mrs. Giles worried about Bessie. They saw her well dressed; they knew her to be the child of parents in comfortable circumstances; as time went on they learned this and that about her home life, but still they could place no finger upon the girl's lack of initiative, upon her persistent unresponsiveness upon her dullness.

Not until Bessie's sister Dorothy appeared in the office one day did an inkling of the state of things at the Claiborne home sift into Miss Polk's mind. It developed that instead of seeking a secretarial position after graduation, as Bessie had done, Dorothy already had her choice of several ready and waiting. Instead of having to begin work at the usual rate of $18 a week, the gay little person declared that she would not sharpen her first pencil for less than $20.

Dorothy was blithe, she was pretty, she was ready, she was responsive. In short, Dorothy appeared to have all the graces of mind and person that get a young thing forward in life. Dorothy began to come often to the office of Hamilton & James. If there were form letters to be sent out, Dorothy could address five envelopes to any other girl's two. If she were merely waiting for her sister, she could set the whole office smiling.

You will not be surprised to be told, if you have visualized Miss Polk and Mrs. Giles at all, that the more charming Dorothy made herself, the more those two sage women detested her, not for her own sake but for Bessie's.

"You know Miss Polk," said Dorothy one afternoon while she was waiting for Bessie, "dad and mum say that all the family talents belong to me. I'm not 20 yet and I'm going to graduate nearly at the top of my class, and I've got a book half-written, a novel, and the only boys that ever take poor old Bess out are the ones that have asked me after I'm dated, and mum says I wear my clothes so much better than Bess that I always get the pick of the shopping—an—"

"And," said Miss Polk, very, very dryly, "you remind me of a nephew of mine that was gay and charming and such a good fellow—only he was so conceited that he didn't seem to keep his jobs—oh, yes, he could always get one. It seems to me—"

But Bess was ready by that time, and Dorothy, with a rather red face, hurried her away from the office.

One day Miss Polk and Mrs. Giles invited Bessie to come to lunch with them. After lunch they went to Parrish's, where a great sale of dresses was in progress. They found one that suited Bessie perfectly and told her that she had to buy it.

Not only had she to buy it, but she was bidden to put it on and keep it on. It was red. It was smart. It made Bessie's eyes shine. Miss Polk told Bessie that if she took that dress off and let Dorothy have it she might consider herself discharged. Bessie promised.

Of course, it was by no design of Miss Polk's that David Shelby came into the outer office that afternoon and, learning that Mr. James had not yet come in, perched himself on top of Bessie's desk and began to talk to her. Nor was it any of Mrs. Giles' doing to detain the young man after his next visit and go with him into a long disquisition about sorts of girls in this world, the selfish and the unselfish.

But when, a few months later, it sensationally developed that Dorothy would have to make up in speed dictation for several weary months during the summer and when, synchronously, Bessie seemed to have a pretty color of her own without resort to her compact, while David Shelby happened along about closing time five days out of every six, Miss Polk and Mrs. Giles neither frowned nor wept. Of course not!—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Likes New Commissioner

Mr. Editor: — Archibald Torrance, the new gas and electrical commissioner, is a man who was born and brought up in our community and I know he is a person who will not sell his vote on the board for trips to Atlantic City, lower rates for his concern or other favors and I for one believe that the laboring man will have a square deal if we have more men like Mr. Torrance on the board as he is a man who is fair and just to the laboring man.

Lower rates for the rich and higher rates for the poor are not just when the gas and electric plant belongs to the taxpayers. My electric bill at this time of the year has never been but slightly more than one dollar and now it is over two dollars, and I have talked with several neighbors who are having a similar experience. Three cent electricity is all talk but twenty cent electricity is the fact.

Fair Rates.

For National Origins Plan

616 West 116th Street
New York City
May 19, 1929.

Mr. Editor:—Enclosed you will find a copy of a letter to this writer from Senator Hiram Bingham concerning immigration in which the senator from Connecticut says, in part:

"In my opinion the provisions for numerical calculation for immigration quotas under the national origins plan are unscientific in method, unsound in principle, and unfair to a great many of our citiens of alien birth."

As early as January 4, 1927, forty-seven of the leading scientists of this country, among whom were Professors Fisher, Yerkes, Huntington, Reed, Hemingway and Johnson, all of Yale university, sent a memorial to the president, the senate and the house of representatives which urged the prompt putting into effect of the national origins provision because it "is sound in principle and fair to all elements in the population." (Senate Hearings, 1929, p. 160).

In answer to a question from Senator David Reed concerning the "fairest way to all nationalities involved in calculating the distribution of the aggregate quota of immigration that congress sees fit to admit," Dr. Joseph A. Hill, chairman of the committee of experts appointed by the three Secretaries of State, Commerce and Labor, to work out both the national origins quotas and the 1890 foreign born basis, testified before the senate immigration committee that "no proposition has been brought to my attention that seems to me fairer than this one of national origin. "And when Dr. Hill was further asked by Senator Reed: "Does the distribution of the quotas based upon the 1890 census reflect with any accuracy the proportion of nationalities that now exist in the United States?" Dr. Hill answered: "No, indeed; it does not." (Senate hearings, 1928, p. 17).

In the face of this recognized authoritative expert testimony by the chairman of the committee of experts, it is difficult to understand where Senator Bingham and President Hoover, whom the senator quotes, got the information that the national origins quotas were unscientific, and impossible to determine accurately and without hardship, because when Senator William Harris asked Mr. Boggs, secretary of the quota board, "How long did the Secretaries (Secretary Hoover etc.) upon the board sit with your committee (of experts)?" Mr. Boggs answered: "They have never sat with our committee; we have simply reported to them in writing." (Senate hearings, 1929, p. 17).

Yours sincerely,

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 21—How could an old guardsman of politics like Simeon Fess of Ohio believe that his now celebrated "pseudo-republican" letter to an Ohio constituent was merely a matter of state news without national significance?

Yet that seems to have been his view.

When he wrote it and called the roll of party irregulars who had bolted administration leadership to vote for the export debenture plan, the Ohio senator gave out the letter with the idea that it would be used only in Ohio papers.

Senator Fess knows differently now. His application of that "pseudo" title to the irregulars brought down their verbal wrath upon his head without delay.

His subsequent explanation that he had not created the phrase, but borrowed it from "Hi" Johnson of California, a very notable irregular himself, failed to save him.

It looked as if a good deal would be heard of "pseudo-republicanism," first and last, before the special farm relief session of congress ended.

The Ohio senator prides himself on his party regularity.

He always has noted in his congressional biography the fact that he was "assistant whip" in the senate up to the elevation of Curtis of Kansas to the vice presidency, which boosted Fess to whip.

His duties as such, however, are to keep his party colleagues in line, not to whip them out of ranks. His adoption of the Johnson nomenclature in his Ohio letter may not have been intended as a whipping operation at all, but merely as an expression of personal resentment against the irregulars.

It served, however, to emphasize the rift in party ranks in the senate, even if it did not widen it.

The Fess letter was written the day of Johnson's sarcastic outbreak over the farm bill. The Ohioan still was writhing under Johnson's declaration that "This, sir, is the moronic era of age of 'bunk'" when he took pen in hand to write the "pseudo-republicans" letter.

Yet neither Fess nor any other republican leader had any doubt what was going to happen on the export debenture vote.

That anti-administration vote was particularly tough on Senator Watson of Indiana, majority leader. He was to lose his first battle in that capacity.

He's a far more philosophical type than Fess, however, and on the day of the vote he appeared in the senate wrapped in the ample folds of a long-tailed coat and with all the sartorial trappings of grandeur, including a glossy silk tile.

"Well, well, Jim, why all the purple and fine feathers?" asked a colleague as they met in the senate lobby.

"When I go to a funeral," said Senator Watson, "I always wear funereal clothes."

YOUR HEALTH

Play The Game of Good Habits

(By Dr. Howard F. Kilbary)

Two minutes at home night and morning with the toothbrush may save a person dollars and hours in the dental office. The ideal place to begin good habits is in the home. Children should early be made acquainted with them. As soon as the first teeth are all erupted, a game can be made of keeping them clean. A small toothbrush used with a salt solution, and later, when the child is older, dry salt used on a wet brush will be found good for this purpose. If the child is taught to use a tootoothbrush night and morning at the time he washes his face and hands, a good habit will be started.

When the teeth appear to be stained, and ordinary brushing will not remove the discoloration, the child should be taken to the dentist, who knows how to remove it. Incidentally, this is a good time for the child to get acquainted with the dentist and his equipment, because he can do so without being hurt in the least. It is important that the child's first impression of the dental office should be a good one.

One most important habit to form is that of frequent dental examination. This should begin with the small child in order that cavities in the first teeth may be discovered and filled—thus saving them until the permanent ones are ready to prick through the gums. Keeping the first teeth helps to keep the arches well shaped and aids the digestion of the child. The first permanent teeth to appear are the six-year molars. These erupt usually during the sixth year, but vary with different children. These teeth are very often neglected because they are thought by parents to be first or temporary teeth.

In the case of adults I would suggest that the habit of brushing the teeth night and morning be formed. It is also a good habit to use a mouth wash frequently, especially after eating.

There need be no excuse for not forming such a habit, for even though one does not happen to have a tooth paste handy (and there are many good ones on the market), salt and water are cheap and have excellent cleansing and healing properties.

If one happens to have to wear plates or some other removable denture, these habits must not be forgotten; they must be practiced more than ever before, because dentures are food catchers and must be kept clean. They should be cleaned after each meal. Here, again, that plentiful combination, sale and water, can be used to advantage. It will keep the dentures and mouth clean and sweet.—Gorgas Memorial Institute.

Burgess Bedtime Story

A Fishing Party

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Pass on good news, not news that's bad;
Make people joyous—never sad.
Old Mother Nature.

It happened one morning that a school of small fish came up the Laughing Brook into the Smiling Pool. Peter Rabbit was over there at the time. He didn't know anything about that school of small fish and he couldn't understand the cause of the sudden excitement. Rattles the Kingfisher started it. Rattles was sitting on his favorite perch on a dead limb of the Big Hickory tree on the bank of the Smiling Pool. Suddenly he plunged, in the way he has of doing, into the water, and a moment later came up with a fish in his bill. It was a good-sized fish for Rattles to catch. He flew back to his favorite perch and there he thumped and pounded it on the branch until the fish was dead. Then he turned it around and swallowed it headfirst.

A moment later Longlegs the Heron, who was standing in the shallow water near where the Laughing Brook leaves the Smiling Pool, shot that long bill of his downward, and he, too, had a fish. Dipper the Grebe and Mrs. Grebe were sitting on the water idly smoothing out their feathers. They saw Rattles catch his fish and they saw Longlegs catch his fish. Instantly they were alert. They no longer had thought for the appearance of their feathers. Almost together they dived. No one can dive more quickly than can Dipper the Grebe. One instant they were there and the next instant they had disappeared. But they were out of sight for only a moment. They came up on the other side of the Smiling Pool and each had a little fish.

Bad news travels fast. Good news travels fast sometimes, too. How the news that there was good fishing in the Smiling Pool traveled, I do not know. But travel it did, for in a very short time who should appear circling above the Smiling Pool but Plunger the Osprey. Peter always did love to see Plunger fish. You know, Plunger is called the Fish Hawk. Presently he hovered for a moment, then down he shot. He disappeared completely, but it was only for a second, and then he was flapping his way up again. He had a fish in his great hooked claws. It was bigger than the fish that Rattles had caught, or the one that Longlegs had caught. Once more Dipper and Mrs. Dipper disappeared only to reappear, each with a fish.

He flew back to his favorite perch

Then Peter discovered Billy Mink climbing out on the Big Rock. Billy also had a fish. He began to eat it as he sat there on the Big Rock. Glancing over toward the place where the Laughing Brook flows into the Smiling Pool, Peter could see a brown head coming swiftly down the Laughing Brook. Just after it entered the Smiling Pool it disappeared. A moment later it popped up right in the middle of the Smiling Pool.

"Hello, Little Joe Otter!" cried Peter, dancing about excitedly.

Little Joe Otter turned his head and looked over at Peter, but he didn't say a word. He couldn't. His mouth was full. He had a fish.

Qwack the Night Heron presently came flapping up from the Big River. Soon he, too, was fishing. You see, it was a regular fishing party and everybody was having good luck—everybody but the fishes.

Peter sighed. His sigh sounded almost regretful. "I—I almost wish I liked fish myself," said Peter.

"Chug-a-rum!" said Grandfather Frog. "What good would it do you if you did like fish? How would you catch them?"

That was a question that Peter couldn't answer, so very wisely he didn't try to.

When your Children Cry for It

Mothers, who take one simple precaution, are seldom worried. With a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house they can do what their doctor would tell them to do, when baby is fretful, feverish, colicky, constipated or stuffed-up with cold—give a few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation. It comforts Baby and soothes him to sleep in a jiffy. It's perfectly safe for the youngest infant. Use it freely—and as often as needed, specialists advise. A more liberal dose is all it takes to comfort and relieve older children, when feverishness, bad appetite, colds, etc., show they need a good purging. The mark of genuine Castoria is the Fletcher signature on the wrapper. Look for it to avoid imitations.

WOMEN SHOULD LEARN USES OF MAGNESIA

To women who suffer from nausea, or so-called "morning sickness," this simple measure is proving a blessing. Most nurses know it and it is advised by leading specialists.

Prepare a small quantity of finely cracked ice—about a wineglassful. Pour over it a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Sip slowly until the mixture is gone or you are entirely relieved. It is seldom necessary to repeat the dose to end sick stomach or any inclination to vomit.

Its anti-acid properties enable Phillips Milk of Magnesia to give immediate relief in heartburn, sour stomach, gas. Its mild, but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement. Used as a mouthwash it helps prevent acid erosion and tooth decay during expectancy.

With every bottle of Phillips Milk of Magnesia, come full directions for its many uses. All drug stores have the 25c and 50c sizes. Demand the genuine, endorsed by doctors for over 50 years.

MEETING AT RICHMOND RADIATOR PLANT

Another noon meeting under Y. M. C. A. auspices was held Monday noon at the radiator plant in Thamesville. The talk was given as usual by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, and the topic was "Proving and Holding." Mr. Ricketts spoke in part as follows:

The Apostle Paul was dealing with the Thessalonians, and he proved himself to be more than an evangelist; he had great learning and could cope with the brainiest men of his day. His learning and his practical ability were unusual, and though he at times was most enthusiastic he always managed to keep his feet on the ground.

The Thessalonians like men of today were always running up against new theories and beliefs; they could not accept all of these, nor could they reject them all. Paul urged them to "prove all things." It is very necessary to prove things, else we will act unjustly. Some years ago in a certain New England town the body of a woman was found evidently murdered. A tramp had been seen loafing around the place, and naturally he was suspected of the crime. The people were greatly excited as might be expected, and they came to the point where they were ready to lynch this tramp. Just at this point the trial justice said to the people, "you have absolutely no proof against this man, and even if he is a tramp, you have no right to harm him; he has the right of a trial and he is innocent until he is proven guilty.

The case was delayed and the tramp was held for some time and then released. Finally, it was proven that a nephew of the slain woman, a college graduate had murdered his aunt because he was the sole heir to her estate. It, of course, would have been rank injustice to have killed the tramp. Justice means to prove all things. We must prove one thing in order to take the next step. We used to think it was foolish to do addition in school; to set a list of figures down and simply add them again and again, but we soon found that the studies to follow were steps oftimes based on simple addition.

A child takes one step and having proven he could take one he naturally takes the second and so on. Edward Payson Weston, the great pedestrian at first took one step, and then on and on until he traveled unbelievable distances.

Proving things make for the future peace of our minds. What a great satisfaction it must have brought to the Wright brothers after so many had doubted that men would ever fly, to know that they had proven their claim and air travel became a fact. The Wright brothers said it can be done, and many said it could not be done, but they did it. We must all expect to have things that bother us, for then we have things to conquer and we thus learn to do things that at times seem impossible. We have great admiration for the man who blazes the way; who makes a trail. When we have proven things then we must hold them. It is great to have some sure things to cling to. We have great satisfaction when we know that Almighty God approves our lives."

LOCAL MARINE RETURNS FROM CENTRAL AMERICA

After some interesting experiences in Nicaragua, where he was on duty with the Fifth regiment of Marines, Frederick Carlson, of Norwich, Conn., arrived at Norfolk, Va., recently on the U. S. S. Bridge, which brought back a number of marines who had completed periods of service in Nicaragua, Haiti, and elsewhere in the tropics.

Carlson went to Nicaragua in February, 1927, when detachments of U. S. Marines were hurriedly dispatched to that country to suppress a revolution. He remained in the tropics over two years and came back to the states by way of the Panama canal.

With peaceful conditions prevailing in nearly all parts of Nicaragua, large numbers of marines have been withdrawn from that country, the Bridge bringing back a number of other men who also went to Nicaragua with the fifth regiment two years ago.

Carlson made his home with his brother, Raymond E. Carlson, of 16 St. Regis Ave., Norwich, prior to joining the Marine corps at New York in December, 1923. Before leaving for Central America, he was stationed at Quantico, Va., and he has been assigned to duty at that station again.

RURAL-URBAN NIGHT SUPPER DRAWS ATTENDANCE OF 300

The first rural-urban meeting held at the Lyman Memorial high school auditorium in Lebanon Monday evening under the auspices of the New London county farm bureau and the Norwich chamber of commerce was an unqualified success from every standpoint. From the first "Howdy Do's," until the final "Good nights" were said it was as congenial a meeting as one would ever want to attend, and the 300 Norwich people and their Lebanon neighbors thoroughly enjoyed every minute of it.

After the rush into the prettily decorated auditorium where there were four tables at which every seat was taken, the meeting opened with the singing of America and the invocation by Rev. Percy Kilmister, pastor of the First Baptist church of Norwich. Henry F. Powers, second vice president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, was the master of ceremonies.

A real chicken pie supper, such as can only be put on by the residents of a rural community, was served by the Lebanon branch of the league of women voters. The menu served included chicken pie, mashed potatoes, green peas, pickled beets, pickles, relish, rolls, ice cream, assorted cake and coffee.

During the supper William G. Park, of Hanover, acted as song leader and Henry J. LaFontaine, of Norwich, was the pianist. There were chorus numbers by the Lebanon folks and their city neighbors and then by the directors of the chamber of commerce and the farm bureau.

After the supper there was a very delightful entertainment program which included a blackface act by Herbert Lowe and John Beetham of Montville, a monologue, "Kelly's Dream" by Miss Ruth Robinson of North Franklin, a recitation by Nathaniel Manning of the Franklin Dairy club, and harmonica numbers by Nelson Robinson of the Lebanon Dairy clu. Prizes were awarded to the entertainers with Miss Robinson taking first prize, Nelson Robinson second and Herbert Lowe and John Beetham, third. The presentations were made by Walter H. Pilcher, secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce.

Mr. Powers then introduced S. McLean Buckingham, state commissioner of agriculture as toastmaster. Mr. Buckingham in a brief talk on "Agriculture: What Can We Do for Her?" said in part:

Tremendous changes have taken place between the time when Washington delivered his inaugural address and the day when all the principal nations of the earth listened to the voice of Herbert Hoover when he delivered his. Farming conditions have changed materially in that time. In Colonial days the farmers constituted 90 per cent of the nation now barely 30 per cent. Then, the farm was a self-supporting unit, consuming 90 per cent of what it produced; now it is a specialized business, consuming barely 10 per cent of what it produces, primarily producing crops for sale.

Agriculture has not kept pace with the changing times and as a result a special session of congress has been called to see what can be done toward correcting the difficulties under which agriculture is working. Legislation can help, but I believe that agriculture can assume a large part of the responsibility for her own relief.

Agriculture has suffered from the lack of an adequate program covering both production and marketing, and what she needs more than anything at the present time is a backbone to take the place of the wishbone in her anatomy. First we must have the facts of the situation, then we must build a program to fit those facts. This program must be economically sound, for the economic laws enforce their own penalties. It is going to take patience, perseverance and courage to build such a program but I believe that agriculture possesses those qualities.

Nothing has been found to take the place of individual effort in economic production. It is a case of the survival of the fittest, and success will come to the individual who will look to his cost of production and combine high production per acre or per animal with high production per man in hours of labor.

So much for production, but what about marketing? Something must be found to take the place of individual effort in marketing. We are buying in a seller's market and selling in a buyer's market. On top of that we are selling at wholesale and buying at retail. We must work toward the development of a marketing system—both in buying and selling—which will be as completely as possible under our control. The cooperative system seems to offer the most hope. The present system has grown up and become established through necessity and the lines along which it has developed have been perfectly natural. Agriculture did not realize what was going on and others did. These others were not farmers and naturally built a system to suit themselves and for their benefit. We would have done the same thing if we had been in their places.

This marketing situation, brought about by the concentration of population in cities and improved transportation facilities which are forcing us to compete with the rest of the country, is one of the facts we must face, and the problems connected with it are some of the problems we must solve.

Our products have become objects of commerce and as such are subject to speculation. What can we do about it? We now realize that we are living in an age of organization when the individual is at a decided disadvantage. Agriculture needs bargaining power; it needs stabilization in production and in prices and none of these things can be accomplished while we insist, as farmers, on buying and selling as individuals. We must join the procession with industry, labor and business or be content with present conditions.

Agricultural cooperation has been increasing till we have two and one-half million farmers selling 3 billion dollars worth of produce through cooperative associations. And Connecticut is keeping pace in the movement, for in 1924 we bought and sold more dollars worth of products and goods cooperatively per farm than any state in the union. I might add that I believe there is some food for thought in the fact that the two branches of agriculture which at present seem to be increasing in importance in Connecticut both have cooperatives to handle their product—dairying and poultry. It is not going to be easy to make up our minds to work in an organized way for we are rank individualists, but I believe that is what we must make up our minds to do.

History demonstrates that the strength and prosperity of a nation depends very largely on the prosperity of its agriculture which represents a type of citizen, a way of living and an attitude of mind which no nation can afford to lose. The wealth of a nation, the character of its people, the quality and permanence of its institutions are all dependent upon sound and sufficient agricultural foundation. Not armies, or navies or commerce or diversitude of manufacture or anything other than the farm is the anchor which will hold through the storms of time that sweep all else away.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Buckingham introduced Fred Kammiller of Dubuque, Ia., as the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Kammiller proved himself to be a second Will Rogers as an entertainer. His ready wit and laughable anecdotes kept his audience in one continual spasm of laughter throughout. Yet underlying all his humor was a strong message of brotherly love and friendship between farmer and city resident. His theme was a better understanding between the resident of the rural community and the city business man. The lack of community cooperation, said Mr. Kammiller is due largely to the fact that we do not trust each other.

The three things that are needed most to bring better relationship between the rural and urban districts are confidence, sympathy and understanding. We have got to stop this passing the buck and adapt ourselves to the changing conditions. What most of us need is a mental cathartic so that we may view problems and differences between the urban and rural communities with an open and clear mind. We must practice diplomacy.

A great many times we find that our troubles are largely imaginary and do not amount to much when we really get at the truth. Get together, you rural and city folks, and you'll find that you have much in common and that each can help the other for your mutual benefit.

Mr. Kammiller was heartily applauded and given a rising vote of appreciation for his mighty fine talk.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

TELLS WHY POPPY IS MEMORIAL FLOWER

The poppy which sprang from the soil of sentiment after the World war, as the memorial flower of the American Legion and the American Legion auxiliary has had many struggles to keep its place in our hearts as a memorial emblem, because of the inroads of commercialism so prevalent in this present age, says a statement issued Sunday night by an official of Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion. In many communities the poppy was recognized only as a red tag to be sold on the streets to make money. It is the intent of this statement, made by the local post of the American Legion, to bring a better understanding to the public in general, so that when the American Legion auxiliary at a later date holds their annual poppy sale on the streets of Norwich those who buy will realize that it is not a red tag to be bought and worn indifferent, but as as an emblem of sacrifice to be worn in reverent understanding.

The idea of wearing the poppy in memory of all who died in the World war was presented to the American Legion by one who, from all information obtainable, was the first in America to wear the poppy—Miss Moina Michael of Athens, Georgia. While Miss Michael was serving on the staff of the Y. M. C. A. overseas headquarters at Hamilton Hall, Columbia university, New York on November 9th, 1918, a soldier placed in the hands of Miss Michael a copy of the Ladies Home Journal with Col. John McCrae's "We Shall Not Sleep" illustrated in it. She read and treasured this beautiful verse which immortalizes the poppy, and studied the graphic illustration. She caught the message, and as she had dedicated herself to the service of her country on the night war was declared, she at that time made a second dedication—To keep the faith and always wear a poppy of Flanders fields as a sign of remembrance of the sacrifices made by those who fell. She brought her idea to the 25th conference of the Y. M. C. A. and the men attending this conference were so impressed with it that after the adjournment of the conference they asked for poppies to wear—the first scene in America of wearing the poppy for all who died.

The Armistice was signed—other conferences adopted the poppy. Memorial gardens were planted—Sandusky, Ohio had in the spring of 1919, one of the earliest and success will come to the individual who will look to his cost of production and combine high production per acre or per animal with high production per man in hours of labor. The movement spread. Miss Michael's vision was far reaching. She realized we could not have beautiful memorials in every corner of our country from whence our heroes came, but the poppy could be worn as a memorial everywhere. Although not a member of the American Legion she is held in very high regard by the Legion department of Georgia. She wanted the American Legion to be the first national organization to adopt the poppy, and on the even of the Georgia department convention held in Augusta, Georgia, August 18-20, 1920, she turned all her data concerning the poppy over to this department.

The poppy was adopted and the delegates to the national convention were instructed to present the resolution at Cleveland and support it. The resolution was presented at the national convention held in Cleveland, September 27-29, 1920 and the poppy was adopted as the memorial flower of the American Legion—its first adoption in America by a great national organization.

At its convention in Kansas City, October, 1921, the American Legion auxiliary adopted the poppy as its memorial flower, and pledged the profits 100 per cent to welfare work for the service men and women and their families. The poppy is now the memorial flower of the French, British and Canadian World war veterans' organizations.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, another patriotic organization of America, adopted the poppy in the spring of 1922. The American Legion and the American Legion auxiliary cannot claim a sole right to the poppy, for the poppy is God's flower and cannot be copyrighted, and has been chosen by other organizations, but the American Legion and the American Legion auxiliary can always claim to have been the first large national organizations of this country to have adopted the flower's say the statement.

The American public is afforded the opportunity of purchasing the poppy, thus helping those for whom the war is not yet over—for the profits from the sale are devoted 100 per cent to service work—and of wearing it in memory of all who died in service.

The commercial poppy was shortly eliminated from the sales supply of the auxiliary and only poppies made by the needy and disabled service men and women and by the unit members are sold by the auxiliary. Poppies have been made by the disabled service men in the hospitals of Arkansas, California Idaho Kentucky, Missouri, Oklahoma Oregon and Virginia for local needs under the guidance of the American Legion auxiliary. Many stories could be told of the wonderful results brought about by the manufacture and sale of these poppies. The citizen who stops and buys and wears a poppy with an understanding heart, will reap the harvest of gratitude that will be showered upon them by those that kept the faith, concludes the statement.

W. W. BACKUS HOSPITAL TRAINING SCHOOL GRADUATES CLASS OF 16

Graduation exercises that were full of interest were held Monday evening in the auditorium of the Samuel Huntington school Norwich town, by the senior class of the William W. Backus hospital school of nursing whose 16 members were enthusiastically applauded as they marched in with the student nurses in the other classes and took special seats in the front of the hall, which was well filled with the friends of the graduates. The stage was beautifully decorated with baskets of roses, gladioli, carnations, and stock, arranged among ferns and palms with an unusally lovely basket as the centerpiece, sent as a gift by Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, and tied with the class colors of silver and rose.

Seated on the platform were President Henry A. Tirrell of the board of corporators, Miss Lucy B. Abbott, superintendent of the hospital, Miss Grace E. Anslow, directress of the school of nursing, Mrs. Walter F. Lester, president of the Women's auxiliary, and Rev. S. A. Icick of St. Joseph's church.

President Tirrell presided and the exercises opened with the invocation by Rev. Father Icick, which was followed by a finely rendered tenor solo by Lyle H. Fillmore, with Miss Anuje L. Taft as accompanist.

The address to the graduates was given by Miss Elizabeth Ross, director of the health center at Brookline, Mass. who spoke earnestly to the 16 members of the class of the opportunity before them as they step out from the school into their first nursing experience away from the place of their instruction. She assured them that the technique acquired in the hospital would stand by them when they get outside and she urged that each one have an aim, an ambition and not allow herself to drift whether her service were to be in private duty, in further hospital work, in public health work, in industrial work, or educational work. In all of these she said there is always a place for the nurse who is willing to do her share but there will be many idle days for the nurse who is unwilling to go into the place where she is needed.

Miss Ross appealed to the graduates to make this hospital and this state proud of them as good citizens, well balanced and well rounded in character, as they went forth to serve in one of the best professions to make lives that are worthwhile. This she declared, she was confident they would do.

After another excellent tenor solo by Mr. Fillmore, President Tirrell presented the diplomas with a few words in which he spoke interestingly of the need of tact, charity and common sense in applying the technical training which the nurses have received.

The school pins were presented by Mrs. Lester, who expressed the good wishes of the hospital and urged the nurses to be satisfied with giving nothing short of the best of service which would bring a greater satisfaction than anything money can buy.

Miss Irene Chadwick represented the graduates in presenting the class gift, a linen cabinet for the training school and screens for Ward B to the hospital. At the same time she presented bouquets to Miss Abbott and Miss Anslow, the latter acknowledging the gifts to the school and the hospital with words of deep gratitude.

The exercises closed with the singing of the school song by the entire student body.

The diplomas were tied in the class colors of silver and rose as were also the boxes containing the class pins, and as each graduate crossed the platform to receive the reward of her three years of work she was given enthusiastic applause by the large audience.

The following are the members of the graduating class:

Ruth Hall Allen, Versailles; Irene Eugenie Chandler, Leominster, Mass.; Ruth Frances Parker, Norwich; Zelma Arville Noble, Pittsfield, Mass.; Catherine Mae Barry, Jewett City; Christine Mary Barry, Norwich; Mary Ellen Foley, Norwich; Irene Chadwick, Baltic; Julia Louise Mason, Norwich; Esther Hyman, Norwich; Rosalie Marie Kane, Fitchville; Mary Alletta Fox, Groton; Bertha Patricia Young, New London; Helen George Towers, Quaker Hill; Ethel Helen Donch, Mystic.

CLARENCE DeMAR HAS ENTERED FOR DUWELL A. A. 10-MILE ROAD RACE

Clarence DeMar of Melrose, Mass., seven times winner of the Boston marathon, thrice a member of the American Olympic team and without a doubt the greatest American marathoner of all times will appear in Norwich on Memorial day as an entrant in the fourth annual Duwell road race, according to an announcement made last night by Duwell officials. The official entry of the famous athlete was included in a large batch of entries filed with the road race committee during the day.

De Mar, a member of the Melrose American Legion post will come here as the guest of the Robert O. Fletcher post and will cover the ten mile distance with the remainder of the field. His entry was made possible through the efforts of the local legion post, which has been in communication with him for the past few weeks. At a recent meeting of the post the fact that De Mar might possibly run the Norwich race was brought to the attention of the members and a committee was appointed to meet the famous athlete and entertain him during his stay in the Rose of New England.

Although the veteran printer has covered hundreds of marathon distances in the past fifteen years this will be his first appearance in Eastern Connecticut, in fact his first in the state in a good many years. It may also be his last appearance here, for in the fall he will take up his new duties as coach of athletics at a Massachusetts high school. Although well over the two score mark in Years the Melrose printer is by far the leading distance runner in the country at the present time, the answer to his success being clean living.

Between races Clarence teaches Sunday school at Melrose and is very much interested in boys, particularly the Boy Scouts. He has been heard at numerous places throughout the country during the past few years and is admired everywhere not only for his ability as a plodder but for the fine example he has set for young American manhood through his clean living. Although he is not exceptionally fast for ten miles, DeMar, without any doubt will be among the winners of the coming Duwell run.

Local interest in the race is at a much higher pitch than in any of the years past and it is expected that the biggest crowd ever to turn out for an event of its kind will line the streets on the afternoon of Memorial day. The guessing contest being conducted in conjunction with the race is being well received, several hundred in the city and vicinity having already sent in the combinations of numbers, which in their opinion will place first, second and third. Contest blanks may be secured at the Duwell club, Jack's Sport Shop, Our Smoke Shop, Madden's at Broad street, Chapman's at Bath street, Sullivan's Smoke Shop, Rinellas, Hot Weiner, M. Snyder's at Boswell avenue and W. H. Nelson's.

MISS HICKS LEADS FIELD WITH 84 AT GREENWICH

GREENWICH, May 20—(AP)—Miss Helen Hicks, of Hempstead Country club, led the field with a score of 84 in the qualifying round of the women's metropolitan golf championship played here today over the links of the Greenwich Country club. The young Long Island star was out in 42 and back in like figures, leading Miss Maureen Orcutt, of White Beeches, the present titleholder who returned a card of 44-41-85. Miss Katherine Beach, of the Montclair Golf club, making her first appearances in this competition, scored an 88. She wasted three shots on the outgoing nine taking an eight on the par five, fourth hole, and otherwise would probably have led the field or tied for first.

Miss Hicks was not hitting her customary long shots today and found it difficult to reach most of the greens in two. On the second half she started with a birdie two at the tenth but on the closing nine took sixes at the fourteenth, sixteen and eighteenth holes.

The draw for the first round tomorrow with the initial pair scheduled to start at 9.45.

Upper half: Miss Hicks vs. Mrs. Jackson; Mrs. Thomson vs. Mrs. Lee; Miss Holland vs. Miss Brooks; Miss Singer vs. Mrs. Smith; Mrs. Federman vs. Mrs. March; Mrs. Hodges vs. Mrs. Lawler; Mrs. Burrowes vs. Mrs. Wheeler; Miss Jenney vs. Miss Fisher.

Lower half: Miss Orcutt vs. Mrs. Wimpfheimer; Mrs. Toerge vs. Mrs. Ryan; Miss Beach vs. Miss Knapp; Miss Clemens vs. Mrs. Fraser; Mrs. Goss vs. Miss Mellong; Mrs. Hucknal vs. Mrs. Lindh.

TILDEN AND HUNTER WIN FIRST MATCH AT PARIS

PARIS, May 20—(AP)—With only doubles on display for the early customers, the French hard courts tennis championships opened today with the triumphant appearance of favorites before a holiday crowd of 5,000, a third of them vacationists from England and tourists from America. The latter had the pleasure of seeing their old and new champions bowl over continental opponents.

Big Bill Tilden, staging another comeback, was his old time self again. Paired with Francis T. Hunter, he quickly eliminated two Nordic blondes from Denmark, Rasmussen and Nielson, by scores of 6-0, 6-1, 6-0.

Helen Wills, paired with Hunter, to win in straight sets from the French pair, Mlle. Doris Metaxa and S. Glasser, 6-3, 6-3. Mlle Metaxa is not yet 16 years old.

The only Americans to lose were Mrs. Sutton Bundy, a champion over the two decades ago, and Miss Marjorie Morrell, of Boston, member of the most recent tennis generation. They were defeated by the young nimbler combination of the Miles, Amaury and Adamoff, 9-7, 6-3.

Playing brilliantly, Borotra and Senorita Lili D'Alvarez eliminated the Franco-Russian team of Madame Michel Bernard and M. Mazaloff, 6-2, 6-2, and the customers were satisfied.

Susie Says

I went up to that farmer-city meeting at Lebanon last night. What a time, what a time.

Say, believe me, those Lebanon folks don't need any farm relief. It's the city folks that need the relief if everybody ate as much as I did. The old soda-mints sure took it on the chin when I got home.

You know when we went in some nice looking young lady came around and gave you a piece of paper to write your name on it and pin it on yourself. I thought they was going to serve hard cider and the slips were so we could tell who we were after the second glass. I was wrong as usual.

That supper. Oh, boy. Did you folks ever taste anything so good as that? Those ladies of the League of Women Voters sure know how to put on a feed. If any of those women are unmarried it's a black spot on the men of Lebanon.

And did you get that cream that was served for the coffee. No wonder Mr. Abel looks like a New York alderman if he gets that kind of living every day in the week.

There was lots of people I knew up there too. There was Walt Pilcher, rotund secretary of the chamber of commerce, and the board of directors. There was Abe Agranovitch, Abner Schwartz, Frank Dizzine and a lot of others who like their eats.

I met Rep. George Ross and his wife from Lisbon. George said it was a mighty fine supper and he hoped when they came over to Lisbon the Lisbon folks could do just as well.

Speaking of Lisbon, I was born there. And do you know I met a school teacher who was my first teacher 20 years ago and I'll be darned if I knew her. She said she was a grandmother but honest to goodness I thought she was spoofing me. I thought she must have meant she went to school with ma.

Say wasn't there a crowd there. Say at times I was so crowded I didn't know whether I was eating off my own plate or my neighbor's.

Bill Park makes a snappy songleader but Bill sure does love to tell jokes about the Scotch. I am speaking of the nationality and not the brand.

Gosh I got a great kick out of the singing of those directors. They ran true to form as directors—there was a decided lack of harmony.

And did you enjoy Fred Kammiller's talk. I haven't got through laughing yet and I bet there's many a sore rib in Lebanon this morning.

If a laugh a day keeps the doctor away I'll live to such an age that Methuselah will seem as though he died in his infancy.

It was some meeting and some supper and I hope I get an invitation to the next one.

More power to you Lebanon.

GIANTS UNABLE TO SOLVE CLARK'S HURLING AND LOSE

BROOKLYN, May 20—(AP)—Some great pitching today by William Watson Clark, Brooklyn left hander, turned back the Giants and gave the Robins a 6 to 1 victory in the first game of a three game series.

Clark retired the Giant batters in order through eight of the nine innings, faltering only in the fifth to the extent of two hits and a single run. Terry and Jackson singled and Kaufmann followed with a sacrifice fly to bring Terry in from third.

Carl Hubbell started for the Giants but lasted less than three innings. The Robins pounded his delivery for seven hits to gain a commanding lead of 5 to 0. Ralph Judd relieved him in the third and held Brooklyn to one run through the rest of the game.

Herman, Bressler and Hendrick divided nine of the Robins' twelve hits equally, Bressler led with a triple and two doubles for his trio of safeties. They also scored and drove in most of Brooklyn's tallies. The score:

LOUIE GREENE TO PITCH FOR ACADEMY AGAINST WESTERLY AT CAMPUS TODAY

Marks, rf	rf, Novak
Green, p	p, Tucker

This afternoon at the campus at 3 o'clock the Academy tackles Westerly high in a league game. The undefeated Wildcat team will be after its thirteenth straight win of the year and will also attempt to corner its seventh straight league triumph.

Lou Green, star southpaw, has been elected by Coach Brigham to start on the mound with the same change in the lineup that was evident in the Chapman Tech game here last Wednesday. Buck LaCroix will come in from center field to take over second base and Fagan will take center with Capt. Jack Marks again in action in right field and Anso Tombari in left.

Green turned in a one-hit 7 to 0 victory over Westerly at Westerly a couple of weeks back and today should have no trouble in stopping them again although overconfidence is to be guarded against. However, Westerly gave Chapman Tech a great battle Saturday before losing 10 to 8 and may be just in the frame of mind to upset the Academy today.

Coach Joe Sherman always has a fighting team and although they rolled over and played dead early at Westerly in the first game, that looked like an off-day and today may be a different story. Tucker will probably pitch for Westerly although Novak, who hurled at Westerly, will probably get the call.

The game will start at the usual time as the new wrinkle of 4 o'clock as a starting time used last week in the Tech game did not work out well. Hank Morin will umpire behind the plate with Greenwood of Westerly on the bases.

ATHLETICS INCREASE LEAD OVER YANKS TO TWO GAMES

PHILADELPHIA, May 20—(AP)—The Athletics came back from a road tour today to run their winning streak to five successive games with a 5 to 1 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Their margin over the Yankees, who were idle today, was increased to two full games.

Eddie Rommel chalked up his fourth win of the year with no defeats to mar his record. He held the Red Sox to six hits, scattered through five innings. Charlie Ruffing went the route for Boston although he was very wild, giving ten bases on balls and eight hits.

The Mackmen hammered out three hits for the same number of runs in the first inning to gain a lead that never was threatened. Ruffing gave three passes, walking one run across the plate in that inning while a Boston error let another cross.

Before the game President Ernest S. Barnard of the American league presented Micky Cochrane Athletics' catcher with a framed diploma for winning the most valuable player award of 1928. The score:

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR JUNIOR LEAGUE TONIGHT

Final arrangements for the opening of the Junior League baseball season will be made at a meeting of the league directors, to be held at the Duwell club tonight. A schedule will be adopted, rules for the government of the circuit drawn up and plans arranged for an elaborate opening on June 10.

The teams to constitute the personnel of the loop will also be decided upon this evening. At the meeting held a week ago seven teams were represented. Should another team be entered this evening the loop will be made up of eight clubs but should no other organization seek entrance it is probable that one of the seven might be dropped and a six team league formed. The teams entered to date are Elks, Duwells, Y. M. C. A., Taftville American Legion, Gamma club and Baltic Social and Athletic club.

The Black Hawks accept the challenge of the Baltic Rovers for a game to be played Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Hollyhock Island grounds.

"I'LL NEVER FIGHT AGAIN" SAYS DEMPSEY TO PRESS

NEW YORK, May 20—(AP)—Stretched out in a barber's chair while a razor fought with his blue-black beard and a manicurist clipped his nails, Jack Dempsey blew the lather from his lips today and declared without reservation that he is farther away than ever from another ring comeback.

As forcefully as a man could say it, the former heavyweight king declared the retirement he announced after Gene Tunney whipped him for the second time in Chicago still stands—more so now than ever. The ring had lost its lure, fighting days are behind him and a new career stretches ahead.

"What a fine sap I'd be to ever fight again.

"I've got a million dollars and that's enough. If Gene Normile, my former manager, said in Reno that he had an agreement with me for another fight, he was all wrong. We are mixed up in a proposition together but it doesn't involve boxing.

"Almost every day I receive offers of one kind or another to fight again. I answer all by saying that I have no plans for getting into the ring again.

"Of course, if someone came along with a bona fide offer for $1,000,000 I'd have to consider it seriously. If someone to make it worth my while for me to start training, and find out if I could get in shape again, I'd have to think that over, too.

"There have been no million offers and I don't expect any. Even if one did come, I'm not so sure but that I wouldn't refuse it after all. I'm a promoter now and have a mess of theatrical offers. I'll never fight again."

Reports that Dempsey had decided to return to the ring have been piling up within the past few days. Shortly after visiting Dempsey here, Normile announced in Reno that the former champion would box again in Agua Caliente, Mexico, for a million dollar purse. Humbert D. Fugazy, Dempsey's partner in promotion, declared several days ago that Jack would battle the winner of the Paulino Uscudun-Max Schmelling fight here this fall.

FLATHER CONTRIBUTES TWO HOMERS IN N. F. A. VICTORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

LEBANON, May 20—Two home runs by Flather, Norwich Free Academy right fielder, featured that team's one-sided victory over Lyman high of this place here this afternoon. The score was 23 to 4.

Bob Geer and Mike Aburie pitched for the Red and White second team and held the locals safe at all stages. One of Flather's homers was probably the longest hit ever made here.

FITCHVILLE OPENS SEASON AGAINST CITIZENS SUNDAY

The Fitchville baseball season will open Sunday when the Fitchville A. A. has for its opponents the fast Polish Citizens club of Norwich. The game will be played on the Cannon Hill diamond, which has been put in first class shape.

Neither lineup has been announced yet although the Citizens, who have numbered the Riverview club among their victims this year, will probably use Pete Labenski on the hill.

May Seek Heavyweight Honors.

BOSTON, May 20—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, today intimated that he would vacate his title and seek heavyweight honors if he made a favorable showing against Ernie Schaaf next Friday night at the Boston Garden. Loughran sought training quarters soon after his arrival here and engaged in a long workout during the afternoon. Schaaf has been training for this bout for the past month at his Wrentham camp.

Signs Fernandez for Match.

NEW YORK, May 20—(AP)—Ignacio Fernandez, Filipino featherweight who shocked customers by knocking out the New York idol, Al Singer, in Madison Square Garden last Friday night signed with Humbert J Fugazy today for a match with Kid Chocolate, Cuban Negro, at Ebbets field June 12. Fugazy has Chocolate's signature on a contract to box Singer and has asked the Cuban to accept Fernandez as a substitute

Dundee Will Fight in July.

BALTIMORE, May 20—(AP)—Signing of a contract for Joe Dundee to defend his welterweight title in a 15-round bout in Detroit in July was announced today on behalf of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Detroit promoter, who obtained the contract.

The promoter said he expected to get Jackie Fields, whom the National Boxing association recognizes as welterweight champion for the match, but that if this should fail Jimmy McLarnin would be secured.

Sonnenberg to Defend Title.

BOSTON, May 20—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestling champion, today agreed to defend his title against Martin Plestina, of Chicago, known as the "trust-buster," at the Boston arena on May 28. The champion was guaranteed $10,000 and the challenger was promised 15 per cent. of the gate receipts

Plestina was also forced to agree to a return match in Boston within 30 days if he defeated Sonnenberg.

Pete August Gets Verdict.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 20—(AP)—Pete August, Bridgeport, Conn., welterweight, won over Joe Reno, Trenton, N. J., in a close ten round fight here tonight. August weighed 146 1-2, and Reno 146.

Kaplan To Fight Mandell

CHICAGO, May 20—(AP)—Louis Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., has been substituted for Jack Berg of England, as the opponent for Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, in a ten round, non-titular match at Mills stadium, May 28.

The match will inaugurate Chicago's outdoor season and Promoter Jim Mullen expects a crowd of 20,000.

St. Mary's Team Wins

Lyons pitched for the Saints, allowing but two scattered hits, striking out 12 men and walking six. Caplet hurled for the losers and was wild at times, walking eight and fanning six.

DROP OF FROM 2 TO 20 POINTS IN WIDE ASSORTMENT OF INDUSTRIAL STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 20—The stock market jumped forward with the announcement of the decision in the St. Louis and O'Fallon case today, only to slide its footing in its haste and suffer the worst spill since late March. The rails surged up about 2 to 7 more than twenty points, only to lose much of their gains in the late collapse, as a wide assortment of prominent industrials tumbled from 2 to 20 points.

The erratic conduct of the market reflected the state of nerves which has developed from the unsettle condition of credit. Although call money was officially at 7 per cent. all day, and available in the outside market at six for a time, time money still held at the highest rates in years, and the American acceptance council reported a drop in outstanding acceptances of $94,183,171 during April, the largest reduction since its records have been compiled, definitely indicating that the acceptance business is suffering from high rates.

There was little to account for the market's abrupt break save that traders unloaded industrials to cover rails, and became frightened with the consequent drop in the industrials. The action of the market was particularly confusing as its violent reactions all took place in the last hour. The O'Fallon decision, appearing on the news tickers at about 2 o'clock, was at once heralded as the greatest bull development of the year. The list generally had exhibited an easing tendency since the opening, but started upward along with the rails.

The industrials soon began to sag, however, and when it was disappointingly evident that no major bull movement was getting underway, the bear element apparently found the time opportune to launch a concerted drive.

In addition to the clean cut decision in the O'Fallon case, which, it is estimated in rail circles, may eventually result in an increase in rail valuations of as much as $200,000,000,000, Wall Street was treated to a number of favorable news developments, including the resumption of dividends by Goodyear at the annual rate of $6, increasing the Kennecott annual dividend rate to $5 from $4, payment of an extra of 50 cents by Dupont and of $1 by R. H. Macy, and a two-for-one split-up by Warner Brothers.

The day's turnover totalled but 2,811,550 shares, indicating that the market remained for the most part of professional affair. The Associated Press index of 50 industrials dropped 7 points as compared to 6.6 on March 25, at the time of the severe call money crisis, and the index of 20 utilities dropped 3.3 points both today and on that date. The 20 rails, however, moved up 1.9 points today, in contrast to a drop of 2.2 on March 25.

Chesapeake and Ohio led the upturn in the rails with a jump of 22 1-2 points to 220, but it fell back to 208. Frisco mounted 14 1-2 points to 125, only to slip back to 115. New York Central mounted up 12 1-2 points, and dropped 10 points from the top. Norfolk and Western, Rock Island and Atchison also made wide gains, much of which were lost. New Haven actually dropped nearly 2 points below Saturday's close. A few specialties made some headway with Sparks Withington shooting up 15 points more to a new top at 275.

General Electric, which was rushed up to a record price at 255 last week, broke 21 1-2 points to 270 1-2, and closed at 272. The Advance Rumely issues tumbled about 7 and 8 points each to within a fraction of their 1929 lows. Such issues as American Can, Anaconda, Curtiss Aero, Auburn Auto, DuPont, Goodyear, Johns Manville, Kennecott, Radio, Chrysler, Packard and United Aircraft dropped about 3 to 10 points. General Motors sagged about 2 points to 78 1-8, within a point of its 1929 low.

The commodities were generally firmed. Wheat futures mounted 1 to 1 1-2 cents on a decrease in the visible supply, and corn turned upward on unfavorable weather. Cotton mounted 75 cents to $1 a bale on reports of rains and floods in the south, but lost its gain in profit-taking.

Foreign exchanges were extremely dull because of the Whitsuntide holiday abroad. Sterling cables held steady at $4.85.

HUNTINGTON SCHOOL PUPILS WANT ROSE NATIONAL FLOWER

The American Nature association, of Washington, D. C., is conducting a national flower poll this year and is giving every individual in the United States an opportunity to cast a vote to determine just what will be the national flower. Every school child has been invited to cast a vote and all civic organizations have been invited to send their votes as a body—as well as well as nature, garden and conservation organizations.

Votes can be sent to the organization either by card or letter and it is the desire of the organization to have a vote from everyone in each community.

The wild flowers to be voted for are the wild rose, goldenrod and columbine. To date the wild rose is leading. The poll taken at the Samuel Huntington school recently gave the wild rose 242 votes, the columbine 108 and the golden rod 44.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Gowns in Griffith Film Cost Fortune.

Jetta Goudal and Lupe Velez can boast if they want to, of the distinction of having worn the most expensive gowns ever shown on the screen.

The picture is D. W. Griffith's "Lady of the Pavements," which is now showing at the Broadway theatre, and the cost of the gowns is estimated exactly at $13,500, with accessories totaling $4,650—not a cent of this was in stage money.

Miss Goudal's dresses cost $7,500 to make and are certainly the most distinctive creations ever screened. Jewelry amounting to $2,000, stockings and accessories costing $400 and shoes valued at $250 completed her wardrobe.

Miss Velez, who appears in ballet costumes during the early sequences of the picture, wears gowns costing $6,000 with jewelry, stockings and shoes valued at $2,000.

Costuming is one of the most elaborate items of cost in motion picture production, but the mere matter of fresh flowers sometimes rolls up huge charges on the cost sheets.

Reo Motor Car.

The Reo Motor Car company will not build a straight-eight automobile this year, nor are they planning now to do so, according to official communications to William R. Frisble, local Reo dealer, from the Reo Motor Car company and Russell P. Taber, Inc., of Hartford, distributors in this section for Reo cars and trucks. Mr. Frisble has communicated this statement to the Norwich Bulletin.

The direct statement regarding the prospects of a straight-eight Reo Flying Cloud originated as a denial of a story in the Automotive Daily News, Wednesday, May 15th. In that trade paper it stated the Reo company had the car in production and would soon place it on the market. General Sales Manager C. E. Eldridge immediately wired the Taber company that the statement was "untruthful, absolutely without foundation and approached being libellous" which seemed a firm denial.

Earle M. Taber, general manager of Russell P. Taber, Inc., supplements the telegraphic refutation of the rumor with the additional statement that there will be no radical changes in the Reo Flying Cloud line this year. An announcement such as made in the Automotive Daily News causes a motor manufacturer much distress as it makes both the distributor and dealer organization uneasy and disturbs the prospect who is considering the purchase of a car.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL VOTES TO GIVE PAYNE HEIRS $50,000 FOR PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 20— At the meeting of the city council this evening it was voted to abandon the condemnation proceedings to acquire the Payne property for erection of a Coast Guard academy and the council decided to pay $50,000 for the land desired, Councilor Whiton introduced the resolution to buy the property at the price named. Councilor May objected, saying the city had been bluffed into buying. He said it was the biggest piece of damn foolishness the city had engaged in for years. He pointed out that the city had just acquired the Allyn property opposite the Payne property consisting of 28 acres, whereas the Payne property comprised about eight acres and had been valued by competent appraisers at $28,100. The property was mostly rocks. The city had offered $25,000, then $35,000 and finally $40,000 and now it is proposed to pay $50,000 for it. The Payne heirs had employed an attorney, who asked for a hearing and then held up the probability of litigation and said it would require two years' time to consummate that. The Payne property he said is in the tax list for $12,625. He again called it a big bluff and said the city had fallen for it. He demanded a roll call on the vote to purchase. Councilors May and Murray voted against it and Scott, Whiton, Chappell and Twomey voted in favor of it.

Councilor Whiton presented a proposition from the Smiddy estate, looking to an exchange of land at the corner of Tilley and Bank streets for a portion of the Allen Hook and Ladder Co. property. Councilor Twomey objected to receiving that proposition and referred to it as an underhand piece of work. It was finally referred to the committee on safety and finance.

C. A. Moriarty presented a bill for $138 for damage to his property adjoining the arena on Hamilton street, where a boxing match was held last week. He claimed that the spectators got on his roof, pulled off gutters and leaders of the building and broke windows. He complained to the city manager for police protection and said only one officer was sent down. One of the councilors told him that there were about 15 officers there witnessing the fights. The bill was referred to the city manager and corporation counsel. Councilor May asked the chairman of the city planning board if the map of the city street changes had ever been perfected. Mr. Whiton replied that a voluminous report had been made and the city planning board had made some suggestions to Mr. Swahn, maker of the report, and that he was preparing a map still. It turned out that Mr. Swahn had been paid in full for his services.

The council adopted a resolution, stating its purpose to widen Main street at a cost of $24,845, the Connecticut Co. to lay double tracks in the streets and expend $1556. The rest is to be paid by the abutting property owners.

Resolutions were presented expressing the determination of the city to expend $45,000 in street improvement on Grove street, Waldo avenue, Trumbull street, Lower Addison street. A score of building permits were granted.

It was voted to buy a Ford car for the health department at a cost of $655. A long discussion was created by this. Councilor May claiming that the other automobile dealers should have a chance of bidding as they were taxpayers of the city.

Twelve hundred feet of brass pipe was ordered from the Mersik company of New Haven.

Morton of Providence was fined $50 and costs on a charge of reckless driving; Edwin Kelsie and Roy Sisson, of Waterford, charged with driving without a license, were discharged.

Frank A. Kurz and Theresa Kurz of New York state have sold a building in Oneco avenue to Olin H. and Bessie M. Young.

The roof of the building at 52 Bank street was set afire Saturday by sparks from a passing locomotive. A still alarm brought out the Niagara Engine company and the blaze was quickly extinguished.

NORWICH MAN DRIVING ON LEFT SIDE OF THE ROAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 20.—Alexander Padergull, 53 Maple avenue, Norwich, was in the city court today charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. Padergull was arrested early Sunday morning near Connecticut college, Williams street, by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey. The auto Padergull was driving collided with a car driven by Fred Stiles, of the Wauregan house, Norwich, and the latter made complaint against Padergull. Officers who investigated the crash, obtained evidence which showed Padergull to have been driving on the left side of the road and he was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. Through his counsel Edwin W. Higgins of Norwich, he demurred to the charge but Deputy Judge McGarry overruled the demurrer, found him guilty and imposed a fine of $100 and costs.

HURRYING TO TRAIN, NORWICH GIRLS NOT HELD

Charges of failing to reduce the speed of their automobiles while passing intersecting streets on Williams street were dismissed in the cases of Misses Helene Crawford and Frances M. It was alleged that both drivers were hurrying to get to the railroad station in time to permit several of the occupants of the cars to catch a train for New York.

NEW WAY TO COOK VEGETABLES

Four Famous Cooking Experts Discover New Method

Four well-known cooking experts recently conducted a unique food-tasting test in the kitchen of one of the experts in New York City. Numerous vegetables were cooked. 1. With liberal water without sugar. 2. With little water and no sugar. 3. Liberal water with sugar. 4. Little water plus sugar. In every case when the vote was taken, liberal water without sugar lost, and in every case little water plus sugar won.

This discovery shows how to make vegetables so tasteful and appetizing that both children and adults will ask for more. Just try this new recipe and then experiment for yourself and see what a marvelous difference the addition of sugar to cooking vegetables makes.

BANANAS WITH CRANBERRIES—Cook 2 cups cranberries and ¾ cup water about 3 minutes. Add 1 cup sugar and stir until dissolved. Arrange 6 small or 3 large bananas that have been scraped and cut in half in a greased baking dish. Pour the cranberry mixture around them and bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 20 minutes until the bananas are tender.

Famous cooks and eminent scientists agree that sugar is the great flavorer of healthful foods. For wholesome eat sugar. The Sugar Institute.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

DOG AND CAT EPITAPHS

On a Dog

In a shallow bed near by Lies one who never told a lie.
Not so wise, but yet he could
Tell the evil from the good.
Fond and faithful, tender, brave,
Here I lay him in the grave,
Happy could I certain be
Man forgot. God will remember.

A Neighbor's Cat

Underneath this rocky grot
Lieth one by man forgot.
While his owners were away
On their summer holiday,
He starved to death the first September,
Man gorgot. God will remember.

—W. K. Scudamore.

My Heaven

My Heaven's not a place of golden street,
But roads of moss to ease the horses' feet,
Who on this earth have borne the heat and strain,
The pangs of hunger, and the needless pain.

My Heaven is a place of pastures green,
Where dogs may romp, who on this earth have been Chained and restrained from all their doggish play,
May run to meet their loved ones every day.

My Heaven is a place where cats abound,
The ones I lovedand lost, or had around,
Where all the little strays who had to roam,
Will find a welcome and eternal home.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

The flying squirrel, a pretty, playful small creature, with black eyes and very friendly manner, lives in a hollow tree. He goes forth by night to gather acorns, insects, nuts, small birds and other food. Ordinarily a single pair builds a nest of leaves and soft fibrous material and raises a family of from two to six young, to which they are greatly devoted. It is recorded that one mother safely carried her five young from a tree that was on fire, although she herself was badly burned while effecting their rescue.

The nest is often made in a hole drilled by a woodpecker. In the depth of winter, several individuals may pile up together to keep warm, as do the gray squirrels, but they do not hibernate. The young are born toward the end of April and are nearly grown by August. They are never seen during the day unless driven from their nests, but at twilight are frequently seen in mountain valleys sailing from tree to tree, sometimes for a distance of a hundred yards.

The flight of this little mammal, which is really a glide, is extremely graceful and interesting. Membranes extending from the front to the hind legs on each side of the body act as planes, while the flattened tail serves as a rudder. When he is running about, the membranes lie in loose folds and the tail is held vertically and doubled backward upon itself in a single fold.

The fur of a flying squirrel is very soft and velvety and fawn-brown in color. When they put their head between their legs and roll up into balls, they look like exquisite little toy muffs. It is no trouble at all to tame them, for they are probably the gentlest of all our wild animals.

Flying squirrels of different kinds are widely distributed over the northern hemisphere. In Asia, some species have a total length of nearly four feet. In North America there are two species, our small eastern one and a larger kind occurring in the forested regions of the north and west.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

An Old Fashioned Party

Dear Uncle Jed: This story is about some of my friends and myself. It was Saturday morning. I was busy baking some custards when the telephone rang. I shut the door quickly and went to the phone, as mother was busy with piecrust. It was for me. My friend Virginia and her sister were going to give an old fashioned party. Everyone who came was to be dressed in an old fashioned costume. It was to be at her house at 2.30 o'clock that afternoon. I accepted this invitation, hung up the receiver and rushed back to my baking.

When I had finished baking I went up into the attic to hunt for a costume. I opened an old trunk in the farther corner of the attic and took out an old fashioned hat and a string of beads that appealed to me. I then shut the trunk and went over to a smaller trunk near by. Here I found a dress and an old pair of shoes which were quite small. I took these things down stairs with me.

The dress was quite wrinkled, so I got the ironing board and flat and pressed it. After I had finished that and had eaten my dinner it was time to get ready.

When I was dressed I thought I would like to have some mitts, but I had none. Going to mother's room, I opened her drawer and took out an old pair of gloves that were worn at the fingers. I cut the fingers partly off and I then had a pair of mitts.

I then hurried off to Virginia's house. Some of my friends were already there.

We played some games which every one liked. When we had tired of the games and we were wondering what to do, Virginia's aunt came. She was taken into the parlor without seeing us. We were given masks all alike and told to put them on. We did, wondering why we were told to. We lined up as we were told and then Virginia's aunt came in. She was to choose two of the best costumes before she had seen who wore them. A girl named Jane got the first prize and Gertrude the second. After this was done, we unmasked and were served refreshments. Every one had a favor, too, to remember the party by.

SYBIL KEACH, Age 13.

A Junior Citizen

Dear Uncle Jed: It was about two months ago when I saw that horrible accident—a young child killed. That picture will always stay with me, and at times when I am tempted to cross the street when the red signal isn't on, I think of that accident. Then I stop and wait until I can pass in safety. Many times I have been standing with other people waiting to cross the street. They would try to cross, but I would say: "The red light isn't on."

One thing I always remembered is never step out on the street from behind an auto, for I know that many accidents happen that way.

Before crossing the street I look up and down the street to see if there is any auto coming and if I can cross in safety. I believe in "Haste makes waste."

In heavy traffic there are policemen all over and I believe if we all would follow directions there wouldn't be any accidents.

I know that I'm doing my duty and guarding myself, but I hope that I'm also setting an example to all others who see me and in that way be a good "American citizen."

VIOLA VOLLEWITZ, Age 13.

A Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to you and I hope you enjoy reading it. The name of my story is "My Dream in the Public Library."

When I was 8 years old it was a habit of mine to visit the library every Saturday afternoon.

On one particular Saturday I went in the evening. Without getting the permission of the librarian, I ventured downstairs in search of adventure. When I reached the lower floor I found some interesting magazines and I forgot to notice the time. The lights went out and I heard a door slam.

What was I to do? I tried to get out, but without success. Books seemed to be everywhere. Finally there seemed nothing else for me to do but to sit down and try to fall asleep. My, what a beautiful town that was! I was beginning to feel rather hungry.

After knocking at a door, I was ushered into a house by a kind looking woman. I was not there long before a large giant who resembled Jack the Giant Killer walked in. Then after him came Hercules. I began calling Help! HELP! I awoke then.

Making a May Basket

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you before, and I enjoy writing. This time I am going to tell you about making a May basket. Every May we have wonderful times making and sending May baskets. I didn't want to let this May go by and not make any May basket and send it.

I got a middle-sized box which was quite deep. I got some pink and white tissue paper and covered it. I braided the handle with the pink and white tissue paper. On top of the pink paper on the sides I cut out little white flowers and pastedthem on

Then I went to the fields and I picked all kinds of pretty flowers and put them all around in the inside of the baskets. Then I got many different kinds of fruit, candy and cake and put them inside of the box.

THELMA GOLDBERG
Colchester.

A May Basket

Dear Uncle Jed: Tonight we are going to hang a May basket on one of our friends. My sister helped me make it by cutting off a can and then I covered it over with red paper. Last of all I pasted on the handle. We are going to put in fruit and home-made candy, also gather flowers for the top.

ELEANOR SANTO, Age 6.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 8.

Feeds the Birds

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I am going to tell you about my pet robins. Every morning when I take the breakfast dishes away I gather the crumbs from the table and open the window and throw the crumbs out. After a while I see my pet robins eating them. Sometimes some sparrows come and eat. I never forget to feed them.

DOROTHY PHELAN, Age 10.
Killingly, R. F. D. No. 1.

Our Canary

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to write and tell all the Wide-Awakes about our canary, whose name is "Peanut." A neighbor of ours was going to the hospital, so she gave Peanut to us and we sure appreciated such a fine gift.

He has a beautiful voice and every morning I give him a bath, clean his cage, give him clean water and fresh birdseed, then put him near the window so the sun shines on him.

As soon as he sees the sun he sings so loud. I wish all the Wide-Awakes were as lucky as I am to be able to care for a beautiful canary and to know how he appreciates all the care he gets by singing for us.

ROSE MAE CURRIER, Age 12.
Plainfield.

Likes School

Dear Uncle Jed and Wide-Awakes: I have just started school and can't write very well, so my sister is writing for me. I am going to tell you how I like school. I am in grade 1A and I go to school every day. I am trying to learn real hard and am in a hurry to graduate so I can be a teacher. I like arithmetic and reading best of all my lessons and I have a few books. I can read now that I go to school. I hope all the Wide-Awakes like school as well as I do.

BETTY CURRIER, Age 8.
Plainfield.

My Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my third letter to you. I am going to tell you about my dog. I have a dog 10 years old named Rex. His head is brown, his back is black, and his feet and tail are black. He has a white stripe across his body. My dog can do tricks. He weighs ten pounds. Sometimes when we take him for a ride he stands up in back and looks all around. When strangers come in the house he goes under the stove and barks. When he wants to go outside he scratches on the door and when he wants to come in he puts his head in the window. When we take him to bed downstairs in the cellar he comes up by the door and barks.

SILVIA SEGER, Age 10.
Colchester.

A Puzzled Doctor

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide-Awakes enjoy my story of Dr. Brown Puzzled.

Dr. Brown had seen many sick people. But this was the first time a sick doll had come to him. He thought and thought. Then he went into another room with the doll, and Grace thought she heard some people laughing. When the doctor returned he told Grace that she would find the doll as good as new when she came for it tomorrow.

MARIE PAUL BERNIER, Age 10.
Plainfield.

Cat Killed Rabbit

Dear Uncle Jed: Last year I had two little brown rabbits given to me. Frankie, my little brother, and I pull green grass for them to eat. They also like toasted bread. One day a strange cat came and killed one of them. This made me feel very badly, because they were my favorite pets. My older brother, Peter, went to see the friend who gave me the rabbits and told him that I had lost one, so he gave me two more. Now I keep them in a box where nothing can get them. How many of the Wide-Awakes have rabbits for pets? This is my first letter and I hope you will like it.

MAY BUILD NEW COUNTY HOME NEAR NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

If the county commissioners and the full board of trustees of the Norwich state hospital reach an agreement at a meeting which is to be held next Monday, the new site for the county home will be within the limits of the town of Norwich, a plot of about ten acres on the easterly side of the Military highway south of the Walter F. Lester place. The land is now owned by the Norwich state hospital.

The three county commissioners George H. Bradford of Montville, Charles H. Smith of Noank and Elisha Waterman of Lebanon, met the finance committee of the hospital trustees Monday afternoon in the office of Judge Arthur F. Libby and discussed with them the possibility of purchase of this tract in consequence of which the joint meeting is to be held next Monday morning at 11 o'clock to take action on selling the tract. The other members of the finance committee, besides Judge Libby, are Dr. J. J. Donohue, Charles A. Hazbery and Judge Nelson J. Aviing.

The site which the county commissioners have indicated is their choice for a new location for the county home is on a section of the Military highway which has been widened and greatly improved within the past year. It is on a trunk line highway with bus transportation, has city water supply from the main which supplies the state hospital, and is within the territory for electric light and power from the city department plant.

The site is on high land and provides a beautiful and unobstructed view across the Thames river towards the grounds of Uncas-on-Thames and the hills in the distance.

CHARGE DOCTOR FAILED TO REPORT SMALLPOX

A new development in the smallpox situation in this section of the state has arisen with the arrest of Arthur H. Meyers, well known Mystic physician, on a warrant charging him with failing to report a case of the dreaded disease to the health authorities of the town of Groton, in violation of a state statute. The warrant, issued by County Health Officer Hibbard R. Norman, Norwich attorney, was served upon Dr. Meyers by a state trooper from the Groton barracks. Through agreement between Prosecuting Attorney Harry Brogan of the Groton town court and Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, counsel for the accused physician, no bonds were demanded, his appearance in court Monday was not requested, and next Monday was assigned for the trial of the case.

The warrant, as issued by the county medical officer, specifically charges that Dr. Meyers failed to report to the proper authorities that Mrs. James Chesebro of Mystic, whom he was called upon to treat May 16, was a victim of smallpox, thereby violating a law which demands that a report of such cases be made by the attending physician within a period of 12 hours. The warrant for the Mystic physician's arrest, it was learned on Monday, was issued upon information transmitted to the county health officer by Dr. Louis M. Allyn, health officer of the town of Groton.

County Health Officer Norman said that he did not know the other side of the case and said that it was probable that Dr. Meyers might hold a version entirely different from that of the Groton health physician. Dr. Meyers declined to comment upon the situation, but intimated he would have plenty to say before the action instituted against him is completed.

The issuance of the warrant against Dr. Meyers has resulted in considerable discussion in the town of Groton in particular and throughout the state in general and the outcome of the controversy will be awaited with much interest.

LOCAL REAL ESTATE MEN AT NEW LONDON MEETING

Members of the local real estate board attended a banquet and reception tendered to President Harry H. Culver of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, held at the Hotel Mohican in New London, on Saturday last. There were about 35 present including members of the Norwich and New London real estate boards besides leading bankers and business men of the two cities. Mr. Culver, whose home is in Culver City, California, which city was founded and named after him was the principal speaker of the evening, his address proving to be very interesting. The opening portion of his remarks were devoted to various phases of the real estate business. He then told his listeners of his interesting experiences in flying about the country visiting the various real estate boards. Mr Culver's visit to New London was but part of his plan originated early in the year to make five airplane tours of the United States and Canada, which will include visits to each of the 633 local real estate boards holding membership in the national association. On one of the tours several cities in Mexico including Mexico City will be included. Mr. Culver is giving practically all his time to his duties as president of the association. In order to conserve time and make his air trips as efficiently as possible Mr. Culver has established an office in the plane which he has purchased for these tours. This is the first association office on record to be conducted in the air. He landed in it at the Groton airport.

The plane which Mr. Culver has bought especially for the association office is a Stinson-Detroiter, six passenger enclosed monoplane, with a 36 Wright whirlwind 320 horsepower engine. Its average speed is from 125 to 150 miles an hour. Mr. Culver has during the past year made four continental air flights in his own private airplane which likewise carried office equipment. He employs a pilot in the same manner that one engages a chauffeur. Lieut. James B. Dickson formerly an army aviator is Mr. Culver's pilot. He received his training at Kelly and Langley fields and has between 1600 and 1700 flying hours to his credit.

Mr. Culver states that he and his family, which consists of his wife and young daughter, Patricia, think nothing of flying from California to New York and back, and that his mother, who is 76, often goes up with them out on the west coast. He has flown 76,000 miles and has never had anything worse than a slight accident. He does not take chances by flying at night, in the fog or rain.

Attending the meeting from Norwich were Francis D. Donohue, Frank A. Bill, Gilbert S. Raymond, Frank Spicer, A. C. Burdick, Archa W. Colt and Joseph S. Adams.

RAISED OVER $116,000 IN CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE

Final returns of over $116,000 on the recent Christmas seal sale in Connecticut were announced, according to a report made by Miss Mabel Baird, state campaign director, before the meeting of the state tuberculosis commission at Hartford Monday. The report, which shows an increase of over $4,000, was based on the final returns from more than 75 local agents of the commission, under whose direction the seal campaign has been conducted annually since 1914. A further interesting fact revealed by the statement shows that the Christmas seal sale as organized by the tuberculosis commission in this state has increased from $17,000 in the first year to the present high total of over $116,000.

More than half of the towns in the state increased their totals over the 1927 sale, the largest sum being raised in New Haven, $12,622, followed by Hartford with over $10,000, Bridgeport, third with $9,377, and Stamford fourth with $4,326.

PHILIP PLANT'S EX-WIFE COMES OVER FROM PARIS

Of the movie wife of Philip Manwaring Plant, formerly of Oswegatchie and Eastern Point, a Chicago paper says: Back from two years in Europe and fresh from a pending Paris divorce from Philip Plant involving $1,000,000 alimony, Constance Bennett, daughter of the actor, Richard Bennett, passed through Chicago yesterday with only one thought in mind. That was the job awaiting her in Hollywood—starring in the proposed talkies of "This Thing Called Love."

Miss Bennett for all her tries at marriage still believes in it, she told reporters. And Paris gowns are still the most beautiful in the world. To prove it she had with her seven trunks, and wore a becoming beige traveling suit, beige felt hat, and beige lizard skin shoes.

Miss Bennett lunched at the Morrison hotel bungalow with her father, who is playing in "Jarnegan" at a loop theater, and her stepmother, Joan Bennett. She went on to California last night on the Santa Fe Chief.

"A million alimony" is doubtless in stage money, since the adopted son of the late Morton F. Plant derives his income chiefly from what is settled upon his, by his mother, Mrs. Wm. H. Hayward, of New York, whose blonde beauty started a romance world circling in sensation when she was the simple chatelaine of the present Oswegatchie house, as the wife of the late Selden B. Manwaring. The latter married her when she taught the village school at East Lyme.

Fined For Speeding

Found guilty of the charge of speeding Fred Miller of Jewett City was fined $10 and costs, when he was presented in Griswold town court Monday morning before Judge John T. Barry. Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski prosecuted the case. Officer Henry Viegard of Jewett City arrested the man.

NORWICH TOWN

By special request, the one act bible drama "The Return of the Prodigal," was presented for the second time Sunday evening in the auditorium of the First Congregational church. The play, which was given under the auspices of the men's department of the League of Service, was under the able direction of Miss Sadie J. Dawson, the coach during its rehearsals. The organist, Herbert L. Yerrington, was accompanist for the singing and the solo parts were taken by Arthur R. Blackledge. The location of the drama was a large estate in Galilee, in the days when the Temple was standing. This religious drama based on the well known parable in the gospel of Luke, was portrayed by eight characters in oriental costume. Eliad, a land owner of Galilee, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey; Beniah, his elder son, Reginald Avery; Joseph, the prodigal son, Charles W. Barber; Shemel, a wealthy neighbor, James F. Connolly; Abigail, his daughter, Mrs. Charles W. Barber; Bicknl, an old servant, Arthur W. Avery; neighbors, Miss Lucille Browning and Crosby Peck. In a recent religious drama contest held by the Drama League of America, this play was awarded first prize. When presented Sunday evening, May 12th it met with such favor by those who braved the severe storm of the evening, that a request was made for its repetition the following Sunday evening, when there was a good attendance. The drama was preceded by the regular Sunday evening meeting at 6:30 of the C. E. society. This was a leaderless meeting; all who attended having a part during the hour. The topic assigned was "Why is Jesus the World's Greatest Leader? The scripture reference was in John.

FORTY HOURS' DEVOTION AT SACRED HEART CHURCH

When the forty hours' devition opened at the Sacred Heart church Sunday morning at the 10 o'clock mass there was an unusually large congregation. The music was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. William A. Murphy. Hamma's mass was sung. While the choir sang Pange Lingua, the long procession of children, moved led by an altar boy carrying the cross and two others with lighted candles. Preceding the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn, bearing the sacred host, were a number of tiny girls strewing spring blossoms from decorative baskets. The girls in the procession wore dainty white frocks and wreaths of smilax. In his brief announcements Rev. Father Quinn reminded his parishioners of the great blessings that the forty-hour devition brings to a parish and to its homes. He expressed the hope that all would be faithful in attendance and obtain all the blessings attached to the devotion.

Under the direction of the Altar society the decorations in the sanctuary comprise showering palms and flowering plants, with lilies, roses and carnations.

Confessions were heard Sunday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock and again in the evening at 7.30. Father Quinn is being assisted by visiting priests in order to give all people an opportunity to conclude making their Easter duty. The same hours for confession were followed Monday, in the afternoon at 4 and evening at 7.30. Holy communion was administered at 6 also at 7 o'clock Monday morning, mass being at 7.30. The mass this (Tuesday) morning at 7.30 is to be a high mass, this being the closing day of the devotion, which commemorates the period during which the body of the Saviour remained in the sepulchre before His resurrection.

The meeting of the Drop-In class of the First Congregational Sunday school scheduled for this (Tuesday) afternoon at the home of Mrs. David M. Dean was held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Mrs. Dean's.

Regret Cashier Leahy's Death

ROW IN SENATE OVER ROLL CALL OF VOTE ON LENROOT

Senator Reed Resented an Attempt by Senator Blaine to Read a Published Roll Call—Vice President Curtis Overruled Reed's Objection, and the Senate Sustained the Ruling 63 to 9—Reed Asserted There is Some Hypocrite in the Senate Who Prattles About Law Enforcement and Then Peddles Out Secretly That Which He is in Honor Bound Not to Divulge—Rules Committee Will Meet Today to Consider the Situation.

WASHINGTON, May 21—(AP)—Publication of a roll call purporting to show the vote in executive session of the senate on the confirmation of Irvine Lenroot as a judge of the court of customs appeals provoked heated words in the senate today and brought a call for an investigation.

The roll call, which was sent out by several newspapermen, was described by Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, as "inaccurate" in several instances. It was read into the record, however, by Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, after a futile attempt by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, to stop him.

The senate upheld a ruling of Vice President Curtis that the published roll call could be read into the record by a vote of 63 to 9. After Senator Blaine had put it into the record, Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, inquired if there was to be an investigation of the manner in which the names on the roll call reached the press. Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, announced that the rules committee was meeting tomorrow to consider that question.

Senator Blaine said he did not vouch for the accuracy of the roll call and Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, later asked him if it was his purpose to put it into the record in order to force those members who were misrepresented to correct their positions and thereby disclose the real roll call. Blaine resented the question and Vice President Curtis called the Connecticut senator to order.

Senator Reed was severe in his condemnation of the publication of the roll call, declaring "there is some hypocrite here who prattles out loud about law enforcement who in secrecy does what he dare not do publicly and gives out this information."

Senator Glenn, republican, Illinois, inquired if the purported Lenroot roll call was published by a reporter for the same press organization which ended the world war a week in advance. Reed said he did not know.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, urged that the senate abolish the rule of secrecy on executive sessions "because I want to take away from the member of this senate or the employe the market for his own dishonor."

Senator Reed referred later to the "so-called ethics of that so-called profession," referring to newspaper work.

"We all know," he declared, "that if any one of the newspaper reporters is called on to testify before a committee as to the sources of his information, then in accordance with the so-called ethics of that so-called profession he will decline to say where he got his information."

"It is high time that the senate took a self-respecting position in its attitude toward the newspapers that flaunt its rules. I do not see any particular reason why we should be afraid to enforce our rules against them, and I hope we will do so. If we are afraid then there is not much use in having rules."

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, interposed that "if we can succeed in enforcing the rules against ourselves we will not have any trouble with the newspapers."

BREAK IN DEMOCRATS IN HOUSE ON TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, May 21—(AP)—The first approval of the pending tariff bill by a democrat was given in house debate today by Representative Hill, of Washington, and his sentiments were echoed later by a staunch administration supporter, Representative Fort, of New Jersey.

Meanwhile republican leaders were scrutinizing a final draft of the special rule which they plan to bring forward to expedite consideration of the measure in the amendment stage. They will seek support for the rule in a second conference of the entire house majority membership either tomorrow or Thursday.

Hill, who recently was chosen for a minority vacancy on the ways and means committee, was the only one of the ten democrats on that committee not to oppose the majority report on the tariff bill. He voted "present."

While asserting that the measure did not go far enough in protecting agriculture, Hill advocated its passage today on the ground that it represented a step in that direction. He expressed the hope that further increases in duties on farm products would be provided by committee amendments and predicted the measure would be greatly improved before passage.

Representative Fort, who is regarded as an administration spokesman in the house, advocated passage of the measure but suggested a change in the flexible provisions which would permit the president to grant emergency relief to some free list commodities without waiting for a congressional revision.

SHOWER OF MISSILES FOR ALLEGED WIFE DESERTER

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP)—In a shower of miscellaneous articles flung by the girl who charges he married her while he already had a wife and two children, Stephen Crowninshield, 30-year-old mechanic of Boston, moved rapidly out of court here today, en route to Taunton, Mass., to face a charge of wife desertion.

Miss Betty Moran had Crowninshield arrested, charging that after their "marriage" in Lodi, N. J., June 2, 1928, she learned he had a wife and children living in Taunton. Deputy Police Chief T. Edward Young of Taunton appeared in court today, and Crowninshield was turned over to him.

As Crowninshield and Chief Young left the courtroom, Miss Moran and her mother followed, and the girl began to throw things at Crowninshield. A shower of articles, including her wedding ring and the contents of her purse followed Crowninshield down the stairs. He was not hit, but Chief Young was.

Miss Moran said she first learned of Crowninshield's alleged duplicity when his brother arrived from Massachusetts to look for him, their father being ill in Boston.

4 BUILDINGS PADLOCKED IN SOMERVILLE, MASS.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., May 21—(AP)—Four buildings in the "Brick Bottom" section of this city were padlocked today under a court decree ordering them closed for a year. Decrees for the padlocking of six other places in the same vicinity will become effective on June 7. All the places were adjudged common nuisances. The padlock proceedings were brought against various property owners by District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell after a series of raids.

SEN. WHEELER INVITED TO ADDRESS STRIKERS

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 21—(AP)—William F. Kelly, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, today announced that Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, had been invited to address a mass meeting of striking employes of the American Glanzstoff and American Bemberg mills here Thursday.

Kelly's announcement accompanied criticism of the report of Captain Tom M. Henderson, of the judge advocate generals' department, to Governor Henry Horton in which the situation here was said to be well in the hands of authorities, with no need for martial law.

The union leaders said Captain Henderson confined his investigation to talks with civil and military authorities and did not discuss the situation with strike leaders.

Approximately 50 strikers will face trial on charges of contempt of court tomorrow for alleged violation of an injunction granted the textile mills at the inception of the strike, prohibiting interference with the operation of the plants.

Both civil and military authorities tonight were without clue as to the identity of the persons who shot up the house of one non-union textile worker and set off twenty explosions of dynamite in the hills.

Reports of night riding in the deep hill sections where some textile workers live were received at military headquarters today and were under investigation.

SWOLLEN STREAMS ARE CAUSING ANXIETY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 21—(AP)—Swollen streams tonight had spread anxiety over low lying sections of several states, but hundreds of men working at dangerous points in the levee system had succeeded in preventing any fresh breaks.

The most desperate fights were along the Mississippi river. Ten miles south of Kickman, Ky., tha old Reelfoot levee was crumbling and engineers sought a way to let the water flow through it gradually and against a new dyke a quarter of a mile to the east. If this can be accomplished it was believed a crevasse could be averted in that stretch of the embankment which protects a large acreage in Lake County, Tenn.

Precautions against a crevasse were taken, however, with the sending of the steamer Kankakee, equipped with life boats, for use in an emergency. Five boats were standing by near Hickman, Ky.

Mounds Landing levee north of Greenville, Miss., continued to resist the pressure of the Mississippi. A loop box was under construction there to strengthen the weakening section. J. S. Allen, chief engineer of the board of Mississippi levee commissioners, said conditions were improved, although the seriousness of the situation had not been removed.

MORGAN & CO. TO HANDLE "MORROW" ANNOUNCEMENTS

NORTH HAVEN, Me., May 21—(AP)—A statement issued from the summer home of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow today said that all announcements regarding the activities or plans of the family or of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, fiancee of Miss Anne Morrow, who brought four members of the family here Saturday would be made through the offices of J. P. Morgan and company, in New York.

Request for confirmation of a reported extortion plot against Constance Morrow, 15 years old, brought the statement from one of the four men who have been on guard at the 33 acre estate since Saturday. The guard, whose name was not disclosed, said he was "authorized to make the statement for the family."

"In accordance with a previous statement that any announcement will be made from New York, it is requested that you communicate with Mr. Martin Egan, of J. P. Morgan and company in regard to any rumors which have arisen," the guard said.

Mr. Morrow resigned his membership in the Morgan banking firm when he accepted appointment as ambassador to Mexico.

Meanwhile the Morrow party stayed close to the fireside of the spacious house while a northeaster drove an almost steady rain over this little island just off the Maine coast.

It was the second anniversary of Lindbergh's flight to Paris. Just how the day was passed could not be learned.

The amphibian cabin plane in which the party flew here from New York remained in front of the house.

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF THE PROHIBITION LAW

NEW HAVEN, May 2.—(AP)—The president and an employe of Amendo's Brothers, Inc. largest barbers' supply company in the state, were under arrest charged with violation of the prohibition law after a visit to the establishment today by a federal agent assigned to inspect perfumery manufacturers.

The employe, Domenick Esposito, was arrested at the warehouse and Andrew Amendola of West Haven was placed under arrest when he appeared before U. S. Commissioner Alcorn with bondsmen for Esposito. Both were released under bonds of $1,000 each.

Esposito was apprehended by the federal agent as he was about to drive a truck with 11 five gallon cans of what is claimed to be pure alcohol away from the plant. After making an inspection of the establishment the agent returned to find Esposito pouring a strong essence into the cans.

Amendola and Esposito were ordered to appear before Commissioner Alcorn for a hearing Monday.

He emphasized that no matter how perfect a home may be it was good to leave it occasionally and visit new territory.

Allies Draft Reply to German Suggestions

It is Reported That the Allied Experts Have Accepted Some of Dr. Schacht's Conditions.

PARIS, May 21—(AP)—The barometer of the reparations conference went up today with the announcement that the allied delegates had finally agreed on their reply to certain conditions which the German delegation had posed as acceptance of Owen D. Young's reparations settlement plan.

The reply was in the form of a letter to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, it will be transmitted to him tomorrow with the tentative draft of the second Dawes committee's report.

This report, embodying the German conditions and reservations made by the creditor countries respecting them, was practically completed this evening.

When the Germans have received it both sides will finally be at close grips with one another, and in reparations circles it is thought that the final issue can be delayed no more than a week.

According to the best information, the allied experts accepted half a dozen of Dr. Schacht's conditions. They reserved three for further discussion after the German delegation has taken cognizance of their views.

There remain two conditions which the creditor experts have thus far rejected, and these will furnish the material for the decisive negotiations with Dr. Schacht.

One of these conditions is understood to be the German demand for the right to convene another conference of experts to revise the settlement now under discussion whenever the reich's economic situation appeared to justify it.

The other concerns postponement of reparations payments for two years whenever the financial situation of the German treasury warrants it. Under the Dawes plan transfers are subject to protection whenever they are likely to disturb the German exchange, but payments within Germany to the agent general of reparations continue under any circumstances.

The creditor experts maintain that it is sufficient to protect transfers on part of the protected annuities and that postponement of payments within Germany are inadmissible.

The tug of war between the Germans and their creditors will come on these two conditions.

MEMORANDA MAY INVOLVE SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP)—Terse memoranda almost unintelligible to the casual reader but interpreted by witnesses as telling of relations between the defunct City Trust company and Frank H. Warder, resigned superintendent of banks, were submitted in evidence today at the investigation by Robert Moses, Moreland commissioner, into the state banking department.

Fred W. Piderit, bank examiner, said he had found the memoranda in a little red book, which has since disappeared, in the desk of Anthony Di Paolo, treasurer of the City Trust, after the institution had collapsed with millions in bad loans. The memoranda was unsigned and read:

"Cashed check of Atl. for 30000. F. M. F. V. P. who brought the cash by cab in bills of 1 m and 500 to redraw.

"425 Riverside Drive apt. 69. M. F. went to Hightaman party dig. of Fed and Atl. bank.

"Eddy went to bank dept. to ask for merger approved and Inc. of capital."

The word "redraw" in the first notation, Piderit said, spelled Warder backwards, and a letter from F. J. O'Connell, third deputy banking superintendent to Joseph A. Broderick, who succeeded Warder, was quoted as reading: "F. M. F. withdrew $30,000 from the Atlantic tate bank in $1,000 and $5,000 denominations." The Atlantic State bank and the Harlem Bank of Commerce were consolidated to form the City Trust company. The initials "F. M. F." were said to refer to F. M. Ferrari, late head of the City Trust.

O'Connell testified he turned the red book over to Warder while Warder was still in office, pointing out to the superintendent the Riverside Drive address.

"Gee, that's my house," O'Connell quoted Warder as saying at that time, although the deputy testified the superintendent later said he didn't "remember ever having seen the book."

From Walter H. Halloran, chauffeur for Ferrari, came testimony that he had often driven Ferrari to Warder's home, sometimes delivering "eggs, chickens and other packages" from "the farm out at Hightstown."

"Were there ever any bottles to be delivered to Mr. Warder," asked Commissioner Moses.

"I don't know," the chauffeur replied. "There could have been."

Airmen Undertaking Numerous Ventures

They Include Endurance Flight Records—Two Atlantic Flights Planned For This Week.

(By The Associated Press)

These are busy days in the air.

One refueling endurance flight began Sunday, another yesterday, a third was planned for today and a fourth may be started before the week is out.

Besides that two Atlantic flights from America to Europe will begin this week if the weather gets good.

The endurance flight that began Sunday was at Fort Worth, Texas, and in the first part of third day of flight the two-man crew showed no sign of wearying.

The endurance flight beginning yesterday was at Roosevelt field, N. Y., a three-man crew using a pick-up device for refueling instead of the tube from another plane employed in the Texas attempt.

The edurance flight scheduled for today is at Wichita, Kas., a two-man crew with a refueling plane to keep their tanks filled. All the endurance planes are single motored monoplane.

Miss Viola Gentry, former holder of the women's solo endurance flight record, plans to take off in a few days with a man companion in a refueling attempt at the world record of more than 150 hours established by the tri-motored army plane, Question Mark.

The Atlantic flights planned for this week are in the American monoplane, "Green Flash," with Roger Williams and Lewis Yancey from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome, and the French monoplane Yellow Bird from Roosevelt field to Paris with Rene Lefevre, Jean Assolant and Armand Lotti.

PLANE STILL IN AIR FOR ENDURANCE RECORD

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 21—(AP)—In a light-hearted mood after more than two days and nights in the air, R. L. Robbins and James Kelly, commercial fliers, continued to wheel about over the Meacham airport here late today in their single-motored monoplane Fort Worth bent on establishing a new world's endurance flight record.

The airmen, who took off at 11:33 a. m. Sunday, were approaching the 60-hour mark aloft. In notes dropped from the plane they indicated they still were confident of exceeding the 150-hour record of the army monoplane Question Mark, which carried a crew of five.

Taking fuel from another plane twice daily, the "Fort Worth" has run smoothly with one exception since it left the ground.

"THREE MUSKETEERS" UP LESS THAN SIX HOURS

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 21—(AP)—The "Three Musketeers" were forced down tonight less than six hours after their takeoff in an attempt to establish a new refueling endurance flight record. Damage to the right stabilizer in an attempt to pick up fuel from the ground caused the plane to land.

"GREEN FLASH" TUNED UP FOR FLIGHT TO ROME

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 21—(AP)—The monoplane "Green Flash" rested in a hanger here tonight, tuned for a 4,700 mile flight to Rome, Italy, which weather advices indicated could not be begun before Thursday.

Roger Q. Williams, pilot, and Lewis A. Yancey, his navigator, checked over the plane's motor and instruments while waiting a report of Atlantic weather conditions from Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist at the New York weather bureau. Unfavorable weather for 36 hours was forecast in the report.

NO COMPROMISE ON THE EXPORT DEBENTURE PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 21—(AP)—House members of the farm relief conference committee stood firm today in their contention that the export debenture plan must be eliminated from consideration before an agreement can be approached on differences between the house and senate farm bills.

Senate members of the committee insisted the house itself ought to be permitted to have a roll call vote on the debenture section, but house conferees declared they could not ask this because that branch considered the section an invasion by the senate of the house's right to initiate revenue legislation.

Although the meeting for the second time broke up a total disagreement, the conferees were not pessimistic about the ultimate outcome of their negotiations.

In preparation for another meeting of the conference committee tomorrow, Chairman McNary, of the senate agriculture committee, talked over the situation with those leaders. They were unable, however to conclude on anything that might speedily help the situation.

"We will meet again tomorrow but I don't know what for," McNary said smilingly.

CRUDE OIL PRODUCERS HAVE RAISED PRICES

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP)—Leading crude oil producers of the country lost little time today in raising the prices of their product to meet the advances announced by the Prairie Oil and Gas company in mid-continent crude oil.

In fact, higher prices became general as company after company announced higher rates. The movement spread to other fields and companies operating in the Salt Creek, Wyoming area, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas districts and in the central western districts, also announced higher prices.

Later it was learned that prices of Columbian and Peruvian crude will be based on the new mid-continent schedules.

Among the companies meeting the advances announced by the Prairie company were the Sinclair Oil and Gas company, Phillips Petroleum company, Marland Oil company, Ohio Oil company, mid-West Refining company, Magnolia Petroleum company and the Gulf Pipe Line company.

RAILROADS AUTHORIZED TO LOWER FREIGHT RATES

Intestate Commerce Commission Permits Eastern and Western Roads to Reduce Rates on Export Wheat and Wheat Flour—President Hoover is Confident There Will Be No Increase in Railroad Rates as a Result of the Supreme Court O'Fallon Decision.

WASHINGTON, May 21—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today authorized eastern and western railroads to reduce freight rates on export wheat and wheat flour.

Application for the reduced rates recently was made by the railroads on the suggestion of the administration to aid farmers in disposing of the present surplus crop before the new crop is harvested.

Permission already has been granted for reduced rates on wheat from Buffalo to north Atlantic ports.

Authority was granted the railroads to put the reduced rates into effect on one day's notice and they will continue until September 30.

Following the lead of the railroads, the Mississippi-Warrior service, which operates on the Mississippi river, today applied for permission to reduce the rail-barge rates on wheat and flour for export to make them the same as the railroad rates.

The highest reduction granted the railroads was 11 1-2 cents per hundred pounds from points in Colorado, Kansas and in Missouri.

The highest reduction granted the railroads was 11 1-2 cents per hundred pounds from points in Colorado, Kansas and in Missouri south of the Missouri river to gulf ports.

WILL BE NO INCREASE IN RAILROAD RATES

WASHINGTON, May 21—(AP)—Confidence that there will be no increase in railroad rates as a result of the supreme court decision in the St. Louis and O'Fallon railroad valuation case was expressed today by President Hoover.

The chief executive, replying to inquiries of newspaper correspondents at his regular Tuesday conference, made his sizzle sentence statement:

"I am confident that there will be no increase in railroad rates as a result of the O'Fallon decision."

There was no explanation as to the reason for this confidence, but coincident with his announcement expressions of similar views were made by interstate commerce commission officials and some presidents of trunk line railroads both in the east and the west.

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, said his line "has no thought of requesting any general increase in rates," adding that he saw nothing in the decision to cause any change in the policy of the road with respect to rate advances.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio expressed the opinion that the decision would have no immediate effect whatever on railroad rates. He agreed with other officers of the big carriers that it would afford a guide for the interstate commerce commission in fixing lawful valuation of the roads as a basis for the calculation of so-called excess earnings as provided in the transportation act.

P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central Lines, took the position that the decision "does not appear to provide the occasion for any program at this time looking to general increase in railroad rates, which must always be largely influenced by commercial conditions."

The view that the decision would be a good thing for the country as a whole was voiced by Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and Northwestern.

"It will encourage further development and improvement," he added, "and I probably will not adversely affect rate structures because rates have been and will continue to be made on what the traffic will reasonably bear."

LAW ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION TO ASSEMBLE NEXT TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, May 21—(AP)—President Hoover's national law enforcement commission will assemble here next Tuesday for a white house luncheon and an oranization meeting later in the cabinet room of the executive offices.

Announcement of the date of the first session of the eleven investigators was made today at the white house after a long distance telephone conference between advisers of the president and George W. Wickersham, of New York, the commission chairman.

This will give members from the Pacific coast ample time to transact necessary private business before a prolonged absence from their homes. The plans of the commission will be worked out by the members at the organization and subsequent meetings.

Mr. Hoover is making no statement concerning the precise scope of the work of the commissioners in advance of his conference with them next week, but he is hopeful that they can get under way very promptly.

President Hoover has deprecated the tendency to regard the forthcoming inquiry as one into prohibition and has emphasized that it will be much broader in scope.

FIVE MEN WERE FATALLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

REVERE, Mass., May 21—(AP)—Five Young men were fatally injured and two others less seriously hurt, when their automobile crashed through an iron railing and plunged 50 feet to a road bed here today.

The accident occurred, according to police, when Weiner, the driver, in attempting to pass a car ahead of him, hit a machine coming in the opposite direction, and swerved to the left of the road. After hitting a post on the left side of the road, the car recochetted to the opposite side and plunged through the iron railing.

Shortly after the bodies of the dead and the injured had been removed from the wreckage, the gasoline tank exploded. One of the survivors told police that the machine was travelling at a fast rate of speed. The point where the accident occurred is a curved incline.

TWO YOUNG BROTHERS SUFFOCATED IN BARN

DOVER, N. H., May 21—(AP)—Charles Jewell, 5, and his brother, Fred, 4, were suffocated today during a fire which destroyed their home here. The fire started in a barn adjoining the house and fire officials believed that the children were playing with matches.

The Jewell home was three miles from the center of this town and aid from Dover and Salmon Falls was called. When firemen reached the scene the flames had attacked the house.

Firemen found the bodies of the two children huddled in a corner furthest from the barn door. Although death was due to suffocation, their bodies were burned badly.

EDITOR ROBERT E. BURNS GOING BACK TO PRISON

CHICAGO, May 21.—(AP) —Robert Elliot Burns, graduate of a Georgia chain gang and editor of the Greater Chicago magazine, laid down the editorial pencil today to go back to prison.

A fugitive from the prison camp to which he had been sentenced for a $4 holdup, Burns was arrested in his office here today on a tip he said had been given by a "woman scorned—his wife. He told the detectives his magazine had been netting him $20,000 a year.

Burns related his story at the detective bureau. He had gone overseas with the fourth engineers from his home at Bay Ridge, a Brooklyn suburb, and returning had been a newspaper reporter in New York. He had drifted to Atlanta, made the rounds of the flop-houses and in company with two pals had held up a Fulton county grocer for a purse of $4. They were caught, and Burns' sentence was six to ten years.

"I had served about three months on a road gang in Campbell county swinging a sledge," Burns said, "when I thought of a chance to escape. We were all shackled with heavy chains. There was a big negro next to me who could swing a hammer with the precision of a machine.

"One day when the guards weren't near us I had him take a swing at the steel shackle on my ankle. If he had missed it would have been my leg. The blow cracked the band and a little later I went into the bushes and slipped it off."

SUCCESSFUL AERIAL ATTACK ON NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)— Descent of an aerial "bomb" on Governor's Island tonight signalled the army's successful aerial attack on New York.

Concealed behind heavy clouds which it had fought from Wright field, Dayton, Ohio, an army bombing plane dropped three parachute flares over the army post just below the tip of Manhattan to stimulate an air raid on the principal seaport of the east coast.

The huge plane was flying low when it appeared suddenly over the Battery at the tip of Manhattan, flew over the bay to Governor's Island.

Dropping its parachute flares, the bomber circled the island and for a few moments was clearly visible in the light of the flares. As it completed its circling of the island and headed toward the west, the flares burned themselves out, the "air radio" was over and the craft disappeared in the darkness.

Army observers estimated that the plane had sufficient fuel to remain in the air two hours after it left New York and on that theory believed that the ship proceeded on to Atlantic City, the second point of "attack" on the east coast "raid."

QUESTION VALIDITY OF TARDILY SIGNED ACTS

HARTFORD, May 21.—(AP) — The validity of 631 special acts and 101 public acts of the general assembly which the governors since 1919 had signed more than three days after the adjournment of the legislature was called into question by the McCook case in arguments before the supreme court in Hartford today.

The question is raised by the failure of Gov. John H. Trumbull to sign within a period of three legislative days the special act under which the state seeks to acquire part of the land of the McCook estate at East Lyme for use for a tuberculosis sanitorium.

"That seems to suggest some rather serious questions," was the comment drawn from Associate Justice William M. Maltbie, in the course of the arguments.

To hold that the practice of such great constitutional lawyers as Gov. Baldwin and Holcomb was wrong in signing legislative acts more than three days after the adjournment of the general assembly, and followed by Govs. Templeton and Trumbull was to bring into question a great mass of important legislation, said Arthur M. Brown, of Norwich, special attorney for the state, in stating such a contingency.

ELKS BOWLING LEAGUE HOLDS SEMI-ANNUAL BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 21—Some 70 members of the bowling leagues of Willimantic lodge, No. 1911, B. P. O. E., made merry at the second semi-annual banquet of the pin splitters held at Clearwater inn, East Hampton tonight. The trip was made in private automobiles which formed in a procession at the Elks home at 6.30 o'clock. Following an excellent repast the awarding of prizes took place interspersed with fine entertainment by Hartford talent. Music was by a three piece orchestra led by Ralph H. Gibson, violinist. General arrangements were in charge of Chairman Ernest LaFleur. Exalted Ruler Roy W. Downer of the lodge acted as toastmaster of the evening and called on several of those present for remarks many of which brought out humorous incidents of the season's bowling contest. The Princeton team, consisting of Dr. M. D. Riordan, captain, Thomas O'Brien, Gilbert P. Flynn, George W. Hickey and Attorney Harry S. Gaucher took first prize and the title of lodge champion for the split season having defeated all comers for final honors, including the formidable Harvard and Brown outfits. The submembers of the team were: Roderick Gaudreau, Maurice Kinz, Paul Moran, Valentine L. Murphy and Carberry. In addition to a team award each player of the championship group received a prize.

Harvard was a runner-up and received suitable honors. The Harvard bowlers were George H. Wilcox, captain, Aime J. Martineau, John F. Collins, Edgar W. Jacobs and Raymond A. Parker.

Dr. Riordan won the prize for high individual average coming up from behind late in the season to ditch the leader, Raymond A. Parker from the title with a percentage of 117.85 for the entire season. Conrad Dubeau, veteran captain of the Brown team was runner up with an average of 117.95, Raymond A. Parker carried off the prizes for individual three strings, 452 and high single string 173. Harvard with a 700 took high team point and also high team total which was 1,844.

A total of 45 bowlers in the major league finished with marks of better than a century, eight of this number exceeding 110. Brown had high team average 107.64, Harvard finishing second with 106.50 and Princeton third at 106.17.

The Mules claimed highest average in the Elks' minor league, the Tigers placing second. The Mules annexed the second half title in the minor league by the slim margin of one game with the Goats as runners-up. The records in this league were: High single string, Frank Manard, Bears 134. High three strings, Manard, Bears, 377. High team point: Mules, [illegible]. High team total, Bears 1272. Six members of this league averaged better than a century at the end of the season.

The current issue of Fire Engineering carries an item devoted to praise of Chief Wade U. Webster of the local fire department. The article is written by Lieut. Thomas F Manger of the Bridgeport fire department, a former newspaperman, who is Connecticut correspondent for the fire journal. The article follows: "The appointment of Wade U. Webster to the office of chief of the fire department at Willimantic, Conn., places a man at the head of the fire-fighting forces who is a well known fire official in Connecticut. Chief Webster replaces Chief Henry J. Kelley, who has been forced to resign owing to illness

"Chief Webster is a native of South Willington, Conn., but removed to Willimantic when he was eight years of age. He joined the fire department as a volunteer on May 4, 1897. From 1902 to 1905 he was assistant foreman of Hose Company No. 1 and from 1906 to 1907 he was foreman of the same company.

"Chief Webster has the rare distinction of witnessing the Willimantic department grow from the rope to the motor. That he is in authority on many questions relative to fire fighting is indicated in the fact that he was elected to the presidency of the Connecticut State Firemen's association serving in 1915-16. He is also a member of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, the New England Association of Fire Chiefs and the Connecticut Fire Chiefs' club It was largely due to the efforts of Chief Webster that the two-platoon system was installed in Willimantic."

Community Cooperation was the subject of a highly interesting talk, given with catchy magic tricks as illustrations, by Clarence T. Hubbard of Hartford, at the spring meeting of the Chamber of commerce held in the auditorium of the chamber Monday evening. Nearly 70 members were present. President Frank P. Fenton first introduced Secretary John J. O'Rourke, who made brief remarks and then called on the speaker.

OLD GOLD wins second place at Harvard

Two-year old "O. G." runs second to the old favorite brand entrenched at HARVARD for more than 14 years

Two years against fourteen . . . a comparatively new cigarette against three veteran brands.

Yet OLD GOLD, the youngster, almost won! It defeated two of its veteran contenders . . . and nearly defeated the third!

This is the story of the Public Cigarette Test conducted at Harvard, by Edward T. Batchelder of "The Harvard Crimson" Editorial Board.

With the single exception of the test at Harvard, OLD GOLD has scored an unbroken string of victories in these comparative taste-tests.

But at Harvard, where pipe smoking is a tradition and the taste is for heavy tobaccos, smooth and mellow OLD GOLD faced its hardest contest. 148 undergraduates smoked and compared the four cigarettes with names concealed.

Yet OLD GOLD stood second in its total of "first choices!" It barely missed defeating the brand established at Harvard 14 years!

Man o' War, the greatest horse of his time, lost one race. And in its first and only defeat, OLD GOLD, the two-year old, felicitates the fourteen-year old victor.

The four leading cigarettes, "masked" with paper sleeves to conceal their brand names.

On your Radio . . . OLD GOLD—PAUL WHITEMAN HOUR . . . Paul Whiteman, King of Jazz, with his complete orchestra, broadcasts the OLD GOLD hour . . . every Tuesday, from 9 to 10 P. M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, over the entire network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Woman Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Denver, Colo.—"I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and will take more. I am taking it as a tonic to help me through the Change of Life and I am telling many of my friends to take it as I found nothing before this to help me. I had so many bad feelings at night that I could not sleep and for two years I could not go down town because I was afraid of falling. My mother took the Vegetable Compound years ago with good results and now I am taking it during the Change of Life and recommend it."—Mrs. T. A. Miller, 1611 Adams Street, Denver, Colorado.

WHICH KIND OF TRADING DO YOU LIKE THE BEST?

Do you like to trade where prices are dependent upon a whim, or upon the weather or upon the day of the week?

Do you like to trade where one person pays one price and another pays a different price for the same grade of merchandise?

Do you like to trade where the price depends upon the length of time you have for "bargaining?"

Or do you like to trade where both the quality of the merchandise and the price mark on it are honest, and the same to everyone who buys?

The latter policy is ours at all times.

THE DUTY ON SUGAR.

The situation with regard to the tariff on sugar is one of the most complicated which confronts our national legislators so that there is no wonder that an uproar arises over the sugar duties in the new tariff bill which increases existing rates. The demand for the increase is made by the producers of sugar beets and cane sugar within the boundaries of continental United States. The opposition to the increase comes mainly from sugar producers in Cuba and from large consumers of sugar in the United States.

Sugar from Hawaii, the Philippines and other island possessions of the United States comes into this country duty free. Sugar from Cuba pays duty but has a preferential rate due to an agreement made after the Spanish-American war. The domestic raisers of sugar have to meet both these conditions, the sugar duty free from our island possessions and the preferential rate sugar from Cuba. On the one hand are the farmers of America, who produce sugar beets and cane sugar in Louisiana and Florida. On the other hand is the great public of American consumers upon whose sugar bill, it has been estimated, the increased tariff will put an addition of from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 annually. The question arises whether the consumers of sugar, including the farmers as well as the rest of the population, are to be asked to pay more for their sugar, or whether the producers of sugar in the United States are to be given a price for their sugar, which will enable them to earn a fairer return and encourage them to increased production.

The new tariff bill drafted by the republican members of the ways and means committee of the house increases the duty on sugar, but does not impose any duty upon sugar coming from Hawaii and the Philippines. This has amounted to about 31 per cent. of the sugar used in this country, while Cuba has supplied about 47 per cent. and continental United States produced about 21 per cent. The American beet and cane producers will have to meet Hawaiian and Philippine competition just as they do now, and it is argued that the new tariff rates benefit the island producers and not the home-growers of beet and sugar cane.

Under the conditions that exist it is clear that there will be a real battle in congress over this proposed increase in sugar duties, and the sugar schedule stands more possible chance of amendment than any other schedule of the Hawley bill.

PEOPLE AND CLOTHES.

Casual observation might lead to the conclusion that men wear more clothes than women. At any rate we know that women wear less than they used to. Somebody has put it this way: It used to take two sheep three years to dress a woman; but now three silk worms do it in half an hour. The weight of men's clothing is far in excess of women's, but a man may wear the same suit daily for six months or a year, while the women who can afford to do so wear many different costumes. A survey of certain New York industries by the merchants' association of that city showed that the value of men's and boys' clothing made in New York in 1925 was $379,000,000 exclusive of work clothes. In 1927 it had dropped to $340,000,000. The value of women's clothing for 1927 was $2,145,000,000, an increase of over $127,000,000 over 1925. Perfume, cosmetics and toilet products in New York increased from $196,000,000 in 1925 to $256,000,000 in 1927. Some men may have used face powder, perfume and toilet lotions after shaving, but women used most of them. Women use a greater variety of clothing than men, but there is no explanation of a decrease in men's clothing cost of $19,000,000 in 1927. Many men were increasing the size of their wardrobes by the addition of knickerbockers for sports wear, sweaters, lounging robes and other garments. Perhaps the manufacturers have been making their clothing of such good quality that it wears longer.

STAMP ADHESIVES.

When Postmaster-General Brown took over the duties of his office he announced several reforms, but reports indicate that the gum on postage stamps acts much as it did during the administration of Postmaster-General New, and that it does not even taste any better. Mr. Brown realizes that something ought to be done about this and he has authorized the use of the word "stickum" in official circles. "The question of sticking on stamps," he says, "is a serious one and we are taking it seriously." He admits that when a stamp comes off in the mails somebody is to blame and he is inclined to believe it results from what once was know as a lick-and-a-promise. Some persons lick stamps so thoroughly that the adhesive is transferred to the tongue—if they still follow that unsanitary method—while others fail to lick enough. Stamps are printed on a rotary press which turns the sheets upside down for the application of the adhesive. This material is said to be in a satisfactory condition as it leaves the mixer, but the experts are not in accord as to what happens to it before it reaches the backs of the stamps. It must pass through pipes leading to the rollers which apply it. If the weather is cold the pipes must be heated, or cooling may be necessary under other conditions. It is the hope of the postmaster-general that tests will develop a type of adhesive that will be perfectly adapted for the purpose. At any rate he is sympathetic towards the vast army of stamp lickers and if he can reduce their complaints he promises to do so.

RECONSTRUCTING THE INDIAN BUREAU.

No federal bureau perhaps has ever undergone a more thorough or more beneficial reorganization than that which President Hoover has ordered for the bureau in charge of Indian affairs. The investigations of a congressional committee, not yet completed, have emphasized the need of that bureau's reconstruction and its adoption of effective safeguards against exploitation of the nation's Indian wards by unscrupulous whites, in and out of office. Many remedial measures will have to be adopted.

President Hoover has drafted for this reconstruction service two public-spirited men who have been active leaders in the Indian Rights association, a national body of unselfish and enlightened friends of red Americans. Charles J. Rhoads of Philadelphia, president of that association, has been made commissioner of Indian affairs, and J. Henry Scattergood, also of Philadelphia, becomes assistant commissioner. Both are Quakers and prominent men of affairs, and both have devoted much time and energy to the promotion of the welfare of the Indians. Neither sought appointment to federal office and each has accepted solely in order that he may perform a national service. Secretary Wilbur of the interior department believes in the definite policy of terminating the special status of the Indian as dependents or wards. No doubt this is the permanent solution of the Indian problem, but it is not a solution to be forced artificially. Its application will have to be slow. Meanwhile there are property, educational and other questions relating to the Indians to be studied and settled in accordance with reason and justice. The new heads of the Indian bureau are seemingly the ideal men for the task.

SAFETY RESPONSIBILITY.

The legislatures of three states—New York, Rhode Island and New Jersey—have enacted "safety responsibility" laws in response to a growing demand for safer highway transportation. It has been deemed necessary to curb reckless drivers and to advise means of compelling them to bear the cost of their recklessness, so far as may be possible. Serious traffic congestion due to rapid growth of automotive transit has made more stringent regulations imperative. Suspension of driving permits of those found guilty of serious infraction of traffic regulations, denial of the use of streets and highways to persons failing to pay a judgment against them when award is made by a competent tribunal and until they have given security for the future, is not too great an exaction for insurance against recklessness on crowded thoroughfares. The economic waste involved in personal carelessness is appalling. Automobiles kill as many people in the United States as do snakes and wild animals in India. Neither drunkenness, recklessness nor incompetency should be tolerated back of any steering wheel in any state in the Union.

NO HELP WANTED.

"I don't believe I can stand it any longer!" burst out Mrs. Seven as she was preparing breakfast, while Mr. Seven hastily scanned the morning paper.

"Can't stand what?" queried her husband, indifferently.

"Why, the way Mrs. Six is always criticising my housekeeping and my household arrangements. I never say a word about her affairs, but she seems—to feel free to make critical remarks regarding my home every time she drops in—and that's almost every day. Some time the worm is going to turn," ended Mrs. Seven belligerently.

"Well, I should give her as good as she sends," offered Mr. Seven as he hurriedly dropped his newspaper and attacked his cereal.

Before Mrs. Seven had fully decided on a line of action she saw that her neighbor was approaching for her usual inspection. This time the caller insisted on settling herself in Mrs. Seven's own room, instead of waiting until asked to do so.

"Well, Mrs. Seven," began the neighbor, as she sank into the most comfortable chair the room afforded, "I just do not see how you stand that davenport on that side of the room. Now, if it were mine I should have it on this side."

Mrs. Seven sprang eagerly to her feet.

"That's just the thing!" she exclaimed. "I can see that you are right. If you will just get up and give me a lift we'll put it over there at once. I am so glad you are here to help move it."

Mrs. Six looked surprised, but rose slowly. She was a small, delicate woman, wiry looking, but not muscular, while Mrs. Seven was robust and athletic.

Together they moved the heavy davenport to the side of the room preferred by Mrs. Six, the latter being permitted to pull, while Mrs. Seven pushed, and that very slowly, letting her neighbor do most of the work.

The women then sat down and rested, while for a few minutes Mrs. Six allowed the conversation to deal with other matters than furniture. But a habit of years is not easily broken, and when tired muscles were rested Mrs. Six began again.

"I was saying to John this morning," she resumed, "that I thought it funny you always had your dresser in this corner of the room, and Mr. Seven had his in that corner. It seems to me that it would be better to have his over here and yours over there."

"You have an eye for interior decoration," replied Mrs. Seven admiringly, as she sprang again to her feet. "I can see that you are exactly right. It is so good of you to come over and help me this way. Let's go!" and Mrs. Seven took hold of one side of her dressing table, waiting for her neighbor to take the other side.

When the two women again were seated Mrs. Six was breathing heavily, while Mrs. Seven was smiling and quite at ease. She had apparently tugged with all of her power, but had serenely let Mrs. Six do the hardest part.

When the latter had recovered her breath she talked absently for a bit, meanwhile eying Mrs. Seven rather curiously. Soon, however, the visitor's gaze wandered around the room and once more her critical instinct asserted itself.

"Your mattress says that way because you don't turn it often enough," she announced, maliciously. "Now, I turn mine every day, or every other day, at least." Mrs. Seven was on her feet, smiling and cheerfully ready as her neighbor finished speaking.

"I'll take the bedclothes off and you and I will turn the mattress. I'm so glad that you spoke of it," she replied, pleasantly. The mattress turned, and the bed remade, Mrs. Six apparently sought to make amends.

"I believe, after all," she remarked, tolerantly, "the davenport really looked better where you had it at first."

Quickly Mrs. Seven grasped one end of the lumbering piece of furniture, expectantly waiting for Mrs. Six to take the other end, but the latter turned hastily toward the outer door. "I must run," she said hurriedly. "I forgot that John and the children are coming home to lunch today. I must make some hot rolls and it's already late." The screen door closed with a sharp snap as Mrs. Six fled, while Mrs. Seven, chuckling to herself, easily and happily restored her room to its usual order.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 21—The Bystander often has wondered whether even newspaper editors realize the enormous amount of work so frequently involved in preparation of big national news stories handled over press wires from Washington.

It is no uncommon thing for Washington reporters to be handed huge documents of great news import for immediate publication. But that news is buried in tens of thousands of words; a long diplomatic note fraught with possibilities of war; a presidential message to congress bristling with a dozen different matters vitally affecting the people of the country; or a new tariff bill which would influence the living costs of every citizen.

The writer can recall numberless times when he fumbled frantically through the pages of such a document, just placed in his hands, searching for its nubbin of news.

The wires of The associated Press waited hungrily to sow it abroad.

If the news interest was great enough, the first sentence would be in San Francisco and London before the reporter was more than started on formulation of the second. That is the price of newspaper competition.

By way of illustration, take the situation on May 7 when the proposed new tariff bill became available to the press 15 minutes before noon. It was to be released at noon.

In 15 minutes the reporters had to find and phrase the chief element of news in a 434-page bill and 247-page committee report and get it going on the wires or risk being "beaten" by rivals.

The bill showed changes in 2,000 or so of it total of more than 10,000 specific rates. It contained, too, drastic legislative changes. All were buried under some 250,000 words.

What happened, so far as The Associated Press is concerned?

At 11.48, with 12 minutes to go until release time, an advance summary with the new and old sugar rates—the very hub of the controversy—featured in the first sentences, began moving over the wires to Associated Press papers, automatically available to those papers at noon.

By noon that summary was completed down to "apples, cherries and fish," with the flow of other rate changes proceeding on the wire without interruption.

Yet to obtain the comparison of old and new rates the reporters had to jump from bill to report and back again on each item. Some of them had to be computed into understandable figures.

That was fast work; but just a start for the two reporters who did it.

Before they finished that day's work, rounding up the story for the morning papers of next day and including comment by important house and senate members on the bill, they had worked 13 straight hours.

Washington journalism is not all high hats and pink teas.

YOUR HEALTH

Hay Fever Treatment

By Francis M. Rackemann, M. D., Boston, Mass.

The reason why hay fever occurs at certain definite times in the spring and summer is because the sufferer is hypersensitive to the pollen of a particular plant that blossoms at that time. The important "hay fever" plants are those grasses and weeds that occur in great abundance and have a light pollen, which is spread about for miles by the wind. The pollen of flowers is heavy and sticky and is spread by insects. "Rose cold" is not caused by the pretty bloom in the foreground, but depends upon the grasses or weeds in the fields beyond. The showy goldenrod is of far less importance than the inconspicuous ragweed, which blossoms at exactly the same season.

Lawn grass and hay occur everywhere, both in the country and in the city, and the several kinds, like timothy, red top, June grass and orchard grass, blossom about the first of June and give off pollen until the middle of July. Large numbers of patients have hay fever in just this season.

In August the weeds become more important. In eastern United States the worst offender is ragweed, a good-sized greenish plant, with fernlike leaves and covered with upright spikes to which the minute greenish flowers cling. Ragweed is our most common weed. It blossoms everywhere, in city and in country, and produces pollen in enormous quantities from about the of August until the plant is killed by the first frost.

While the grasses and ragweed are the common causes of hay fever, other plants may also couse trouble. Trees like birches, willows, oaks and maples may cause trouble in the early spring. Later in the summer other weeds like plantain, burdock, yarrow and, out west, the sagebrush, are frequent offenders.

The treatment for hay fever is satisfactory in about 75 per cent of the cases. It consists in a series of doses of an extract of the offending pollen. These doses are given hypodermically at intervals of from three to seven days, and ordinarily about a dozen treatments are necessary. In each instance they must be carefully graded to suit the condition of the individual patient, for otherwise they will do no good and may do harm. As most of the doses must be given before the season starts, it is clear that patients should present themselves for examination about eight weeks before the time they expect to have hay fever. If the symptoms occur in June, treatment should begin in March or April; if the symptoms occur in August, treatment should begin in early June. Individuals sensitive to both grasses and weeds have double hay fever and usually require double the number of treatments.

In all large cities there are doctors who have the special training and the materials for treating this disease and preventing its complications. Moreover, the out-patient departments of most of the larger hospitals have special clinics for asthma and hay fever. The treatment is, therefore, available to all who need it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Suggests A Remedy

Mr. Editor:—In your paper of April 23rd, it says the chamber of commerce is to plant watchful efforts for Norwich industrial interest but the 200 more or less merchants and their help that are affected by the merchandising department of the municipal gas and electrical plant don't seem, as far as they are concerned, to amount to a great deal when it comes to the rotten competition of the above department and the poor devil of a tax paying merchant, and help that are furnishing the ready money in part by taxation to help the gas and electric plant put them out of business. And at present writing there don't seem any redress from the attitude (we are it, the public be damned) that has been handed out to the owners by the people in charge of the plant. But there is one thing we have got and that is the power of our franchise as voters to elect a court of common council that will carry out the unanimous wishes of the people as expressed by the two largest city meetings ever held in the city of Norwich. It is time the arbitrary and defiant attitude of the management of the gas and electric department was called in favor of the will of the taxpaying owners as against the beneficiaries of the above department.

Edward P. Taft

(From Norwich Bulletin, Nov. 6, 1899)

News was received in this city on Sunday of the death of Mr. Edward P. Taft, which occurred at his summer residence at Pawtucket, R. I., Sunday morning, at 2:30 o'clock. He was in his 68th year, and his health has been failing since September, 1896. He leaves a family and several of his sons were associated with him in business.

Mr. Taft was the prime mover in the organization of the Ponemah company of this city and the founder of the village of Taftville, and it was named in his honor. He came from Massachusetts and had been a manufacturer in Providence when in 1867 he determined to build a large cotton mill and looked about for a suitable site.

The Occum company, of which Leonard Ballou was secretary and treasurer, owned at this time 950 acres of land in Norwich and Lisbon, comprising what is now the villages of Occum and Taftville. They controlled the whole water power on the Shetucket river between the Greeneville dam and Sprague. This company was formed in October, 1864, chiefly through the exertions of Moses Pierce and L. W. Carroll. They purchased all the rights of the old Wequonock company, which had never at that time been developed.

In 1867 Mr Taft and his associates purchased of the Occum company what was known as the lower privilege, comprising 650 acres of land for the sum of $85,000. The construction of a mill and dam was at once commenced, and the plant was in operation in 1870.

A stock company was organized, known as the Ponemah company, with the following officers: President, John F. Slater; secretary, treasurer and general agent, Edward P. Taft; agent, James S. Atwood; superintendent, William C. Tucker. The stock was chiefly owned by Providence capitalists, although there were a number of stockholders in Norwich, among them, Mr. Slater and the late Col. H. H. Osgood.

A village was laid out and at that time the second largest cotton mill in this country was built. About fifteen years ago an addition was built to the mill, making a total length of 1,576 feet. The number of hands was increased until now over 2,000 are employed, and the company owns its own store, boarding house and over 200 dwelling houses occupied by the operatives.

Mr. John F. Slater continued to hold the office of president until his death, when he was succeeded by his son, Mr. William A. Slater, who filled the position until about a year ago, when Mr. Frank C. Sayles of Providence was elected to the office.

Mr. Taft continued as treasurer until his death, and until a few years ago was a frequent visitor to this city, where he had many acquaintances. He was a man of great executive ability and during most of the time since the inception of the company has been its active manager.

The value of this immense industry to Norwich cannot be easily estimated; but it has combined to be from the first a model manufacturing village and large outlays of money have been made by the corporation in the way of improvements of all kinds.

Mr. L. W. Carroll, in speaking Sunday evening, said he had always enjoyed pleasant relations with Mr. Taft, and considered him a business man of remarkable ability.

Georgia: Not U. S., But T. F. S. R.

A white veil attached to a black velvet band adorned with two artificial curls is causing trouble in Georgia. This article of apparel is not worn as much as formerly, in that part of the Transcaucasian Federation of Soviet Republics, but recent news dispatches tell of a miniature revolt there resulting from a Soviet edict banning the wearing of veils by Georgian women.

"Georgia is famed for its beautiful women and picturesque men," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "The Georgian warrior is a tall, bold figure in his tightly belted, full-skirted coat, his poniard and a row of cartridge cases across his chest. The farmers in their huge sleeveless coats of lamb's wool, high astrakhan caps and bushy beards look like big bears. In the cities many of the Georgian women have adopted western dress. However, silk stockings are not yet achieved, because even that luxury is beyond the Georgian family's income.

"The ancient capital of Georgia was Mtskhe — try and pronounce it! The present capital of Georgia and the entire Transcaucasian republic is Tiflis. Eastern and western architecture and customs vie here. Beside an electric street car one may see a be-fezzed Mahammedan from the mountains leisurely riding along on a tired looking horse with two long wicker baskets of produce slung from either side of his saddle. There are automobiles but they have not supplanted the droshkies, the old-fashioned horse cabs whose sole concession to modernity is the adoption of pneumatic rubber tires. Occasionally the two-humped Asiatic camels are seen on the streets.

"Tiflis has twentieth-century buildings of stone and concrete and a modern hotel. It also has old houses of baked mud with wavy roofs of red tiles. Efficient sales methods prevail in the large up-to-date shops but the spirit of the Orient permeates the bazaars of the native quarters where Georgians, Armenians, Kirghis and Persians, in all felt turbans, make their purchases with traditional eastern leisureliness.

"A Tiflis ice cream parlor may have for its patrons a Mongol woman with bound feet, wide blouse and trousers, or a light-haired, blue-eyed Circassian girl in a muddy blouse and plaid skirt.

"Tiflis and Batum, the latter an important commercial port on the Black Sea coast, have accepted western innovations more readily than the rest of Georgia. Out in the less-settled districts, the farmers and shepherds have not changed their mode of living in a thousand years. A Scandinavian traveling along a Georgian highway might think his mind was playing tricks on him upon hearing the first notes of a Georgian orchestra. The Georgians have happiness which they play with a Scotch martial swing but their music has an unfamiliar oriental strain. Mandolins and drums complete the list of instruments in a Georgian orchestra.

"The grapes of the Caucasus are famous and grape wines are most popular, but kumiss, fermented mare's milk, has many devotees.

"An odd sight for visitors is the transportation of Georgian wine. It is poured into the side of a buffalo through an opening in one leg, and when this leg is tied up, the wine is ready for transportation. A wagon containing several of these inflated 'casks' looks as though its proper destination was a butcher shop and not a wine merchant's store."

HELD FOR VIOLATION OF IMMIGRATION LAWS

WATERBURY, May 21.—(AP)—John S. CASE AGAINST ABUGAL CONTINUED SIX MONTHS

A continuance of six months was granted in the case of Joseph Abugal, 48, of this city, charged with carrying firearms, and confiscation of the revolver and cartridges, found in his possession, was ordered by Judge Arthur F. Libby, when his case was tried in city court Tuesday morning. Following complaint from his wife that he threatened to shoot her and himself, Abugal was arrested by the police on Monday.

In the testimony, his wife claimed in reply to a question put to her that her husband was peaceful and quiet under the influence of liquor, but when he was sober he was a terror. She said that on one occasion he threatened to smash a bottle over his son's head. Abugal, in pleading for leniency, offered in the future to do as his wife asked and was willing to allow her to be "boss" of the family, but she did not take kindly to this. Mrs. Abugal said that she did not want to be "boss," and furthermore she wanted her husband to stay away from the house entirely. They were reconciled however.

KING'S DAUGHTERS OF TWO COUNTIES HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The twenty-fifth annual conference of The King's Daughters and Sons of New London and Windham counties was the guest of Whatsoever circle at the Baptist church in Jewett City Tuesday morning and afternoon. In spite of the downpour of rain at the time of the opening of the morning session there were 115 in attendance. Mrs. Grace E. Manning of Norwich, the president, presided, and Mrs. G. H. Prior officiated as pianist. The devotional service was led by Rev. E. E. Scates, pastor of the church, who read from Isiah 55 for the scripture. Miss Alice A. Brown, president of Whatsoever circle, gave a very hearty welcome, closing with Edgar Guest's poem The Making of Friends. Mrs. Walter Cowan of Norwich, who was to have given the response, was unable to be present, and it was read by the president. The minutes of the last conference were read by the secretary, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox of Jewett City. Miss Bessie Liberty sang Jesus Still Lead On, and was given a rising vote of thanks as she was asked to sing in the place of Miss Doris Myott who was unable to be present.

The Annual Report

The annual report of New London and Windham counties was given by Mrs. Manning as follows:

It is a little difficult to make interesting a report which must of necessity be so much like those of former years, however, all of the circles of New London and Windham counties seem to be in a prosperous condition. The membership of the senior circles is slightly larger than last year and our aggregate receipts were nearly $100 more, and we distributed a little over $700 above the amount spent last year, "In His Name." This year the Earnest Workers have the banner for the largest receipts, the first, and St. James spent the most, $408.14.

It gives me much pleasure to report the organization in March of two junior circles, Bixler's Busy Bees of New London and the Bright Jewels of Norwich. Both of these circles are very active making articles to bring joy to sick or disabled children and visiting homes where aged people enjoy their singing. We hope these joyous young workers may become enthusiastic Seniors.

Everready made the members of Riverside Home happy with a Christmas tree. Whatsoever remembers the birthdays of older church members. Happy Days tries to instil the spirit of the order into its members that they may carry it into their work. Comfort did well with their birthday bags. Mizpah of New London taxed the members a penny a day and ten cents for their birthdays. Cheerful Doers furnished a layette to a family where a pair of twins arrived. Grace gave cheer to the members of the Johnson Home by an Easter party. Earnest workers subscibe for thirteen copies of the Silver Cross and do mending for mothers. Loyal entertained county home children and gave a basket of sunshine packages to their sick leader.

Dorcas helped pay the expenses of a young lady at Uncas-on-Thames who returned home much benefitted. This circle was represented at county, state and international conventions. Independents gave their usual Valentine party at the Johnson home. Friendship has a mother's fund which is increased by a cent for every year of a member's age. They also held their 23rd anniversary, receiving a cent for every year from each member. Trusting has finished paying the $353 for the sidewalk around the Card home. Euphemian looks after the cradle roll. Home charter has a very active sewing society and they care for the needs of the Johnson home. Charitable circle was honored on their 40th anniversary by having a charter member with them who is still active. At Christmas time the married ladies gave a supper to the single ones. All of the circles have contributed to public institutions and needy people. Flowers and fruit are sent out by all, and in every way possible the Daughters are spreading cheer and gladness.

As this year has been a litte more successful than the last, may we go even a step or two higher this year, looking for the help of the Master in all our work.

Circle reports of all the helpful work done during the year were read during the morning and afternoon. The resolutions committee appointed was Mrs. E. A. Prentice of Norwich, Mrs. Lena Perkins of Norwich and Mrs. Ida Bragam of New London. Adjournment for the delicious luncheon was taken at noon, a rising vote of thanks being extended the committee. During the noon hour Mrs. J. W. Dean of New London displayed the literature of the order. The afternoon devotional service was led by Mrs. Luther D. Packer of Norwich, who read from the 91st psalm and also the poem, Life, by Edgar Guest. The first address of the afternoon was by Rev. Robert H. Parkes of Yantic His theme was, Usefulness. Speaking of The King's Daughters' organization his question was, How are you going to keep Alive? The organization has Christian ideals, and its guarantee of permanentcy is religious usefulness. To live, it must be Christian. He asked What is the final Christian test of this organization? Have you a great admiration for its ideals, but do nothing for it? The final test is Christian usefulness. Each member should remember the motto In His Name—believing in God, but acting out God in every part of human life.

The Roll Call

The secretary called the roll of circles, those present responding with their text. The number was: Charitable, 7; Cheerful Doers, 8; Comfort, 6; Dorcas, 10; Earnest Workers, 0; Ever Ready, 3; Euphemian, 0; Friendship, 4; Grace, 1; Home Chapter, 20; Independents, 1; Loyal, 10; Mizpah, New London, 7; Mizpah, Putnam, 1; St. James, 9; Trusting, 2; Whatsoever, 21; Visitors, 6.

In the absence of Miss Sadie Thompson, Miss Margaret Jordan sang, In Heavenly Love Abiding, and was accorded a rising vote of thanks. The second address was given by the state president, Mrs. G. H. Prior of Jewett City. Her topic was The Remembered Name, and in part she said:

If a text were to be selected for this address, it would be "I will make thy name to be remembered." This quotation from the scriptures is difficult to place when apart from its setting and several of the most faithful order members in the state have failed to recognize it as a portion of The King's Daughters' Psalm. This topic was suggested by two pictures which appeared in a rotogravure section of a recent Sunday newspaper. Accompanying an article announcing the death of the former Lillie Langtry, a reigning belle of a generation ago, was a photograph of the famous beauty in the heyday of youth and beside it a recent pose, showing the lines of extreme age. While the youthful picture does not conform to present day standards of beauty, it must be recognized as the type which was the envy of the young ladies of that period. It is said that Jersey Lily's charm of face was augmented by her charm of manner. Whether this charm remained with her till old age we cannot say. Her name has been remembered because of her beauty.

Passing through Oxford, Mass., one may note two signs, one pointing the way to Clara Barton's tomb, the other to her birthplace. When her father, a Revolutionary soldier, took the last of his many children in his arms, he little thought that her name would be remembered through all the earth. Being a stirring child she became an expert housewoman, an accomplishment which was to prove useful. Later during her war activities her restless nature urged her to various types of service which became prominent when she started several free schools in New Jersey. Entering government employ she received the final training for the most useful period of her life, the Civil war. Her experience made her the logical choice for the head of that great humanitarian organization, The American Red Cross. Her name will be remembered because in both peace and war she served humanity.

To see a woman's figure among the notables in the gallery of statuary in the nation's capitol is almost startling. What did Frances Willard do to receive such recognition? Leaving New York state her family became pioneers in the middle west. How her ambition for an education led her to Northwestern college is an interesting story. Later she came back to her alma mater as dean and teacher of aesthetics. There is nothing about that profession which suggests militance; but she left this lucrative position to accept a non-paying office in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, then a new organization. She became "the most powerful influence for temperance in her day." Her name will be remembered because of her great moral power.

Among The King's Daughters the name of Margaret Bottome has been a household word. We have wondered what her name has meant to the world at large. That most prosaic volume, the encyclopedia, which pays no compliments and states nothing but facts, mentions Mrs. Bottome as an American writer. It speaks of her founding a very powerful religious organization known as The King's Daughters and enumerates her various Christian activities. Her name is remembered because she was a great Christian.

The promise indicated in the verse quoted from the 45th Psalm was made to The King's Daughter. Through her service to humanity, by her moral integrity and because of her Christian influence The King's Daughter of today may claim the promise.

The report of the resolutions committee was read by Mrs. Bragraw, thanking the circle for its hospitality and all those who had helped make the conference so successful. It was voted to appropriate $75 to the Jennie Benedict home. Mrs. Prior explained the work of the home and Miss Benedict's interest in it. The 1930 conference was invited to New London by Mrs. Bragaw, the time and place to be announced in the future. The conference adjourned with the benediction by Rev. E. E. Scates.

SMALL CHILD RAN IN FRONT OF AUTOMOBILE

George Zurcher of No. 32 Fourth street, about 6, was slightly injured about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon near the Buckingham Memorial, Main street, when struck and knocked down by a Ford touring car owned and operated by Herbert L. Richardson of No. 625 Main street. The young boy had alighted from a southbound trolley, walked around in the rear of it and ran directly in front of the machine, being struck by its right fender. The driver had no possible chance of evading hitting the youth, who was taken to the office of Dr. John W. Callahan, where he was attended. The machine was traveling easterly at the time of the accident, which was investigated by Officer Clifford Crary.

CALLED FOR CENTRAL AVENUE CHIMNEY FIRE

At 8.37 o'clock Tuesday evening the fire department received an oral alarm for a chimney fire in the house at No. 200 Central avenue owned by Mary E. Brady. The house is occupied by Sylva Plants and others. A collection of soot at the base of the chimney caused a large volume of smoke to enter the rooms and it was necessary for three gallons of chemical to be used to put out the blaze. Acting Deputy Chief Dennis D. Brennan and Engine No. 3 responded.

HORTON SMITH SETS COURSE RECORD TO LEAD QUALIFIERS AT ST. CLOUD

ST. CLOUD, France, May 21—(AP)—Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., who will be 21 years of age tomorrow, was the whole show today in the international golf competition at St. Cloud.

With two record-breaking rounds of 66 he ended the day 12 strokes ahead of his nearest competitor, an unheard of accomplishment here.

The lanky, blond Missourian can sit back tomorrow and say "show me" to the field of 70 professionals from England, France, the United States, Spain, South Africa and Argentina who looked like very ordinary golfers today as Smith clicked off birdies all over the course to run up a 36 total of 132.

Smith must play another 36 holes tomorrow. Unless he suffers serious injury or fails to break 80 it is difficult to see how he can fail to win the 72 hole medal competition with such a start.

No French championship ever has seen such golf as Smith uncovered today. Par of the course is 71. He was five under par this morning and again five under this afternoon and no one else in the best field ever assembled in France succeeded in breaking 70 during the two rounds today. In his sensational 66 holes, the Joplin boy had four fives, twenty 4's, eight 3's and four 2's.

In shooting 66 under a blazing sun and with no wind to be taken into account, Smith cut two strokes off the course record set last year by the home club professional, Aubrey Boomer.

The Joplin pro's golf was not without flaw but every error—and they were few and far between—was offset by recovery shots worthy of Walter Hagen at his best.

Hagen, incidentally, was at his worst today taking 44 to reach the turn this morning. He played better from then on but ended the day nineteen strokes behind the leader, his total being 151.

Henry Cotton with 144, Johnny Farrell and George Duncan with 145, Gene Sarazen, Boomer and Andre Boyer with 146 were the only players who appeared to have the slightest chance of giving Smith a run for the money which amounts to 60,000 francs.

The competitors teed off in trios and Smith was a member of one that came close to being the best. The other two were Boomer and Arnaud Massy who won the British open the year before Smith was born. Boomer and Massy were among the leading scorers of the day but because they played with the young Missourian their golf seemed weak.

Some idea of what Smith did today may be judged from following facts: On a course that measures 6507 yards he had only one five during the morning round and only two in the afternoon; he was only twice over par; he scored five birdies in the morning and seven in the afternoon; he was never in the bunker and was only off the fairways three times; on each of these three occasions his recoveries permitted him to make par for the hole.

This afternoon it seemed he surely would turn in a 65 but on the last green where his approach was within four yards of the pin he took three putts.

And the only thing he had to say when it was all over was: "Well it was too bad I took three putts on the last hole, wasn't it?"

TIGERS SQUEEZE OUT VICTORY OVER INDIANS

DETROIT, May 21.—(AP)—The Tigers came from behind today to take a thirteen inning battle from the Cleveland Indians by a 2 to 1 score. The Tigers tied the score in the ninth inning of the duel and scored again with one out in the thirteenth.

Willis Hudlin went the entire distance for Cleveland, holding the Detroit batters helpless until the ninth. With one down Hellmann doubled, Alexander reached first on a fielder's choice and Phillips scored the big first baseman with the tying run. Tavener fielded Phillips grounder but Lind turned it into a run by dropping his toss for a force play. The winning run came from a pass to Roy Johnson, Rice's sacrifice and Stone's hard single to center.

Cleveland scored in the third when Jamieson reached first on an error and Fonseca brought him in with a double.

Peerless at Palace Tonight

The Peerless bowling team of New London will bowl a team representing the Palace at the Palace alleys tonight. The New London team is to be picked from Tunski, Belcher, Slatare, Farrell Smith and Bosworth, while the Palace will have Smith, Sidney, Bentley, Morin and Chip Dugas. The match is the first of the series for a purse.

Attention Jewett City!

The Hermes club would like to hear from you for a game to be played on Hoolyhock Island Saturday afternoon at 2:30. If accepted answer through this paper.

BASEBALL BITS

Teddy Dabrowski, former Westerly high star, now seems slated to get back into the regular Dartmouth lineup at second base, where he performed with brilliance early in the season.

Art Boisseau, West Hartford ace, who gave the Academy a real battle before losing his only game this year, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Middletown high last week. The score was 7 to 0.

Bulkeley high of Hartford meets Chapman Tech at New London Saturday in their second game, the Insurance City club winning the first by 6 to 1.

Nap Liberte is going good with York in the N. Y. P. league, holding down third base. He went through his second week without an error.

Joe Faber is also playing nice ball. He is with the Omaha club of the Western league. In one game recently Joe had a triple, double and two singles in four attempts.

Saturday's Academy-Bulkeley game at the campus has taken on added interest because of the closeness of the first struggle and a banner crowd is promised. The New Haven umps did well in the first game and they will no doubt finish up the series.

John Murphy, Bulkeley outfield, who was hit in the head by a pitched ball Saturday, recovered after the game. The other Bulkeley casualty, John Petrosky, pitcher, who injured his finger on the last play in the first half of the ninth, had to have three stitches taken in the finger and it is doubtful if he will be ready for Saturday. Dayton and Halifteras, the latter a southpaw, are the other Bulkeley pitchers and should Petrosky be unable to start, they will have to shoulder the hurling job.

The crowd Saturday, over 3,000 proved that there is nothing that can touch an Academy-Bulkeley contest in these parts. It's a great old rivalry.

The William and Mary college freshman team closed its season last week with 12 straight victories as their record. Steffy Cimikoski and Max Goldblatt, local boys and former Academy luminaries were regulars on this club and each turned in a great season. Cimmy playing third, hit for .421, while Goldblatt, catching, batted for .333. Mace had four hits in four trips to the plate in the final game which the Frosh won, 10 to 3. They expect to return home Saturday, June 8, in time for the Academy's final game with Naugatuck high at the campus.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH FOR CREW, MURCHIE IS SHOT-PUTTER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 21.—(AP)—When Guy Murchie, giant Harvard oarsman was cut from the varsity rowing squad, because he was thought to be "burned out," he immediately reported to Eddie Farrell, the track coach. That was a month ago. Today he is Harvard's best shot putting bet for Saturday's dual t rack meet with Yale.

Farrell was well supplied with shot putters when Murchie reported to him, but the track coach received him with open arms. Since his arrival Dave Guarnaccia and Joe Potter who placed first and third in last year's shot put event against Yale, have been forced to retire because of scholastic difficulties and injuries, thereby leaving an ex-oarsman as Harvard's only prospective point winner in that event.

Farrell said that Murchie, who stands six feet, five, and weighs over 200 pounds, has added three feet to his mark with the iron ball in the past three weeks and predicted that the giant would improve enough to defeat any Yale shot putter if he had three more weeks of practice.

"Fish" Ellis to Coach Tufts

MEDFORD, Mass., May 21.—(AP)—Fred M. "Fish" Ellis, one of the greatest athletes that ever represented Tufts college, will become backfield coach for the Jumbo eleven next fall, athletic officials announced today. They said he would also serve as an assistant in the Tufts department of physical education.

Lizzies Accept Challenge

The Elizabeth street school nine will play Sacred Heart nine at Hollyhock Island Thursday, 23rd, at 4 o'clock.

What's this game "Golf" the men folks go batty over?

There must be something in it that ain't visible to the naked eye. I've seen a coupla games and I got just about as much kick outa it as watching a coupla dummies playing checkers.

How anybody can get hot over batting a little white ball over the landscape is beyond me. And to think they pay good money for the privilege of doing it, too.

And when you get two men together arguing about golf it's just about intelligible to the uninitiated as it is listening to two Chinamen arguing about the best recipe for chop suey.

The guy, whose name I wear since the minister says "Do you?" and I like a sap says "I Do," has joined the golf club. I had a tough time keeping track of him before but the good Lord is the only one who can keep tabs on him now.

The other night he comes home all het up like a kid that been to the circus and fed the elephants. I hears him bouncing up the steps and bustling in the door. I know it's one of two things, he's either lit up or somebody has paid him a bill.

He busts into the living room like the sun after a rain "Oh, Susie, I broke a hundred today," he cries in childish glee. "Well, who's going to pay for 'em?" I asks.

He wilts like a toy ballon somebody stuck a pin in. "Oh, h--!," he says, "you wouldn't understand if I told you." I see right away he's hurt so I says, "tell me about it." Gosh, I oughta have kept quiet.

He goes on to tell me it's golf he's been playing. He rehearses that game from A to Z and from Z to A until I'm stymied or bunkered or whatever you call it when don't know whether you're afoot or horseback.

I hear about birdies and eagles, foozles and flubs, drives and divots, tees and traps, stymies and putts until my heads in a whirl. All I can say is "My, ain't that grand?" or "Did you really." Meantime the dinner is getting colder and colder and I'm getting hotter and hotter.

Ater an hour I says let's declare an armistice and eat. We ate but I ain't so sure about the armistice. Didja ever have a man try to tell you about a game of golf and eat at the same time? It's like when you got a coupla bum tubes in the radio and there's an Italian opera on.

Say, sombedy tell me where the "it" in golf is, please.

ALEXANDER PROVES BAFFLING TO WEAK HITTING REDS

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 21—(AP)—"Old Pete" Alexander had Jack Hendricks' weak batters at his mercy today, the Cardinals inflicting the fifth straight defeat on the Reds, 12 to 1. Hafey hit a homer over the left field fence during the big round with one man on base. The Reds have made only three runs in their last four games. The score:

Attention, Baltic!

The "Jewett City All Stars" have organized for the season and would like Sunday games away from home. Would like a game with Baltic or Moosup for this coming Sunday afternoon. If agreeable answer through this paper or write to Manager N Arremony, Box 87, Jewett City, Conn.

Seconds Play Here Today

Local fans will have a ball game today, however, when the Academy seconds tackle Bacon academy at the campus at 3 o'clock. Bacon beat the Red and Whitesters at Colchester last week, this being the only defeat on the Second's record. Bob Geer or Mike Abugle will probably pitch for the home boys.

SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST GENE TUNNEY FOR ALLEGED BREACH OF PROMISE

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 21—(AP)—Legal papers in a half million dollar suit in which the allegation is breach of promise to marry, to be docketed, Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty vs. James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion of the world, tonight weighed down the pocket of a deputy sheriff who had headed for court to file them, and stopped short of his destination.

The suit became a matter of record when Deputy Sheriff Michael T. Ryan of Stamford, receiving the complaint and accompanying papers from Deputy Sheriff Maley, of New Haven, and attached property, with the old time house which Tunney intended to transform into an old Colonial country home for his bride, who was Polly Lauder, garnished any possible bank accounts in Stamford and Greenwich banks and entered records of his work with Town Clerk George R. Close, of Stamford. This over, the two deputies came here but Mr. Ryan decided he had done a day's work and said that instead of filing the papers in superior court as was looked for earlier in the day, he would keep them in his pocket over night.

Connecticut law does not require that the documents in a suit be filed immediately with the clerk of court when attachments have been made, the copy of the complaint left with a town clerk having the same legal status in preliminary stages of actions as the filing with a court clerk. The return day will be May 30 and the plaintiff has until that date in which to file the papers in court. Counsel for Mrs. Fogarty desires to have the case called up on June 4 when court comes in for its session.

A copy of the complaint which sets forth Mrs. Fogarty's claim against Tunney on file at Stamford says that she met Tunney in Greenwich when he was training at Hot Springs, Ark., and that on May 29, that year, she obtained a divorce from John S. Fogarty at Fort Worth, Texas. Five days later, she avers, and "on subsequent days" Tunney proposed to her and she agreed to marry him. She is "ready to comply with the request now" the complaint runs, but the retired champion "married another person". The identity of that "other person" is not described.

To set up her claim of damages, Mrs. Fogarty says she suffered such "mental shock" because of Tunney's marriage that she has been under care of physicians at Fort Worth and New York ever since due to a nervous condition.

Mrs. Fogarty has a son Merrill, aged ten. Her counsel, Col. Lewis L. Field, of New Haven, member of Gov. Trumbull's staff and commander of the 102nd infantry, C. N. G., said in reference to the suit that she once had a millinery business in New York and has a small income. She came to New York after Tunney left Hot Springs. Col. Field declined to say where Mrs. Fogarty is at present. After confirming news of the suit and the fact that he signed the writs of attachment as a commissioner of the court, he left his office not intending to return until late tomorrow.

Mrs. Tunney is convalescent from an operation, at Brioni, Italy. Had she not been taken ill the return of Mr. and Mrs. Tunney had been expected shortly as it was their desire to begin remodelling the house in North Stamford for their permanent home. The land which Tunney bought comprises ninety acres. The tax records indicated that it was assessed for $14,000.

HOMERS HELP BROWNS TO TROUNCE WHITE SOX

OUTBOARD RACES AT KITEMAUG SUNDAY

The outboard motor boat racing season opens Sunday at Kitemaug, the headquarters of the Chelsea boat club, with a number of races scheduled including a 26-mile race late in the afternoon. At a meeting of the club at the clubhouse at Kitemaug the plans for the first race of the season were completed Tuesday evening.

It is planned to have at least six races over a mile and half course winding up with the marathon race at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The races will be run in heats, two heats to each race in each class of boats. The point system will be used in scoring the winners.

The course for the short races will be from Allyn's Point to Montville and return. It is expected that there will be plenty of excitement in these races as the turns are sharp. There will be a novice race for the beginners, and many are entered for this event.

To date there are 12 entries including several from Norwich, New London and Groton. It is expected that there will be a number o boats entered between now and Sunday. Al Gebrath will enter his Boro II which finished tenth in the Albany to New York race earlier in the season, and he is a favorite to win the 26-mile race.

The races will start at 2 o'clock and each boat must have full government equipment and the pilot must wear a life preserver. The public is invited to view the races.

MRS. FOGARTY HAS NO CLAIM ACCORDING TO HER AFFIDAVIT

NEW YORK, May 2—(AP)—George W. Whiteside, attorney for Gene Tunney, made public today copies of an affidavit over the signature of Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty and dated July 24, 1928, stating that the former heavyweight champion was under no obligation to her.

Whiteside said that prior to her action today in preparing to file papers in a $500,000 breach of promise action, Mrs. Fogarty had made numerous threats of damaging publicity, culminating in insistent demands just before Tunney's last fight. Her claims were investigated at that time, he said, and found to be without merit.

The affidavit follows: "I made the acquaintance of John James (Gene) Tunney in Hot Springs in October, 1924. Our relations at all times thereafter were such as in no way to cast the slightest criticism or discredit upon him. I have no claim upon him of any kind and never did have. I had hoped to continue to enjoy his friendship, but that does not seem any longer possible for either of us. In the past I have said things about him to my lawyers that I now deeply regret because I know of nothing that I could say that would cast the slightest discredit upon him, and should my name ever be used with or without my knowledge in the future in any way to reflect in the slightest manner upon him, I wish to make this solemn declaration under oath that may be published at any time, that he is under no obligation whatsoever to me and never was, and that his character and conduct to my knowledge are of the best."

TUNNEY LITTLE DISTURBED OVER FILING OF SUIT

BRIONI, Italy, May 21—(AP)—James J. Tunney exclaimed "I know absolutely nothing of the report" when informed today that papers in a suit for alleged breach of promise of marriage had been sent to Bridgeport, Conn., for filing. "It must be another joke," declared the former heavyweight boxing champion.

"When I am sued I let my attorneys worry," he went on. "I have all the worries I can handle right now here."

Tunney did not explain whether his last remark was in reference to the recent serious illness of his wife, the former Polly Lauder of Greenwich, Conn., upon whom an emergency operation was performed for acute appendicitis. She had been reported progressing favorably.

The former boxer expressed his thanks for the information that Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty was seeking $500,000 as damages for an alleged breach of promise. He has remained in Europe since his marriage in Rome last October 3.

NINE TEAMS READY TO ENTER DUSTY LEAGUE

Nine teams were represented at a meeting for the purpose of forming the Industrial league for 1929 held Tuesday evening in the office of the Supt. of Recreation in the city hall. The following were the clubs represented: Thermos Bottle Co., International Silver Co., United States Finishing Co., Richmond Radiator Co., Knights of Columbus, Y. M. C. A., United Metal Co., Smoke Shop and Polish Citizens club.

William J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission, addressed the meeting, explaining the purpose of the commission was to provide clean, wholesome amusement for Norwich and that no semi-professionalism should enter into the league.

Adjournment was taken to Tuesday, June 4, when final plans for the opening in the week of June 20 are to be made. Any other Industrial team managers interested in entering the league will be welcome at that time. Two games are to be played nightly during the season, one at the Academy campus and the other at Hollyhock Island, the city's new athletic field. Much enthusiasm that augurs well for a successful year was shown at last night's meeting.

ACADEMY-WESTERLY TILT POSTPONED BECAUSE OF RAIN

Rain stepped in for the second time this year to postpone an Academy game when the Wildcats' tilt with Westerly scheduled for Tuesday afternoon at the campus was postponed. This is a league game.

Date for the playoff has not been decided but it will probably be on Friday of this week. Coach Joel P. Sherman of the visitors would not accept today (Wednesday) or tomorrow for the game. Should the game not be played Friday it would probably have to be shifted to a June date as the Wildcats have three games in each of the next two weeks.

The field was in miserable condition after the heavy rain and the damp cold also made playing out of the question although the rain halted about 1 o'clock.

Saturday Bulkeley comes for the second game of the annual series.

CONFERENCE TRACK MEET AT NEW LONDON TODAY

The first annual meet of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic conference, with seven teams competing instead of the usual four, will be held this afternoon at Morgan park, New London. Bulkeley of New London, Putnam and Windham are the additions where formerly only N. F. A., Chapman Tech, Stonington and Westerly competed.

Bulkeley carries the favorites colors into the meet because of victories over Stonington and the Academy so far this season. Whitmore, state 440 yard high school champ, is figured to lead the Orange and Black to victory although the Academy and Stonington are figured to give Bulkeley a stern tussle. Westerly, Chapman Tech, Putnam and Windham are also figured to trail in that order.

Outstanding performances are expected today from Whitmore of Bulkeley in the 440 yard run, Clutt Robinson of the Academy in the broad jump, both of these boys being state champs in their respective events, Collins of Stonington in the 100 yard dash, Miner of Chapman Tech in the mile, the Academy relay team in the half-mile event and Chipman of Bulkeley in the discus. There will be 12 events, the discus throw having been added.

VELVETMEN OPEN SEASON WITH MYSTIC SUNDAY

The J. B. Martin baseball team swings into action for the 1929 season on Sunday at the J. B. Martin diamond when they clash with the Mystic A. C. club piloted by the veteran Joe Belair, former Norwich boy. The Martin club this year will be composed wholly of local material and from the players that Manager Fred Erlbeck has signed it looks like a real ball team.

Tony Wea, big southpaw of the Riverview club, is slated for mound duty with either Eccleston or Jimmy Murphy doing the receiving. Eddie Murphy will be back at first, Walt Dabrowski will be at second and Carlie Kraus will again be in the shortfield. Lee Normandin is slated for the dizzy corner, rounding out a mighty fast infield. The outfield will be chosen from Lamorey, Liberty, Lemieux and Martin.

Manager Erlbeck has signed Taft and Tommy Simcox as the umpiring staff.

TILDEN SUFFERS DEFEAT IN MIXED DOUBLES

PARIS, May 21.—(AP) — America's tennis invaders were handed their first serious setback of the French hard court championships today as Bill Tilden and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy were eliminated from the mixed doubles.

In the last set the French team centered its play upon the United States No. 1 ranking star and Tilden was not able to cope with the well placed back hands of his opponents.

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, spinning boxing masterpiece in ebony, will flirt tomorrow night in Jess McMahon's big fight barn in the Bronx with the same fate that overcame Al Singer, the other brilliant little fellow promoters were banking on for a gala open air season.

SCOFLAW, NEW JERSEY DRIVER PAYS FINES AND COSTS $95.55

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 21.—Frank Novack, 27, of 228 Palisades avenue, Garfield, N. J., was before Judge William A. Wilcox Tuesday morning in a session of Stonington town court charged with violation of three motor traffic laws. Friday night Novack drove his Nash sedan, B 42612, N. J., through the business streets of Pawcatuck and Westerly shortly before midnight at a high rate of speed, to elude a pursuing auto driven by George Maxwell of Mystic and to evade responsibility after the Chevrolet cabriolet of Byron Davis, 11 Washington street, Mystic, had been struck and driven into the ditch near the Packer soap factory on the Mystic-Stonington road. At that time Officer LeRoy H. Norman on duty in Dixon square did not have time to blow his whistle as the New Jersey car cut the traffic beacon and sped up High street after the occupants of the pursuing car had called in vain on West Broad street to have someone stop the car ahead. Officer Norman telephoned the Hope Valley barracks of the state police with the result that the New Jersey car was stopped and the Groton barracks notified. Officer William D. McKenzie of the Groton barracks went to Hope Valley and returned to Connecticut with Novack who was released in $500 bail for court appearance Tuesday.

On arraignment by Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher of Mystic the defendant pleaded guilty to three counts, first that he operated an automobile recklessly on the Boston Post road; second that he caused damage to auto of Byron Davis and failed to stop to give name, address and registration, after an accident, and third that he drove the auto without an operator's license. Judge Wilcox imposed fines of $25, $20 and $5, respectively, and the defendant was released after he had paid a total, including costs, of $95.55.

Rainy weather Tuesday prevented workmen from making much progress excavating for the conduits on Broad street near the Pawcatuck river bridge and on High street in front of the Colonial club property where the electric light and power lines are being put underground, in the endeavor to do away with all overhead wires on these business streets. Highway department workmen were also prevented from doing much work on the regrading of Granite, Elm and Broad streets where the establishment of a higher grade has left the street and walks torn-up.

The Weekapaug Beach company has sold to Thomas R. and Jane B. Hapgood of Hartford lots Nos. 43, 44 and 45 Plat. at Weekapaug Beach.

When Palmer chapter, No. 28, Royal Arch Masons of Pawcatuck, Ernest F. Stenhouse, excellent high priest, held a convocation Monday night the council officers reported upon their attendance at the special and annual session of the Grand chapter, R. A. M., of Connecticut at Hartford last week.

JEWETT CITY

CRUELLY KILL WILD GOOSE—TWO MEN HEAVILY FINED

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 21—Justice of the Peace William R. Palmer fined Eugene Willett $50 and costs amounting to $66 and Arthur Poyerd $5 and costs which footed up to $21 for killing a gild goose. The case was prosecuted by County Game Warden W. S. Watson. Both the accused admitted their guilt. The court was held at the home of Grand Juror Thomas McDonald, in Voluntown, Monday evening. The two men hired a boat on Mt. Misery pond, within the newly acquired state game preserve, from Deputy Game Warden Lloyd Congdon.

Local fishermen who have visited the Mt. Misery brook of late, have been aware that a pair of wild geese was nesting somewhere within the little frequented swampy section, that borders this wilderness stream. Willett admitted that he saw the female sitting on the nest and struck her a blow with the boat paddle. When the skiff was returned, Warden Congdon saw the feathers along its bottom, with other evidences that the bird had been dressed, which left the evidence for prosecution plain.

Local sportsmen are of the opinion that the men got away pretty soft as wild geese are protected by federal regulations as well as state law. They are to be taken only during the open season, which is from Oct. 1, to Jan. 15, and then only with a gun fired at arm's length. Use of power or sail boat is prohibited, and they may be shot only between one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Game Warden N. A. Lillibridge, and others, have been to the Jewett City Water company's big reservoir at Stone Hill, this week, to see an entirely different procedure in supplying care and comfort for a pair of Canadian geese that have hatched a brood of four goslings on a small sheltered island within the limits of the lake. Early in March, during a stiff northeast storm, with snow and sleet, a big flock of wild geese came up from somewhere down in the Rio Grande section bound on a non-stop flight to Labrador. While flying low over Griswold, tired from buffeting the storm, and after 2,000 miles on the wing, several witnesses saw the evident disorganization of the voyagers, saw the futile efforts of the great grey gander in charge of transportation, as he tried to whip his faltering company into line. Among those that dropped into local waters, two pairs remained, with the widely differing fortunes which this story tells.

This fall, the Stone-Hill pair with their family of four, will be at liberty when the call of the wild comes to join some south-bound flock. Returning fishermen today reported seeing at Mt. Misery this afternoon a great goose, flying high, circling the pond alone.

Dr. Richard Good, New London oculist, was a caller, Monday evening, at the home of E. H. Hiscox. The two men were former railway mail clerks, running in the same crew on trains 29 and 30, the Night Postal express between Boston and New York.

Not in some years have there been seen here such large numbers of birds commonly classed as rare. One man reported seeing on two occasions seven goldfinches in a maple near his home. Investigation proved that strange feathered visitors seen in Pachaug were cat-birds.

The stagings have been removed from the front of the Anthony block, which reveals that recent improvements have been a benefit to its fine appearance.

May Basket Party

There was a fine surprise May basket hanging to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Szcyponik at their home in West Warwick, R. I., May 16. SALES OF POPPIES ARE TO BEGIN ON FRIDAY

At a meeting of the American Legion Women's auxiliary, held Monday evening, Miss Rosanna Desjardines was appointed to make the Navy memorial baskets of flowers to be used at Lisbon bridge, Memorial day. She also will have charge of the Poppy day sale, which will begin Friday of this week. It was voted to place flowers on the graves of two departed members, Mrs. Adelbert Babcock to have charge. After a consultation with members of the American Legion, the resolution was passed by both organizations that in the future all soldiers' graves under this jurisdiction will be decorated with flags. A memorial wreath will be placed upon the cemetery gate or in some suitable place in those cemeteries visited by the parade on Memorial day, in place of a wreath placed upon each grave. A firing squad will fire three volleys and taps will be sounded in the three cemeteries and at the bridge, as has been customary. For several years the large number of wreaths required have been made by about a dozen women, and the number of workers grows fewer at times. It was the suggestion of the men that the change be made. Wreaths will be placed on the monument in Fanning park, the World war memorial tree and the Pachaug boulder by Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., and on the World war monument by the Legion auxiliary.

LOCAL KING'S DAUGHTERS ENTERTAINED CONFERENCE

Thousands of miles of De Soto Six motoring at no cost

Why pay more for a car than it costs to get just what you want?

Make these contrasts yourself. Drive a De Soto Six. Then try out a car in the $1000 class. If you are like the other thousands and thousands of motorists who have made this study of values, you will write a check for considerably less than you had expected to pay, and will get considerably more than you had expected to get. You'll lose no time adding your name to the rapidly increasing list of De Soto owners.

The money you thus save, you can use in running your new De Soto Six. ROTARY MINSTRELS PROVE ENTERTAINING TO BIG CROWD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 21—Old, but ever new, a minstrel show brings amusement to young and old and to people in all walks of life, a demonstration of which truth was given this evening in the Orpheum theater when the "troupers" of the Danielson-Putnam Rotary clubs repeated the entertainment they gave last evening in Putnam with such success.

The performance appeared to have a little more finish tonight than it had last night, due to the experience of presenting it in Putnam, and it went over big with the audience. The large audience was generous in its applause and delighted with the skits and the nifties that was the running off of the show furnished for their amusement.

From the opening chorus number, Wedding Bells, the show went merrily on to its conclusion. Sidney P. Marland of the Danielson Rotary club was interlocutor, a capacity in which he has served numbers of times in the past, and about him in the circle were members of the Danielson and Putnam Rotary clubs who used their talent to present a worth while entertainment.

On the ends were Warren Averill, Edwin Hill, Burdette C. Hopkins, William Langster, Alexander Maitland and Edgar Lucier, each and every one of them contributing during the evening to the wealth of merriment.

Much of the detail of the program was presented to Bulletin readers in the Putnam news this morning. However, special mention may be made of the Indian Maiden act of Mrs. E. L. Beebe of Putnam, formerly on the Swarthmore Chautauqua circuit; of William Sangster's accordion playing, because he can play, though he does not play at all; of the numbers by the Danielson Rotary club quartet composed of Gordon J. Gale, Harold Roberts, Herbert H. Pepper and Earle F. Winslow; of Robert Bethel's and Fred Maryott's Soft Shoe dances and Alexander Maitland's and Burdette C. Hopkins' contributions to the making of an evening of enjoyable amusement.

Other fine features were presented by Betty Maitland, a specialty dancer; Chet Irwin's pupils—Marjorie I. Gaffney, Lilliam Brown, Louisa Hill Dorothy Lathrop, Alice Olsson and Ethel King, and by the ladies' string ensemble made up of Eleanor Irving, Dorothy Prince, Gertrude Warner and Katherine Lown.

Financially, both here and in Putnam, the Rotarian minstrels were a success.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Clara F. Tubbs

Early this morning at the home on School street, the death of Mrs. Clara F. Tubbs occurred. She had been ill for a long time. Mrs. Tubbs, the wife of Emory L. Tubbs, one of Danielson's aged veterans of the Civil war and most respected citizens, passed her 88th birthday last January. She was born in Bernardston, Mass., a daughter of Charles and Emily Andrews Bagg, and lived in that section of New England during the early years of her life. Following the close of the Civil war, Mrs. Tubbs was married to Mr. Tubbs at Colerain, Mass., in the fall of 1865. Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs have been residents of Danielson for a long term of years. Mrs. Tubbs is survived by her husband, who has a gallant record as a member of the Union armies that battled in the Civil War; by a half-brother, Hollis Bagg, of Watertown, Mass.; by a granddaughter, Mrs. Henry Milone, and by three great-grandchildren, these resident in Danielson. Mrs. Tubbs was a member of the Danielson Nazarene church.

Carl S. Blackmer

Carl Sumner Blackmer, a native of Danielson and a resident of this town during practically all the years of his life, died this afternoon at 5:30 at his home, 41 North Main street after a long illness. Mr. Blackmer was born in Danielson 76 years ago next August 18, a son of Charles Pinckney and Harriet Clark Blackmer. When a young man he was employed in a government position at Washington for a number of years as had been his father before him but later returned here and for a time was a member of the office force of the old Danielson Cotton Co., before going to Attawaugan, where he remained for the greater part of his active life as paymaster for the Attawaugan Co. up to the time of his retirement from active business a few years ago.

Mr. Blackmer leaves his wife who before her marriage was Miss Lucy Tibbetts of Nashua, N. H., a daughter by a former marriage, Miss Sue West, now the wife of George Norton of Pittsfield, Mass., and a brother, John, for more than half a century, has been in a government position, Mr. Blackmer was a member of Moriah lodge of Danielson and of Danielson chapter, order of Eastern Star.

Last evening the third and fourth degrees were conferred upon a class of candidates of Killingly grange with impressive ritual and ceremony in Odd Fellows' hall here. With Mrs. Edith Jordan as captain, the degrees were conferred by a team of women members, the personnel of this team being: Carrie Downs, Flora Kennedy, Ella Lathrop, Lucy Choquette, Lena Munroe, Ruth Bruton, Clara Hopkins, Frances Hallowell, Vivian Converse, Helen Greene, Eva Bradford, Florence Converse and Grace Ennis. Following the conferring of the degree refreshments were served under the direction of a committee composed of Mrs. Louis Sayles, Mrs. O. F. Downs and Mrs. Ella Spalding, and then there was a period of dancing, with music by Alcott D. Sayles' orchestra.

Friday morning Burdette C. Hopkins, secretary of the Danielson Rotary club, will leave for Worcester, to leave from that city at 2:15 p. m., on the New England Rotarians' special train for the 20th annual International Rotary convention to be held at Dallas from May 27 to June 31. Mr. Hopkins expects to return here about June 7. The New England special will travel via Chicago. Sunday morning the Rotarians from this section of the United States will arrive at Ponca City, Okla., where they will have a 6-hour stop-over, which will be utilized for a visit to the famed Miller Brothers' 101 ranch of 110,000 acres, on which graze thousands of cattle. At the ranch they will be entertained at a barbecue. They are due in Oklahoma City Sunday evening and will be entertained at a luncheon there by the Rotarians of that bustling, bustling city. They are due in Dallas Monday morning. Returning, Mr. Hopkins said today, the New England Rotarians' special train will make no extended stops.

The dog quarantine in Killingly, Brooklyn and Putnam is not to be raised now or in the immediate future, it developed today, thus dashing all hopes that it would be taken off before the month of May ended, as was forecast the past week. Chauncey Ganung, special deputy of the commissioner of domestic animals, was in Danielson today and said that recent developments have further delayed the lifting of the quarantine. These developments have to do with discovery of the fact that a dog, presumably owned in Thompson, though that has not been as yet surely established, ran wild, bit a person in Quinebaug and then traveled over the border into Massachusetts. In that state the dog was killed, the head examined and the pronouncement made that the animal was rabid. That's one thing that adds to jitters of the quarantine here, for rabies never is established beyond doubt that the dog really started out of Thompson on his rampage, or whether he came from some town hereabouts or some town in some other part of eastern Connecticut. The commission of domestic animals and Deputy Ganung are both well aware that dog owners are anxious to have the quarantine in effect on dogs hereabouts since Feb. 25 lifted at the earliest possible date, but they insist they must be sure the situation as to rabies is cleared up before that is done.

Six of the little friends of Helen May Kimball were entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Kimball, on East Franklin street yesterday afternoon in honor of her seventh birthday. There were favors for all, refreshments of sandwiches, cake and ice cream being served by Mrs. Kimball. And there were a number of gifts for the little miss honored.

State Officer Emil Castagna of the Stafford Springs barracks, formerly stationed here, was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

It is a matter of fact that coal bought in April for use next fall and winter's use in Danielson is being depleted as cold, unseasonable May weather forces use of heaters in many homes here.

Rev. Edwin P. Wright of St. Philip's church, Putnam, will be among the clergymen attending the Memorial service to be held next Sunday evening at St. Alban's church here, at 7:30 o'clock.

Tonight about 30 members of Killingly grange motored to Chepachet for a Neighbors' night meeting of the grange in that place. Half of the program of entertainment was furnished by members of Killingly grange and half by members of Pomfret grange of Hopkins Mills, also guests of the grange at Chepachet.

Chief A. P. Woodward said this morning that he had no definite knowledge as to when the arrangement of flushing the streets in the business section would go into effect, but smilingly acknowledged, in response to an inquiry, that it would probably be after it stopped raining. The Crystal Water company is to allow, without charge, the use of its hydrants for the water supply.

As more fully told in the Putnam news this morning, Joseph Breayea of Prospect street, Danielson, operator of a public service automobile, will appear in the Putnam city court Thursday morning to answer to charges of violations of the liquor law. Breayea was arrested last night at Putnam by State Officer John Murphy of the Danielson barracks in company with a Putnam man. Two gallons of grain alcohol were found in the Breayea car and both his occupants held. Breayea was released under bail today after spending last night at the barracks here.

Among those who wail long and loud over the kind of weather May has produced are the local golfers who are members of the Putnam Country club. The weather man has spoiled plenty of May outings for them.

Florists here are getting many advance orders for the Memorial period, numbers of these orders this week because of next Sunday being Memorial Sunday.

Miss Mignonne Morin, an operator at the central telephone office, is spending a vacation with relatives in New York.

Joseph Gregoire of Burlington, Vt., a former resident here, is visiting with friends in Danielson and vicinity for a few days.

PUTNAM

LOCAL MAN AND DANIELSON TAXI DRIVER ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 21—Careful observations of the mysterious movements of J. Alfred Gagne of Woodstock avenue and Joseph Breayea of Danielson yesterday, by State Officer John Murphy of Danielson barracks resulted in the arrest of the two men Monday evening on charges of transporting liquor, owning and keeping with intent to sell and actual sale of intoxicating liquors.

The arrest of the former Putnam saloon keeper and the Danielson taxi driver was brought about when Officer Murphy observed the two loading a case of empty bottles from Gagne's second hand store on Pomfret street, into a taxi cab owned and driven by Breayea. The trooper followed Gagne and Breayea to the former's home on Woodstock avenue and found the men in possession of the intoxicants and immediately placed them under arrest, taking them to the barracks in Danielson for questioning.

Breayea admitted purchasing the alcohol from Gagne and with this information both were held on the given charges. Bondsmen appeared later and the men were released pending their appearance for trial in city court in Putnam on Thursday morning, May 23.

Walter N. King, president of the chamber of commerce, Jr. Dyer Potter, a member of the chamber of commerce committee on the veterans' hospital site, returned from a business trip to Washington today. On Monday, with a number of other representatives of Connecticut cities who sought the $3,000,000 veterans' hospital for their community, appeared before Major General Hines, chief of the United States Federal hospitalization board, and members of the board at a hearing in Washington and urged that in reconsideration of sites the national committee pay a visit to this city and examine the sites submitted by the local committee several months ago.

Mr. King said this afternoon General Hines informed him the same consideration would be favored the Putnam site as would be given to those submitted by other towns and cities in the state.

Zite Gay, 172 Mechanics street, this city, a taxi driver and Clarence Lavigne of Walnut street, a mechanic, were arrested Monday evening by Patrolman Alpheric Sponcey of the local police following an automobile collision on School street in which both drivers figured. Gay was arrested on charges of reckless driving while Lavigne was held on a charge of improper parking. The two were arraigned in police court this morning before Judge M. H. Geissler, but upon a request from Irving H. Miron, counsel for Gay, the case was continued until Thursday morning. Attorney Miron intimated that he had procured a witness for Gay to disprove the charge made against him by the arresting officer.

Arthur Cordier of Main street was released from Brooklyn jail this morning on bonds of $200 for his appearance in superior court at the next criminal session. Cordier was arrested Saturday by State Officer John Murphy of Danielson barracks and was committed to the county jail Monday to serve a sentence of ninety days, when he was found guilty on a charge of intoxication. He decided to take an appeal to higher court after he had served one day of his month's sentence. Bonds were furnished for his release by a member of his family.

Another indication of Putnam's growth in industry following its resurrection from a business slump of almost four years is the awarding of a contract to Louis Bonin, local contractor and builder to erect an extension 60 feet by 72 feet to the Lowell Needle company's plant in the Manahansett village section of the city. The needle and steel factory, one of the city's newest industries will use the new structure, when complete, to house additional production machinery.

Henry Holt of New York, a brother of Dr. Hamilton Holt of Woodstock Hill and Miami, Florida, has purchased the Moffett farm in Pomfret and will erect new buildings on the estate. When this work is completed a decided improvement will be had in the appearance of Pomfret street.

Louis deFlorez wealthy Pomfret inventor has acquired the Chapman farm in Pomfret and has commenced operations in the building of a fire proof mansion on the property. This property acquisition like recent other purchases will also contribute to the beautification of the well known Pomfret summer colony on Pomfret street.

John S. Dingwall of Wilkinson street has purchased a house on Wilkinson street from Simon Kaminsky. The deal was completed last week.

Simon Kaminsky, has purchased from the estate of Edward Harris, a tenement house located on Walnut street. Legal transfer of ownership was recorded in city records yesterday.

A large vacant lot at the corner of Main and May streets has been purchased by the Place Motor company of this city from Medbury and Trowbridge, local ice dealers. The motor company intends to construct a modern sales room and garage on the site.

Harold A. Lyons, formerly of this city, returned to his home in Hartford today following a visit in Putnam.

A very pretty May basket was hung to Miss Helen Congdon Friday evening at her home in Pomfret Landing, 27 of her young friends attending. They were from Putnam, Pomfret, Abington, Elliott, Attawaugan, Goodyear and Pomfret Landing.

The evening was spent in singing and playing games. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

In a letter of appreciation of the cooperation and hospitality given by the people of Putnam during the recent Week for the Blind held in this city and in Danielson, Secretary Stetson K. Ryan, of the state board of education of the blind heartily acknowledged the grateful response. In part Mr. Ryan said in behalf of his organization "You will note that the total receipts from all sources from Putnam and Danielson were $2,251.60. We feel very grateful to the people of Putnam for their warm and friendly reception, Mayor Richard, and members of the various committees backed us up splendidly. We have only the pleasantest recollections of the city."

To the Bulletin Mr. Ryan addressed, "We are very grateful to you for the fine part you had in aiding us. The Bulletin publicity and advertisements were very helpful and many people called this fact to my attention. Thank you much for the good manner in which you cooperated in this work."

In a detailed report of receipts tendered by Mr. Ryan this morning, sales of articles in Danielson and Putnam amounted to $1,513.15, community sales in the outskirts of the city and in neighboring villages and towns amounted to $662.30 and a total of $76.15 was derived from the sale of candy made by the blind and sold in the various stores in Danielson and Putnam. The grand total of receipts for the week in both Putnam and Danielson amounted to $2,251.60.

In a separate report of receipts it was indicated that Putnam contributed a total of $572, while Danielson's part in the support of the cause was a total of $941.15.

Funeral services for Mrs. Melvina Guertin, who died Saturday at her home in this city were held this morning in St. Mary's church. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's assisted by Rev. Ernest J. Bolleau, subdeacon and Rev. Father Jezou, chaplain of the provincial house of the Sisters of the Holy Ghost of this city. The Gregorian mass and chant was sung by the members of the 10:30 o'clock choir of the church. The mass was attended by a large group of mourners, most of whom were relatives and friends of the venerable woman who had lived the greater part of her life in this city.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Committal services at the grave were in charge of Rev. Father Bellerose.

WEDDING

Miss Pauline Labossiere, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Labossiere of 330 Church street was married yesterday to John J. O'Brien of Mechanicsville.

Miss Labossiere was united in marriage at a simple ceremony at St. Mary's church, by Rev. Ernest J. Bolleau, curate who was celebrant at a nuptial mass at 9 o'clock. A reception followed at the home of the bride.

The bride was gowned in a white satin backed moire in ivory tone, cut on simple lines. The bertha was of a deep shade of ivory point lace. Her veil of plain net of ivory was caught at eight sides with silver lace and clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bridal tea roses.

Miss Theresa O'Brien of Mechanicsville, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Her frock was of old rose. She wore a black picture hat, shoes and stockings to match her gown. Her bouquet was of pink roses and hybrid tea roses with lilies of the valley. Urbain Peloquin of Church street was best man.

Miss Rose Metras, organist at St. Mary's was at the organ. The processional was the wedding march from Lohengrin. Euvila Labossiere, talented young violinist played, "O Promise Me." The recessional march from Schubert was played.

Mrs. O'Brien wore a traveling dress of blue trimmed with gold and black coat trimmed with tan and a black hat.

The couple are widely known in Putnam. Miss Labossiere attended St Mary's convent school in this city and was employed at the New England Fur company. Mr. O'Brien was formerly a student at Tourtellotte Memorial high school in North Grosvenordale and for the past three years has been office manager at the New England Fur company in this city.

PACKARD CONQUERS front wheel "shimmy" and its many dangers!

BALLOON tires brought greater riding ease to motor cars. Four wheel brakes introduced a new factor of safety.

But with all their advantages, these two great improvements set up a new problem for automobile engineers—front wheel "shimmy," with its attendant and dangerous steering wheel "whip."

Cars with balloon tires of low air pressure developed a peculiar fore wheel "wobble" at high speeds—even on fairly smooth roads. Braking, applied to front as well as rear wheels, frequently aggravated it. This condition was accepted by many as a more or less necessary evil.

But not by Packard. Packard developed and introduced new steering control—refined and perfected today into the unique and exclusive Packard Shock Absorbing System.

No danger—no fatigue

In addition to double-acting, hydraulic shock absorbers built into the chassis as an integral part, the Packard System today includes a separate device for eliminating "shimmy." A special shock absorbing unit, into which the left front spring is mounted at the rear, cancels all steering jars—prevents absolutely all front wheel vibration and steering wheel "whip."

So easy and safe is Packard steering that the car can be guided over the most uneven roads—and at high speeds—with only the finger tips touching the wheel.

Let us demonstrate it

May we demonstrate to you the comfort and safety of Packard steering? We will gladly put the Packard Eight of your choice into your hands for a trial drive.

Packard now builds three complete Straight-Eight lines, at three distinct ranges of price. The Standard Eight (reduced in March) is priced from $2275 to $2675—the Custom Eight from $3175 to $3850—and the Eight De Luxe from $4585 to $5985—at the factory. Individual custom cars are also available to order on the De Luxe chassis.

If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the Packard Payment Plan most attractive. Many take possession of their new cars without any cash outlay because the used car allowance equals or exceeds the down payment.

RAILS AND UTILITIES WITHSTOOD A STEADY STREAM OF LIQUIDATION

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP)—The stock market labored under the pressure of a steady stream of nervous liquidation during most of today's session, although rails and utilities made substantial progress toward higher levels, and a rush of short covering in the coppers in the last half hour caused a moderate rally throughout the list.

Although the St. Louis & O'Fallon decision after more mature consideration failed to inspire further violent operations for the advance in the rails, traders were inclined to regard the decision as the outstanding long pull bullish development of the year, and several of the earlier issues were under steady accumulation. It was pointed out that it will be a long time before the effects of the decision will be reflected in earnings, but that it permits the railroads to prepare for the future with renewed confidence.

The late rally in the coppers was attributed to reports of substantial progress at the reparations conference. A large short interest has developed in this group since trading in copper futures below 17 cents started on the National Metal exchange. The short selling, however, failed to bring out any considerable volume of stock, and the brightened prospect of a settlement of the reparations tangle, which would undoubtedly stimulate foreign consumption of the red metal, was a signal to cover.

The credit situation, however, still hovered like a dark cloud over the market. Call money held at 7 per cent all day. New York banks withdrew $25,000,000 in loans, only to place it back in the market at the same rate, after loans in the outside market had commanded 8 per cent. This action was highly perplexing to traders. Time money held at 8 per cent for the shorter maturities, and 10-day money was said to be lending even higher in some cases. With no prospect of a clearing of the money situation for several weeks, many traders and even some large pools were inclined to lighten their holdings.

The day's news included reports of a slight decline in steel mill operations. Advances of 17 to 41 cents a barrel in Mid-Continent crude oil prices, and an advance of 1 cent a gallon in wholesale gasoline on the Atlantic coast. Phelps Dodge placed its new stock on a $2 annual dividend basis, equal to $12 on the old, which paid $10. Motor Products declared an extra cash payment of $3 in addition to the quarterly of 50 cents.

Although the late rally failed to cancel many losses, and left the market highly irregular, the Associated Press price indices indicated that the total gains more than offset the declines. The cross currents of buying and selling carried the day's total sales to 4,400,120 shares, the largest turnover in more than a week.

The action of some of the motor stocks were particularly unsettling in the early trading. Chrysler dropped more than 2 points to 74, a new low for the year, contrasted with a high of 135, and General Motors sagged more than a point to 76 3-4, also a 1929 low, but it made up its loss later. Rumors of a decline in output were current with the unusually keen competition in the industry. It is felt that a falling off of business would considerably effect earnings.

In the rails, Chesapeake and Ohio, Achison and New York Central sold up 4 points or more. Anaconda, which has been sagging persistently in recent weeks, became a leader, the new stock mounting 7 points to 106 1-2. The old stock sold ex-rights, and closed 106 3-4. Greene Cananea and Kennecott also made fair gains. American and Foreign Power, American Water Works, and Commonwealth Power were strong points of the utilities, mounting three points or so. Oils were firm with the rising prices for crude and refined.

General Electric retained nine points of yesterday's 20 point drop, and Allied Chemical, Auburn Auto, Montgomery Ward, Packard, St. Joseph Lead, and Curtiss Aero closed 2 to 6 points higher. Radio showed strong resistance at 90, and jumped to 94 in the closing deals.

Burroughs Adding Machine, after challenging up a new peak at 229 3-4, then tumbled to 3-4, and closed at 217, off 11. Case Threshing dropped 17 points, and also closed off 11. International Telephone, Electric Auto Lite, Detroit Edison, Sparks Withington and Phelps Dodge sold 2 to 3 points lower. Federal Mining tumbled 15 points to 270 in a small turnover, 90 points under its 1929 peak.

In the commodities, wheat futures again broke a cent and more a bushel on better weather and the beginning of harvesting in the southwest, and corn lost a like amount of bearish Argentine estimates. Cotton eased off for a time, but closed barely steady.

Foreign exchanges continued dull, with sterling cables holding at the theoretical gold import point at $4.85.

NEW LONDON DETECTIVES WAITING FOR BOBOCK TO GROW CONSCIOUS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 21—Frank Bobock, Howard street, was murderously assaulted Sunday when he was struck by a blunt instrument in the hands of Alex Chiplinski, 118 Shaw street, at the latter's home, during a drunken row. Chiplinski is now a prisoner at the county jail in default of $10,000 bail pending a preliminary hearing in the police court Monday next. Bobock showed signs of improvement today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. He has partially regained consciousness and within a day or two he will be questioned, provided his condition permits this by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and County Detective William Lewis. The officers were at the hospital today for this purpose, but because of Bobock's condition the questioning of the man, who has a fractured skull, was deferred. The only witness to the assault, Julia Lawski, has stated that Bobock appeared at the house intoxicated and caused Chiplinski to become angered when the latter was pulled from bed by the caller. The row then started in earnest: Chiplinski struck Bobock a blow on the face, then forced the man through the entrance of the second story. Bobock was later found unconscious at the foot of the stairs, down which he had rolled after being pushed through the door by Chiplinski.

Mrs. Taylor, 32 Broad street, this afternoon made complaint to the police that her son's scooter had been stolen from beneath the rear veranda of the home, either last night or this forenoon.

Mrs. Spear's Censures Council

Charges that the city council was taking upon itself the duties of the city planning board were made last night by Mrs. Emily Spears, a member of the board, when she was given the floor during the council meeting.

Mrs. Spears declared that the council had ignored the planning board in several instances recently, citing specifically action in regard to the widening of Main street, the establishment of a museum on the Allyn property and the new site of the Coast Guard academy. "These matters," she said, "are proper subjects for consideration by the planning board."

CLAIM DR. A. H. MYERS IS UNJUSTLY BLAMED

When Dr. Arthur H. Myers, Mystic, is presented in the Groton town court next Monday charged with failing to report a case of smallpox to Dr. Louis M. Allyn, Mystic, Groton health officer, the physician's counsel is emphatic in the statement that the accused physician will be discharged, for it is also claimed that the state has no positive case against Dr. Myers. Myers was arrested by state police on a warrant several days ago and was liberated on his own recognizance. It is claimed by the state that Dr. Myers attended Mrs. James Chesbro, of Mystic, and that the woman was ill with smallpox, cases of which disease are causing concern on the east side of the Thames river, particularly in Noank and Mystic. Dr. Myers' counsel asserts that when Mrs. Chesebro was attended by Dr. Myers the woman was not ill with smallpox.

LEARNED PAPER WRITTEN BY REV. FATHER RIGGS

An interesting article entitled "Is Our Christianity Pagan?" written by Rev. T. Lawrason Riggs, formerly of this city, now Catholic chaplain at Yale university, appears in the latest issue of The Commonweal, a weekly review of literature, arts and public affairs. During recent years one of the favorite arguments against Christianity has run something like this: Under Caesar Augusta, many oriental cults incorporating a great deal of primitive religious custom sought to displace the Roman beliefs; and of these Christianity is the sole important survivor. In this article, Father Riggs examines this argument as it is made in one contemporary book—Arthur Weigall's, "The Paganism in Our Christianity."

POLICE SEEK FAKIR SOLICITING FOR FUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 21—The police made a search of the city today for a fakir, who had been making a tour of business sections soliciting funds, which he stated would go toward the State Police association's relief fund. It developed that the man was an imposter, but although a description of the fellow was obtained, no trace of him was found. The man, who said that his name was Ferguson went to numerous business houses, but how successful he was in securing money is not known. When the fakir went to the floral establishment of H. Verkade, Gardner avenue, Verkade went to a telephone to make inquiry as to the fellow's authority to collect money for the cause he represented. While Verkade was at the telephone, the imposter hastily departed from the office, went to Ocean avenue where he entered an automobile and drove away.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Symphony Concert

The Norwich Symphony orchestra, 60 musicians, under the direction of Frank Drago, will make its debut before the Norwich public tonight at Slater Memorial hall.

A program of unusual power and beauty has been selected from the works of the master composers. Hayden's London Symphony in D major will be the main number and it will be well supported by shorter works by Mozart, Kroeger, Handel, Brahms and Wagner. Mr. Frank Farrell, well known pianist, who has been heard in Carnegie hall, New York, and in the larger cities of the east and middle west, will be the soloist. The management feels particularly gratified and honored in being able to secure the service of a musician of Mr. Farrell's caliber. A special full size Mason and Hamlin concert grand piano has been specially sent from New York for Mr. Farrell's use.

Through the courtesy of Capt. Hayden O. Jenk, musical director of the U. S. Coast Guard band, the orchestra has been able to secure men of unusual ability on instruments only heard with a symphony orchestra, such as French horn, bassoon and oboes. Miss Lillian Hirsch, talented 13 year-old violinist, will play Handel's Largo with orchestra accompaniment. The introduction will be played with chimes by Wm. Acheson tympanist, thus lending the religious atmosphere which was the intent of the composer. Tickets are on sale at the Cranston Co., Hanover-Curland Co. and at Plaut-Cadden.

Flit Soldiers Have Sax-Appeal.

Last week it was announced in the Flit Soldiers' program that Private South of the Flit army had rent away to a mail-order house for a saxaphone. This musical instrument has now arrived and will provide plenty of entertainment—both conversational and musical—in the Flit Soldiers' program that is broadcast on Wednesday night, May 22nd, at 8 o'clock, (eastern daylight time) over the NBC system.

If Private South learns to play the saxaphone as well as Sergeant West plays the banjo and Corporal North the piano, these "Three Mosquiteers" will put up serious competition with Captain Flit and his band. Captain Flit, however, is all prepared to hold his own with a collection of the very newest song hits, of the day, played as only Harry Reser's band can play them.

The Flit Soldiers' program will be heard through the following stations associated with the NBC system: WJZ, New York; WBZ, Springfield; WZZA, Boston; WHAM, Rochester; KDKA Pittsburgh; WJR Detroit; WLW, Cincinnati; KYW, Chicago; WREN, Kansas City; WBAL Baltimore, and KWK, St. Louis.

REV. C. H. RICKETTS AGAIN HEADS NEW LONDON ASS'N. CONG. CHURCHES

At the annual meeting of the New London Association of Congregational churches and ministers, which convened Tuesday at the Greeneville Congregational church with morning and afternoon sessions Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the church, was re-elected moderator of the association at its business session at 2 o'clock.

Other officers elected, as presented by the nominating committee, Rev. G. E. Reeves, Norwich Town, Rev. S. H. Barnum, Groton, and Mrs. Fred D. Ballou Jewett City, are the following: Vice moderator, George S. Palmer, New London; registrar and treasurer, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, Norwich Town; scribe, Dr. James H. Weeks, Stonington; auditor, Weston C. Pullen, Norwich.

Chairmen of committees are: Benevolences, Dr. J. Beveridge Lee, New London; religious education, Rev. Alexander H Abbott, Norwich; evangelism, Rev. H. W. Hulburt, Groton; social service, Rev. Dwight C. Stone, Hanover; director of the missionary society of Connecticut, Rev. Frank Palmer, Norwich; committee on pastoral supply, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, Norwich.

The present executive committee comprises the moderator, registrar, chairman of standing committees and E. W. Higgins, Norwich, Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee, New London, William G. Park, Hanover, Miss Elizabeth F. Pullen, Norwich, and Mrs. Allen Latham, Norwich.

The appointment of the 11 delegates to represent the various parts of the county at the New England Regional meeting to be held in New Britain on Oct. 26 to 28 was left to the missionary committee.

Unfinished business taken up at the afternoon business session included a vote to appropriate $50 to each of the delegates, who will attend the national council to be held in Detroit, May 28 to June 8. The delegates are Rev. Dwight C. Stone, Hanover, Rev. H. W. Hulburt, Groton and Dr. James H. Weeks, Stonington. The license to preach for another year was also extended to Rev. Howard Bushnell of Goshen.

The afternoon address was given by Rev. Hubert C. Herring of the social relations department of the Congregational Education society, Boston, Mass. His address was on the theme, "The Work of the Church Today," and in part he spoke as follows:

"The church has the task of making better relations between various groups in our country. Will the reunion of Christendom have a wholesome effect upon the work of our denominations? The fact is that our own attitude towards the various races in our midst will be more valuable than a contribution to uplift a race at long range. Does one of another race have a fair chance for employment?

"The church should have a voice in the industrial relations of the community. New England needs more preaching of plain messages on the quickening of conscience on industrial fairness. The preacher should emphasize the human value as more important than material value. We need a better understanding between parties in industrial fields, and the church can be of great service.

"The church should also be active in international relations. Take the Mexican situation. One group has gone down to Mexico for purely commercial pursuit, another group went down to do the Mexicans good, a third group should now go down to learn from the Mexicans. Our people should go to get facts. This will help more than to send missionaries with that great country just now. Several groups have gone down and others are planning to go there with no other object than to secure a basis for mutual understanding and a better relation.

"This subject will have an important place in the deliberations of the national council, which will soon meet in Detroit."

Mr. Herring also dwelt briefly upon the Mooney case as an illustration of the place the church can occupy as an agent for securing real justice."

Adjournment was taken at 3:15 o'clock.

The morning session opened at 10 o'clock with Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor, as moderator, followed by reports of officers and chairmen of committees, as follows, all of which were very favorable: Scribe, read by Rev. G. F. Goodenough of Jewett City, in absence of Dr. James H. Weeks, Stonington; treasurer, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, Norwich Town, reported all churches had paid annual dues and a balance of $239 in the treasury; auditor, read by Rev. Mr. Bailey, in absence of Weston C. Pullen, Norwich; standing committees, evangelism, Rev. H. W. Hulburt, D. D., Groton; social service, Rev. Dwight C. Stone, Hanover; benevolences, Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, D. D., New London; pastor supply, Rev. Mr. Ricketts; missionary society of Connecticut, Rev. Frank Palmer, Norwich.

At 11 o'clock a period of worhip, led by Rev. Walter Vey of Lebanon, was held, the theme being, The Generous Eye, which was followed by an instructive address on "Worship," delivered by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, Norwich. Rev. Mr. Abbott referred to some of the recent books on the elements of worship and made reference to the church at New London and the new church at Storrs, as illustrating the modern swing of the Congregational churches toward more ritual in worship. What is worship? In our experimentation of methods of worship we have to use the material at hand," he said.

At the conclusion of Rev. Mr. Abbott's address the address of welcome to the delegates was extended by Rev. Mr. Ricketts. This was followed by luncheon served by the women of the church. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London, in behalf of those present, thanked the women for the bountiful repast.

Nineteen out of 29 churches were represented at the meeting by either ministers or delegates, the roll call showing the following: Bozrah, Colchester, Franklin, Goshen, Griswold, Groton, Hanover, Jewett City, Lebanon, Liberty Hill, New London, First, Second and Swedish, Norwich, First, United, Greeneville, Park and Taftville; Preston. There were about 100 in attendance.

TAFTVILLE TO LOSE ANNUAL FRANCO-AMERICAN CONVENTION

Announcement was made Tuesday that the annual convention of the Franco-American societies of Connecticut has been transferred from Taftville, where it was to have been held on Monday and Tuesday of next week, to Hartford, where the delegates are to assemble at the Hotel Bond on the same dates, through arrangements just completed by members of the executive committee after various conferences following the upset of plans to convene in Taftville. Alma Forcier and F. X. Lemieux, the former of Goodyear, the latter of Danielson, are members of the executive committee, which met Sunday at Willimantic, it was learned, and definitely decided that the convention should be held on the dates originally scheduled, but at Hartford instead of Taftville.

There is much back of the transfer of this convention from Taftville to Hartford. A member of the executive committee is authority for the statement to The Bulletin that internal politics and planning by one group to use the convention as the means of promoting ends approved by only a fraction of the membership and frowned upon by the church of which all the delegates to the coming convention are members, as well as the thousands that these delegates represent, is responsible for the radical change represented in changing the convention from Taftville to Hartford. It is understood that when the executive committee met in Willimantic the vote to make the change was eight in favor to one against.

It appears that such maneuvering as has taken place to allegedly use the convention as a time and place for certain propaganda not favored by many of the delegates and the membership of many thousands that they represent has been underway for weeks and possibly for months and finally led to a show down. The result was a proposal, from Taftville, it is understood, that the convention be deferred until next November. To this the majority of the members of the executive committee were opposed, as demonstrated by the vote at Willimantic naming Hartford as the convention city.

The change of the convention places a heavy burden on members of the executive committee, for they have only this week to notify the 125 delegates expected of the change, and the reasons for making it. However, the work is being done with expedition.

Alma Forcier of Goodyear, as a member of the executive committee, was at Hartford Monday and had an interview in connection with the situation with Rt. Rev. J. J. Nilan, bishop of Hartford. Mr. Forcier said that he explained the entire situation to Bishop Nilan and received his approval of naming Hartford as the convention city. Mr. Forcier further said that the opening of the convention next Monday in Hartford will be preceded by the attendance of the delegates to the convention at a mass at St. Anne's church in that city.

What the contingent favoring adjourning the convention to next November will say about the new arrangements Mr. Forcier said he was unprepared to say. The situation that has developed is of interest to many thousands of French-Canadians of Connecticut, and, more or less remotely, to the church of which they are members. What may be termed "the regulars" in the Franco-American societies of Connecticut have decreed that Taftville should be left out of the picture and the convention of next week transferred to the capital city of the state.

Never judge the weight of a young widow by her sighs.

VETERANS TO START POPPY SALES TODAY

Hourigan post, No. 594, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will open the annual sale of poppies today (Wednesday) according to an announcement made Tuesday evening. The sales of the poppies will be continued until Memorial day. In endorsing the poppy campaign, President Herbert Hoover says:

"The annual "Buddy Poppy" campaign, under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, is a fitting symbol of the sacrifice of those who died in the service of our country, and should remind us of the obligations and sacrifice demanded of all good citizens in times of peace.

The fact that the manufacture of these poppies gives employment to disabled ex-service men, in the hospitals and elsewhere, adds to the worthiness of the cause. I am glad to give my hearty endorsement to this worthy enterprise."

Sunday, May 26, will be poppy Sunday. On that date ministers of churches of all denominations call attention from the pulpit to the special fitness of the buddy poppy as a Memorial day emblem, for the poppy symbolizes the sacrifices of those who fought side by side, regardless of race or creed.

The general federation of Women's clubs, which includes more than 14,500 of the leading women's clubs of the country, expresses its cordial support through Mrs. John F. Sippel, its president, and other officers of local and national women's organizations have also signified their hearty endorsement and desire to cooperate.

SPIRITUAL ACTIVITY DURING FORTY HOURS

At the Sacred Heart church Tuesday morning at the 7:30 high mass, the Forty Hours devotion was brought to an impressive close. The pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn was assisted during the devotion by a number of visiting priests, some from other parishes out of town. Many confessions were heard both afternoon and evening Sunday and Monday. During this period of special grace, many communions were received by the parishioners. Mrs. William M. Murphy was at the organ during the services Tuesday. Again the large group of children, the girls dressed in white with wreaths of smilax, marched in procession while the choir sang Pange Lingua, preceding the Sacred Host, which was borne by Rev. Father Quinn. As at the opening of the devotion Sunday the smaller girls strewed flowers in the pathway. The decorations on the altar and in the sanctuary, as arranged by members of the Altar society, were beautiful, especially so during the evening when the flowers were effective amid the lighted candles. At all masses during the devotion, there were large congregations. Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament brought the services to a close.

Life Saving Talk And Demonstration

Howard W. Corey of New London, a member of the Life Saving Corps at Ocean Beach and assistant physical director and swimming instructor at the New London Young Men's Christian association, is to give a talk and demonstration in the vestry of Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Friday evening. The talk on life saving and artificial respiration will be given under the auspices of Troop 2, Boy Scouts and will be a part of their weekly meeting. The regular meeting for the Scouts will begin at 7 o'clock and the talk by Mr. Corey will be at 8 o'clock (daylight time). Mr. Corey will be accompanied by a number of young men who will assist in the demonstration. In view of the fact that the swimming season is almost here and that the knowledge of life saving is of interest to so many the scoutmaster of Troop 2, Rev. George Warren Potter has invited the general public to attend the meeting.

At the close of the morning service at Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Sunday an official board meeting was held. The board voted to follow the policy of last year by discontinuing the evening services of the church during July and August and the first two Sundays in September. They approved the pastor acting as manager of the Epworth League institute and assisting District Supt. Rev. Myron E. Genter during the week of Willimantic Camp meeting.

COMMITTEE COMPLETES REPORT ON PROPOSED NORWICH AIRPORT SITES

The recommendations of the aviation committee in the matter of proposed sites for an airport in Norwich are practically complete and ready to be submitted to the board of directors of the Norwich chamber of commerce at their next meeting.

Final approval of the report by Commissioner Clarence Knox of the state aviation commission, is expected Monday, when he is to visit Norwich and make the final inspection of the sites.

Commissioner Knox has agreed to speak to the members of the Contact club Monday noon, after which he will visit the various sites in company with members of the aviation committee and a representative of the engineering firm of Chandler and Palmer.

At four o'clock in the afternoon an important final conference will be held between the members of the aviation commission and Commissioner Knox, at which time it is expected the final report will be adopted.

Some important industrial development plans are pending on the action of the city toward developing an airport. It is confidently believed by members of the aviation committee that the establishment of an airport in Norwich would soon bring with it industrial development of such proportion that the city would take on a new lease of life.

As Mr. Lester, chairman of the committee, stated the other day: "Aviation is not coming—it is here. I sincerely hope that Norwich will be in the front ranks of cities to make proper provisions for this modern means of transportation, which ten or fifteen years from now will be as common as the automobile is today."

WOULD BAR UNITED PRESS MEN FROM SENATE FLOOR

Decision Reached by the Senate Rules Committee—Result of Publication of a Senate Roll Call, Since Described as Inaccurate—Decision Was Denounced by Senators Lafollette and Johnson, Both Republicans—Rules Committee Has Subpoenaed a Correspondent of the United Press to Appear Before It on Monday.

WASHINGTON, May 22—(AP)—A decision by the senate rules committee to bar representatives of the United Press from the senate floor for publication of a senate roll call since described by senators as inaccurate was denounced on the floor later today by Senators LaFollette of Wisconsin and Johnson of California, both republicans.

The roll call in question which was published yesterday, purported to show the vote taken in executive session on the confirmation of Irvine Lenroot as a member of the court of customs and patent appeals.

Senator LaFollette challenged the right of the rules committee to give or take away the privilege of any representative of the press to appear on the senate floor.

He described the action of the rules committee as "discrimination" and served notice he would ask to have expelled from the floor the representative of any other press association who appeared.

Senator Reed, republican Pennsylvania, brought the issue before the senate in submitting a resolution from the rules committee condemning upon the senator or senate employe who divulged information in the roll call which was published.

Senator LaFollette objected to consideration of the resolution. He insisted it was up to the rules committee to investigate and name the senator or senate employe involved.

CORRESPONDENT OF THE UNITED PRESS SUBPOENAED

WASHINGTON, May 22—(AP)—The senate rules committee voted today to withdraw the privilege of the senate floor from a representative of the United Press association, which recently published a senate roll call purporting to show a vote in executive session on the confirmation of Irvine L. Lenroot as a member of the court of customs and patent appeals.

The rules committee also issued a subpoena for the appearance before it on Monday of Paul R. Mallon, the correspondent of that association under whose name the purported roll call vote was printed.

Chairman Moses said all members of the committee were present and the action was unanimous. He said the committee was calling Mallon in an effort to determine the source of his information and that if a member of the senate was found to be involved, he would be in favor of taking action against that party.

SENATORS URGE HOUSE VOTE ON DEBENTURE PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 22—(AP)—A proposal was made to the house members of the farm relief conference committee by senate spokesmen today that the house be permitted to vote on the export debenture plan as an amendment to the tariff bill, in order to satisfy a senate demand that the other branch of congress express itself upon the proposition.

The suggestion was carried to Representative Garner, of Texas, the democratic leader, who was named as the man who should propose inclusion of debentures in the tariff measure. While no immediate decision was forthcoming, there was little information that indicated the proposal would be adopted.

The suggestion was made after house conferees again persisted in their refusal to negotiate differences in the farm bills passed separately by the house and senate until the debenture section was eliminated from the discussions. Senate members of the committee insisted that the house in some way express itself on the plan and suggested that it might as well be done by a vote on a proposal to include it in the tariff bill.

DETECTIVE IN CHICAGO KILLED IN A GUN FIGHT

CHICAGO, May 22—(AP)—Detective Joseph Sullivan had his rendezvous with death today, a death that came in a savage gun fight in the early morning hours.

The young detective active in recent gang slaying investigations, was found slumped in his automobile, his head and body punctured with five bullets, his two pistols missing. An anonymous telephone call led police to the battleground—"Red" Bolton's West Taylor street saloon, where overturned tables and chairs, a trail of blood from barroom to curb and the scars of bullets on dingy walls told the story to Sullivan's fellow detectives.

The pegs on which to hang theories of the killing were fragile in line of duty Sullivan had signed the complaints on which Jack McGurn was held for the murder of "Bugs" Moran's seven clansmen on St. Valentine's day, and the adultery charges against McGurn and "Lulu" Rolfe, but there was no disposition to blame McGurn for putting Sullivan away in vengeance.

17 MEN WERE INJURED BY DYNAMITE BLAST

WESTFIELD, Mass., May 22—(AP)—One man was probably fatally injured and 16 others less seriously hurt when five tons of dynamite were discharged in blasting operations on the Cobble Mountain dam project at Blandford today. Three of the injured men were brought to Noble hospital here.

Lawrence Jarvis, 21, of Springfield, received a fractured skull when hit by a flying rock. It was said at the hospital tonight that he would not live until morning. George Guyer of Springfield and John Jackson of Richmond, Va., were expected to recover.

Officials of the Winston company, contractors, who are developing a tunnel at Cobble Mountain, said that every precaution had been taken to warn employes of the blast. A whistle was blown three minutes before the explosion was set off, they said.

TO HOP OFF AT OLD ORCHARD ON PROJECTED PARIS FLIGHT

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 22—(AP)—Armand Lotti, sponsor, and co-pilot of the projected New York-Paris hop of the French monoplane Yellow Bird, said tonight that the beach here would be made the starting point of the flight instead of Roosevelt field, N. Y.

Lotti said the plane would be flown to Old Orchard tomorrow or Friday. The muddy condition of Roosevelt field, which he indicated would endanger a takeoff under a heavy load, was the reason for the change.

MONOPLANE FORT WORTH STILL REMAINS IN THE AIR

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 22—(AP)—The monoplane Fort Worth, which is endeavoring to remain in the air a week or longer to break the refueling endurance record of the army's Question Mark, was throttled down long enough tonight to take on its eighth supply of gasoline since the takeoff at 11.33 a. m. Sunday.

PARAGUAY COMPLAINS OF BOLIVIAN MILITARY ACTION

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 22—(AP)—Paraguayan charges that Bolivia is preparing military action on a large scale in the Chacoboreal region and Bolivian accusations that Paraguay has made unjustifiable incursions in Bolivian territory were contained in documents published by the league of nations today and distributed to all members.

The Paraguayan charges were contained in a letter by R. V. Caballero, Paraguayan charge in Paris, who wrote the league on May 13 that Paraguay had learned from various highly trustworthy sources that Bolivia was preparing military action with the object of suddenly placing Paraguay in the presence of a state of war.

The letter said that contrary to the engagements of the Washington protocol signed in January, Bolivia was concentrating troops at points where the military outposts of the two countries were in touch before the commission of inquiry and conciliation appointed in Washington had given its decision. It added that trains were leaving La Paz daily carrying troops and military material to the Paraguayan frontier.

SUIT FOR ALLEGED BACK GASOLINE TAXES

WATERBURY, May 22—(AP)—Two suits for alleged back gasoline taxes were brought against the Liberty Oil company and Morris Spirt, an official of the company here today by the state of Connecticut. The Liberty Oil company was the complainant in the forgery case against Miss Josephine McGroary several months ago. Miss McGroary was alleged by the company to have forged checks of the concern totaling many thousands of dollars. In an investigation of the books of the company made by the state at that time the information leading to the suits filed today was secured. Miss McGroary is still awaiting trial.

One suit asks $25,000 damages from the company for alleged unpaid gasoline taxes and the other $300 from Morris Spirt for taxes. State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel tonight declared that he has ordered the gasoline vender's licenses at all of the stations of the local company suspended. Auditors have been busy checking the books of the concern for some months.

GANNETT SAILS ON THE LINER MAURETANIA

NEW YORK, May 22—(AP)—A 75-year-old Maine publisher who had planned to travel to Europe in the Graf Zeppelin sailed tonight on the liner Mauretania instead, still hopeful of enjoying a trans-Atlantic journey on the dirigible.

The publisher, W. H. Gannett of Augusta, whose eastbound passage was cancelled when the Graf was forced to turn back from its westward flight toward America, had obtained from the Hamburg-American line a credit good for a passage on the Zeppelin at some future date.

Mr. Gannett said he had been an aeronautics enthusiast for 20 years, his first flight having been in a balloon from Pittsfield, Mass., to Springfield, Mass., two decades ago.

Mrs. Thorpe has recovered from the shock, hospital authorities said and is being kept at the hospital merely for observation and rest.

NANKING, China, May 22—(AP)—Large nationalist armies moved northward today to meet the threat of Civil war, most serious since peace came to troubled China in the north. At the same time reports indicated that the Kwanktung-Kwanksi crisis centering in the struggle for possession of Canton was progressing unfavorably for the defenders, the allies of Nanking.

LONDON, May 22—(AP)—Analysis of the complete returns from nominations for the general election, May 30, showed three hundred more candidates in the field and a larger representation from each of the major parties than in the last general election in 1924. The total number of candidates this year is 1728, compared with 1428 in 1924. There are 69 women candidates.

FLEXIBLE TARIFF BILL ASSAILED IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 22—(AP)—The flexible provisions of the republican tariff bill under which the president is given additional authority in raising or lowering import duties were assailed in the house today by Representative Beck, republican, Pennsylvania, as involving a "momentous and utterly indefensible change in the character of our government."

Before a crowded chamber and amid lively applause from the democratic side, the solicitor general under Harding and Coolidge tore into the proposed new flexible tariff with a vigor that recalled many of his court appearances as the government's leading lawyer. He declared, the bill if enacted, in its present form ultimately would go to the supreme court.

"While he was not prepared to say that it "may not receive the pontifical absolution of that great court," he expressed the belief that the highest tribunal would, if called upon decide that congress had gone too far in delegating its taxing power.

The present law provides that the president, upon report of the tariff commission, may raise or lower duties as much as 50 per cent to equalize differences in cost of production of foreign and domestic articles.

The pending bill carries this authority a step farther by permitting the executive to base changes on "differences in conditions of competition," and to change, if necessary, the method of valuation by adopting the American selling price instead of foreign value, and to reclassify articles.

PROTESTED USE OF THE WORDS "HELL" AND "DAMN"

DANBURY, May 22—(AP)—An audience attending a dramatic play presented in the Danbury high school by the Norwalk Y. M. C. A. tonight was thrown into commotion by Rev. Charles S. Gray, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, who protested the words "hell" and "damn" used in the lines of the youthful Thespians. On his way out after remarking that it was no place for a Christian or a gentleman, Rev. Gray asked those who agreed with him to leave, but was jeered when he left the hall unaccompanied.

The play, "The Seven Chances" was given for the benefit of a camp fund and had been rendered before in Norwalk. During the first act as one of the actors uttered the words "hell" and "damn" in his lines the minister, without rising from his seat in the audience asked that the performance be stopped.

Rev. Charles W. Legge, coach of the dramatic club, mounted the platform and explained to the audience that all the language used was a part of the play and that it was his duty as a Christian to present it as written. As a precaution a policeman was sent for before it was discovered that Rev. Gray had made the remarks against the play.

GRAF ZEPPELIN TO START FOR ITS BASE THIS P. M.

CUERS, France, May 22—(AP)—Departure of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin from her emergency refuge here for Friedrichshafen, at first planned for dawn tomorrow, has been definitely postponed until Thursday evening. This decision was made tonight by Captain Lehmann when he received a telegram from Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander and navigator of the big airship, that the latter was journeying from Germany and would arrive at Cuers at 5 p. m. tomorrow.

ACTION ON STATEMENTS OF NEWSPAPER OWNERS

WASHINGTON, May 22—(AP)—A resolution to submit to the attorney general for such action as he may decide to take the statements of ownership and circulation of the newspapers mentioned in testimony before the federal trade commission as having sold an interest to the International Paper and Power company, was introduced today by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, but action was deferred.

CHILD CRUSHED BETWEEN AUTOMOBILE AND POLE

WATERBURY, May 22—(AP)—Charles Neilson, Jr., 11, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neilson, was instantly killed when crushed between an automobile and a telephone pole while on his way to a church entertainment here tonight. John C. Forgue, 42, of Hitchcock Heights, driver of the auto which struck the boy was arrested on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and was held for the coroner.

Both Sides Have Agreed to Submit Their Differences to a Board of Arbitration.

NEW YORK, May 22—(AP)—The threatened lockout of 75,000 workers in the buildings trades in New York city has been averted Supreme Court Justice C. T. Crain announced today, both sides having agreed to submit their differences to a board of arbitration composed of Justice Crain, Robert D. Kohn, an architect and an electrical engineer yet to be selected.

The lockout would have affected $150,000,000 in construction now under way.

MESSAGE TO CHURCHES AND ALL PEOPLE OF GOOD WILL

NEW YORK, May 22—(AP)—A message to "the churches and to all people of good-will" which appeals for a better understanding between the people of America and Great Britain and is signed by 186 ministers and religious educators of the two countries, was released by the World Alliance today.

Dr. Fred Smith, chairman of the executive committee of the alliance, has just returned from England where he obtained the signatures of 97 British clergymen and religious leaders to the message.

"We believe that the time has come when the world must have done with war in fact, in expectation and in planning," the message read in part, and "that another collision between great nations would be an assault upon Civilization and an offense against God, and we believe that the intelligence and the conscience of this generation are able to build the structure of a permanent peace.

"We believe that the paramount obligation of political leaders in our respective governments is to shape the policies and programs of these countries in accord with the treaty (multilateral) renouncing war, to the end that the whole psychology of supposedly hostile interests and competitive armaments may be transformed into the creative faith which shall build and strengthen those arbitral treatries, courts of justice, and covenants between the nations by which peace can be assured."

HOOVER GIVEN DETAILS OF DISARMAMENT MEET

WASHINGTON, May 22—(AP)—A detailed erport on the undercurrents as well as the surface developments at the recent session of the preliminary arms conference at Geneva was given to President Hoover today by two of the American delegation, Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, and commander H. C. Train.

The president received officers for half an hour and was represented later as being well pleased with the information given and hopeful that this new effort to bring about a restriction on auxiliary warship construction will be productive of results.

Admiral Jones and Commander Train also have reported to Secretary Stimson and they will have future conferences with the president before the sessions of the Geneva conference are resumed, probably next November. The time for renewal of discussions rests with the president of the conference.

Admiral Jones is expected to return to Geneva to resume work with Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson and the other members of the American delegation, but Commander Train has received orders to go to sea and his place probably will be taken by another officer attached to the navy general board.

LINDBERGH HAS LANDED AT PORT WASHINGTON, L. I.

NEW YORK, May 22—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed in the harbor at Port Washington, Long Island, tonight after a flight from North Haven, Me., where he had been a guest at the summer home of Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico.

Although the colonel was accompanied by his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow; her mother, two sisters and her mother's secretary, when he left Maine, he was unaccompanied when he landed his amphibian plane at Port Washington.

Colonel Lindbergh brought his plane down shortly before 8 o'clock and it was pointed out here that sufficient time had elapsed between his takeoff at Portland, Maine, where his plane was refueled, and his arrival at Port Washington to permit his stopping at another point to permit his passengers to disembark.

The colonel, however, was uncommunicative. He remained in the cabin of his plane until the doors of a hangar were opened, pulled his ship into the hangar and drove away in his automobile for an unannounced destination. His automobile was driven toward Harry F. Guggenheim's estate at Sands Point.

30 PERSONS WERE GIVEN FREEDOM OF PORT OF N. Y.

WASHINGTON, May 22—(AP)—Representative Dallinger, republican, Massachusetts, forwarded a letter today to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman from an unnamed Bostonian charging that thirty persons were given the freedom of the port of New York on their arrival aboard the steamship Homeric recently.

Dallinger asked Lowman for a report on the policy governing issuance of orders giving the freedom of port. He declined to make public the name of the complainant, who said that the persons listed as having the freedom of the port did not look like government officials to him.

The letter said that the thirty persons were permitted to take their baggage through the customs gates without question, and that he felt it was unfair discrimination among taxpayers.

WAR THREAT AGAINST CANTON HAS BEEN ENDED

CANTON, China, May 22—(AP)—The Cantonese government today notified the foreign consular corps that the military threat of the Kwangsi warlords against the city had been ended by surrender of 5,000 Kwangsi troops at Lupao, 25 miles northwest of Canton.

The surrender was forced by shortage of ammunition.

Canton, which had lived for days in fear of capture and pillage, was wildly jubilant tonight.

BREAK IN PRICES IN THE STOCK MARKET

The Most Drastic Since the So-Called "Coolidge Bull Market," Five Years Ago.

NEW YORK, May 22—(AP)—Wall street today experienced the most drastic reaction in securities prices since the beginning of the so-called "Coolidge bull market" five years ago as a result of the storm of liquidation set in motion by the federal reserve council's recommendation of an increase from 5 to 6 per cent. in rediscount rates. Fifty, or more, issues on the New York stock exchange broke $5 to $18 a share, many of them to new low records for the year, in a reaction which wiped out more than a billion dollars in quoted values in a single session.

Despite the severity of the decline, the selling, which came from all parts of the country, was orderly in character. The day's total sales fell below 5,000,000 shares, as compared with a series of 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 share sessions in March when the "money pinch" first began to feel acute. The ticker kept fairly well abreast of the market throughout the session, but execution of last minute selling orders delayed the printing of the final quotation until 33 minutes after the close.

The liquidating movement started from the opening gong and continued with only two brief interruptions, one around midday when a brief rally followed the announcement that President Hoover had called an oil conservation conference of western governors and another in mid-afternoon when the call money rate was dropped from 7 to 6 per cent. Hundreds of traders, whose marginal accounts had been impaired, dumped their stocks "at the market" rather than put up more collateral. This was in strange contrast to previous reactions when demands for more margin were readily forthcoming, and undoubtedly reflected the destruction of speculators' hopes that the tight credit situation could be alleviated without resort to drastic rediscount action.

Directors of the Boston federal reserve bank met today and made no announcement regarding the rate, but widespread rumors were in circulation during the afternoon that a higher rate had been voted. Directors of the New York federal reserve bank meet after the close tomorrow and the Chicago directors on Friday, and both are reported previously to have sought permission of the federal reserve board to raise the rate which until now has been refused.

The drop in prices on the New York stock exchange had its repercussion on the New York curb market, the other leading securities exchanges of the country and the so-called unlisted markets, where stocks are traded in "over the counter".

PLANE THREE MUSKETEERS STARTS FOR RECORD FLIGHT

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 22—(AP)—The monoplane Three Musketeers took off at 7:48:50 eastern daylight time tonight in a second attempt to break the refueling endurance flight record established by the army monoplane Question Mark.

Lieut. H. B. Clarke, army flier on an indefinite leave of absence, was at the controls when the ship roared down the runway for the takeoff. The ship rose after a run of about 2,500 feet.

Accompanying Lieut. Clarke was Martin Jensen, holder of the unofficial solo endurance flight record, and William Ulbrich, assistant to Clarke when Clarke was manager of the Roosevelt Field Flying school.

The fliers plan to pick up fuel from a catapult device. They carried 160 gallons of gasoline at the takeoff, estimated to be sufficient to keep the ship in flight until morning without refueling.

The first attempt of the Three Musketeers to establish a new fueling record ended last night less than six hours after they took off. They were forced to descend when one of the plane's stabilizers was damaged in an attempt to refuel.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN ANDROSCOGGIN RIVER

LEWISTON, Me., May 22—(AP)—The body of a woman, believed by Police Chief John H. Ashton to be that of Mrs. Thelma Smith, young Portland mother who disappeared March 22, was found in the Androscoggin river tonight a mile below the city.

The body, caught in some brush about 20 feet from shore, was discovered by boys playing on the river bank. One of the boys declared he had noticed it in the same position for several weeks but had believed it was some other object.

Mrs. Smith disappeared after she had come to Lewiston for recuperation from an alleged illegal operation. Dr. Charles K. Donnell, elderly physician, and Mrs. Estella Edwards, a housekeeper, both of this city, are now held under heavy bail for the grand jury on charges of manslaughter in connection with Mrs. Smith's disappearance.

MOVEMENT TO STAY THE OVER PRODUCTION OF OIL

WASHINGTON, May 22—(AP)—President Hoover today invited the governors of the principal oil producing states to meet at Colorado Springs on June 10 with a representative of the federal government, probably Secretary Wilbur, to promulgate an interstate compact which would eliminate waste and over-production in the oil industry.

The president's invitation was extended upon the recommendation of the federal oil conservation board, which recently proposed to the American Petroleum institute that the most satisfactory method of dealing with overproduction and waste would be through a compact to which the federal government would be a party through legislation.

TO ATTEND VOCATIONAL HOME MAKING MEETING

OUTCOME OF REPARATION CONFERENCE UP TO GERMANS

The Creditor Delegates Have Said Their Last Word—The Allies Have Accepted Most of the German Conditions, Rejecting Only One That is Regarded as Very Important—What Practically Amounts to an Ultimatum Has Been Presented to Dr. Schacht.

PARIS, May 22—(AP)—The fate of the reparationos conference was tonight in the hands of the German experts. The creditor delegates said their last word in a revised edition of the conference's report which was presented to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht with a covering letter shortly after noon today.

The report, as it stands, and the letter accepted most of the conditions to which the German experts subordinated their acceptance of the annuities plan proposed by Owen D. Young.

The allied delegates rejected the German demand for the right to postpone payments within Germany on protected annuities upon their own initiative. They lifted the lien on German industrial enterprises and agreed that the Dawes lien on German railroads be considered as a second mortgage so as to facilitate financing them.

The creditors further granted the German demand that the unconditional part of the annuities for the first 37 years be reduced from Mr. Young's figure of 530,000,000 marks (approximately $207,500,000) to 660,000,000 marks (approximately $165,000,000).

They demanded, however, that the unprotected part be increased after a certain number of years so as to reach 830,000,000 marks in the 29th year.

Dr. Schacht's demand that the Germans should have the right to call in at par any time the bonds through which part of the reparations debt will be eventually mobilized, was rejected.

The creditor experts also refused to accept the German view as to combining payments by states successors to the Autro-Hungarian monarchy in the reparations settlement.

The creditor powers thus accepted most of the German conditions, rejecting only one of those that is regarded as very important, namely that dealing with postponement of payments within Germany. On the other hand they themselves make the condition that Germany must pay 25,000,000 marks (approximately $6,250,000) annually for 37 years to redeem the German marks forced upon Belgium during the war.

BERLIN OPINION OF THE REPARATIONS FIGURES

BERLIN, May 22—(AP)—Government circles tonight insisted emphatically that it was out of the question for the German delegates at Paris to go beyond the reparations figures mentioned in the proposal of Owen D. Young. They said that an agreement among the creditor nations regarding distribution of the German payments could not affect that position.

Germany's economic capabilities would not permit any higher total, it was said.

CHARGED WITH EVADING INCOME TAX PAYMENTS

LOS ANGELES, May 22—(AP)—Charges of "evading income tax payments" by filing false returns were contained in a federal indictment returned today against Eleanor Boardman, motion picture actress and in an information filed against her husband, King Vidor, noted director.

The indictment contained six counts against the actress, two each for the years of 1925, 1926, 1927. The information accusing Vidor covered the years of 1925 and 1926. In a previous indictment J. Marjorie Berger, Hollywood income tax counsellor was accused of advising the preparing a false return for the actress and her husband in 1926.

The indictment of the actress embraced alleged discrepancies in 1925 and added that in 1926 and 1927 Miss Boardman prepared her own return and paid taxes of $1,522 and $989 on incomes of $52,177 for 1926 and $46,916 for 1927 respectively and which represented only one fourth to one half of the taxes due.

Vidor's income in 1925 was figured by government auditors at $141,124 and in 1926 at $89,360 on which he paid taxes of $2,222 and $895. The taxes paid, the government contended represented only 25 to 50 per cent. of the amounts due.

LOS ANGELES FLEW OVER CENTRAL CONNECTICUT

WATERBURY, May 22—(AP)—Virtually unheralded, the United States navy dirigible Los Angeles paid a visit to this city early this evening and then, after sailing majestically over the city for some 20 minutes turned about and headed south, presumably bound for its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J. The visit of the big craft had been requested tomorrow in connection with a national guard exhibit here.

Earlier in the day the navy blimp J-4, commanded by Lieut. Raymond Tyler, of Middlebury, Conn., made the flight here from Lakehurst and circled over the city several times. After dropping a note, the blimp then sailed out to Middlebury where Lieut. Taylor dropped a message for his father and then the craft headed back south. It was the second visit here of the J-4, Lieut. Tyler having sailed the blimp here several months ago to visit his parents.

The visitation of the Los Angeles had been requested through U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham.

Tentative preparations for a takeoff early tomorrow if the weather proved suitable were abandoned after Dr. James H. Kimball, of the New York weather bureau advised that such an attempt might be hazardous. The fliers believed that conditions would clear up to enable them to depart Friday morning.

Williams said that another test flight would be made tomorrow for further checking of the gasoline consumption of the plane. Several flights were made today for the same purpose under the scrutiny of Guiseppe M. Bellanca, designer of the plane.

The fliers tonight received assurances from the coast guard department in Washington that ships would be notified to watch for the Green Flash during the flight. DANIELSON

CLAIMS HE FIGURED IN 200 BREAKS SINCE NOVEMBER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 23—Everett Harrington, 36, who attained notoriety in 1924 when he attempted to force Edwin Pinkham of East Killingly to dig his own grave in a field in the vicinity of Westfield cemetery, was locked up here today and will be presented in the town court Thursday morning probably to face the charge of being an habitual criminal. Harrington, together with his companion, Louis Gorgianni, 14, who claims Brooklyn, N. Y., as his home, was arrested this morning by State Officer Elton Nolan near Old Killingly pond, where the pair have been living in a shack the past three weeks and masurading at night. They admit having made forty breaks in Connecticut and Rhode Island territory in the period they have been together.

They had broken into a number of summer cottages around Old Killingly pond and robbed them of whatever they found that might be of use to them. Their shack upon being searched today yielded quantities of canned goods, clothing and a variety of other articles, including a gun. It is possible that owners may be found for much of this plunder.

Harrington escaped from the State hospital at Norwich last November. Since that time he has been in jail in Albany, in New York city and in Providence. Together with the breaks recently committed in nearby territory his estimate today of the number of breaking and entering cases he has figured in since November is 200.

Gorgianni accidentally became associated with Harrington. Some three weeks ago this youth ran away from his home in greater New York and made his way to Boston. He claims that he was on his way home walking, when he encountered Harrington, who invited him to accompany him to the shack that they have since made their headquarters in the northeastern section of this town. Since that time they have spent their days and nights in raiding places all the way between North Scituate, 16 miles east of here in Rhode Island and this section of eastern Connecticut.

Harrington, who first claimed his name was Mason when he was arrested this morning, was known to have been about East Killingly recently, a fact that caused uneasiness because of his past record and his attempt, under threat of death if he did not obey, to have the Pinkham youth dig his own grave. Harrington received a great amount of publicity through the strange Pinkham incident, and as a result of it was committed to the state institution at Norwich. He was born in the vicinity of East Killingly and lived there for years before his strange actions first attracted attention to him. It was being recalled today that Pinkham, who had been forced to come all the way from East Killingly to Danielson by Harrington, who was armed, managed to escape from the madman by stunning him with the shovel with which he was to be made to dig his grave. To get the grave digging implements a tool house at Westfield cemetery was broken into by Harrington.

There was a question this evening as to whether Harrington should be recommitted to the State hospital at Norwich or charged with being a habitual criminal. Gorgianni, because of his tender years, may be committed to the state school for boys, Mr. Bill said.

Brings Receipts of $2,257.60

Secretary Stetson K. Ryan of the state board of education for the blind has compiled a detailed report of the receipts during the Week for the Blind in this territory, the report showing that the receipts from all sources amounted to $2,257.60. Secretary Ryan expresses his gratitude for the generous support given the affair by the people of Danielson and surrounding towns. Small sales in nearby communities, and sales in stores, schools, factories, offices and elsewhere increased the grand total of the receipts.

The day by day sales in Danielson at the town hall were: Monday, $247.45; Tuesday, $126.20; Wednesday, $105.50; Thursday, $102.00; Friday, $130.50; Saturday, $329.50, a grand total of $941.15. PUTNAM

GIVEN FINES OF $500 FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 22—General surprise was indicated here today when it became known that J. A. Freddy Gagne, former Putnam saloon keeper, and Joseph Breayea, Danielson taxi driver, were arraigned at a special session of city court this afternoon to answer charges of liquor law violations.

Judge Archibald Macdonald, Jr., deputy magistrate of the local court, acted in the absence of Judge M. H. Geissler. Gagne was first to take the stand. He was without counsel and he entered pleas of guilty to charges of transporting, owning and keeping with intent to sell and actual sale of intoxicating liquors.

Judge Macdonald imposed a fine of $200 on the first count, a like amount on the third and a fine of $100 on the second count, making a total of $500 and costs. In addition to the stiff fines meted out by Judge Macdonald a sentence of 60 days in the county jail at Brooklyn was imposed upon Gagne, the execution of which was suspended for a period of six months.

Breayea, Gagne's confederate in arrest, pleaded guilty to charges of transporting owning and keeping with intent to sell and actual sale of intoxicating liquors. A fine of $100 was imposed upon the taxi driver for the three violations of the Volstead act. Breayea received a suspended jail sentence of 30 days in the county jail, the execution of which was withheld for a period of six months. Breayea was without counsel and offered no alibi to the charges made against him.

The hearing of these two was slated to be held Thursday morning, but for unexplained reasons the case was aired out this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock in the presence of only court and police authorities.

Gagne and Breayea were arrested Monday evening by State Officer John Murphy of Danielson barracks.

RECEIVE FINES AND JAIL SENTENCES AT WOODSTOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 22—After spending a substantial part of 1928 in the county jail at Brooklyn for motor law and Volstead law violations, Walter Blume and Emile Loving were arrested again by State Officer Donald E. Geddes of Danielson barracks shortly after midnight Tuesday in North Woodstock and were sentenced today to serve 30 day sentences in the county jail at Brooklyn. Blume, the younger of the two, was arrested on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, operating without a license, operating an unregistered car and disuse of number plates. His cohort, Loving, was charged with intoxication. Both were arraigned before Justice A. R. Scranton in South Woodstock tonight. Blume received a fine of $100 on the major charge of operating under the influence and received fines of $10 on each subsequent count. Justice Scranton also imposed a 30 day jail sentence on the first count, execution of which was suspended for six moths. Blume also received a jail sentence of 30 days which he will be forced to serve because he operated an automobile bearing false markers. Loving was sentenced at 30 days in jail. Officer Geddes, who arrested the pair, appeared in court against them and presented a lengthy outline of the case.

At a meeting of the common council held last evening for the purpose of completing the legal and technical formalities regarding the straightening of the street lines on property owned by Charles Seder, known as the Central block plot on Main street, every detail was carried out without opposition. Mr. Seder was approached this morning for information as to dates when he expected to commence the work of razing the Central block. Because of other obstacles now existing he was unable to advise one on this matter.

Arthur E. Smith, cashier of the Citizens National bank of this city, leaves Friday morning on the first leg of his trip to Dallas Texas, where he will represent the Putnam Rotary club at the International Rotary convention in that city. Mr. Smith will join the New England delegation of Rotarians at Worcester and will depart upon the New England Rotarian, a special train. The itinerary of the trip to the western city where the 20th annual international gathering of Rotarians is to be held contains visits to many of the American shrines on the way. Mr. Smith expects to return early in June.

Edward I. Boyle, the blind pianist and composer, widely known throughout New England and states on the Atlantic seaboard, appeared on the bill at the Bradley theatre Tuesday evening as the guest of Manager James F. Mahoney. Each year the composer pays a visit to this city. During the past six months efforts have been made by New Englanders to excite a campaign to bring New England into the inspirations of song writers, as the old south has done. It appeared as though Mr. Boyle has complied with the New England wide musical desire since his seasonal success played last evening was, "I Am Coming Back to Old New Hampshire, Molly!"

One hundred members of the Northeastern Fish and Game club of Windham county gathered last evening at the Putnam Inn for the annual banquet of the club. The meeting of the anglers and huntsmen was called to order by President E. Clinton Rogers. A most delightful and relishing dinner followed. The menu consisted of fruit cocktail, consumme of tomato, olives, celery, lamb chops, boiled cauliflower, cake, ice cream, cigars. Professor L. M. Hove, a graduate of the Paris conservatory of music entertained the sportsmen with a short piano recital. The dinner and meeting was held in the special banquet room of the Putnam Inn. Seated at the head table were President Rogers, Byron Morse, vice president, Stanley Bacon, secretary, George Whitney, treasurer, Irving Payne of North Woodstock, and Allen Kenyon, members of the board of directors. At 10 o'clock the club members journeyed to the Bradley theatre where they were given a special showing pertaining to fishing scenes and witnessed a special screening of the motion picture, "The Letter."

The Rotarians gathered this noon at the Putnam Inn for the weekly noon day luncheon and executive session Today's gathering was presided over by Rev. James F. English, president of the business men's organization. No speaker had been engaged by the committee since the meeting was devoted to the nomination and election of a new board of directors. Those elected for the ensuing year are: Arthur E. Smith, cashier of the Citizens National bank; Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church; Alexander Gilman, president of A. Gilman company, Inc.; Warren W. Averill, secretary of the Putnam Music Shop, Inc.; Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Congregational church; Subbo Nickoloff, of the Worcester Leather Belting company of Worcester, Mass.; E. Leslie Beebe, exchange manager of the Putnam, Danielson and Moosup telephone exchanges. A meeting of the newly elected board of directors will be held this evening at which time a new staff of officers for the coming year will be appointed to direct the Rotary club. Visitors at today's luncheon were Albert E. Shaw of Webster; T. C. Ralph and Van Thompson both of Danielson.

It may be well for Putnam drivers to bear in mind the fact that Chief of Police George H. Reynolds of Dudley has declared "War" on speeding drivers. The old motto, "Go slow, see our town; go fast, see our jail," which for years has been upheld by the Dudley police will be more strictly applied according to Chief Reynolds declaration last evening. Those found violating the speed limits in the little town, just over the Massachusetts border will suffer the inconvience of being summoned into court and leaving behind a few dollars and in addition be recommended to the state motor vehicle commissioner as unfit to operate on the highways of the state. This police action unusually results in the immediate suspension of operators licenses.

The action to speeding motorists on the Dudley roads as planned out by the police official will be efficient. No driver will be molested, but on the contrary, when he darts through the streets of the town his number will be jotted down by a patrolman and when his identity is learned, a court summons will be served. Chief Reynold's advice to motorists now is "Be Careful."

EASING THE STRAIN.

In comparison with the claims of other nations against Germany, the claims of the United States are relatively so small, that it has been difficult to see how we could make any material financial contribution when the experts met in Paris to frame a reparations settlement. Sacrificing the entire amount might have helped a little, but this would have been obviously unfair as other nations were making only proportionate concessions. But now the experts have reached a point where it seems that even a million dollars might be a turning point in the whittling-down process. It is with this knowledge that President Hoover, in consultation with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of State Stimson, along with leaders of the senate and house, has decided that a proportionate concession by the United States would serve a real purpose. If such a step will help towards a settlement, it is open to no valid criticism.

The Washington decision, if based upon proportional concessions, would mean a cut of about ten per cent from the balance due the United States, which, at the beginning of the present reparation year, was $206,000,000. It would be difficult to calculate in dollars per year, just how much the United States is giving up in order to ease the way of the experts towards a settlement. It can be shown, for instance, that if payments continue for the full period of the war debt and reparations set-up, Germany will have met her full obligation. But as this whole set-up may come in for revision in the distant future, any precise mathematical calculation would avail little. It should suffice to point out that the United States, in the case of the reparations problem as it stands today, is ready to make sacrifice proportional to those of the other creditor nations. The United States has already scaled down war debts to an extent not always appreciated. American policy has been consistently directed towards easing the financial burdens left by the war. It is a sounder and wiser policy than total cancellation, which would be unjust towards the American people, harmful to international credit and comforting to those nations which in the future might think they could make war with borrowed money and then not pay it back.

OUR HELIUM ADVANTAGE.

Out of the unfortunate experience of the Graf Zeppelin beaten in its attempt to cross the Atlantic and blown back across Europe in imminent danger with its motors crippled, there arises a new conviction of the inestimable advantage enjoyed by America in the development of lighter-than-air craft. The helium-filled airship is not merely safer by elimination of the fire hazard nor more comfortable because it can carry facilities for heating and cooking. The inflation of its big bags with a non-inflammable gas means also that all its machinery can lie within the hull, exactly as in the case with a liner of the sea, nothing but the propellors projecting beyond the smooth skin of the ship. This will be the case with the giant airships now building at Akron, Ohio.

In such a ship, it can be readily seen that motor repairs can be carried on with ease and safety, in comparison with the problematical and precarious job of overhauling them in a tiny gondola slung in thin air beneath the ship's hull. Since the airship, when deprived of power, is at the mercy of every wind that blows, the ability to keep motors in good condition in flight is of major importance in the future development of airship operation. The story of the Graf Zeppelin shows where the weakness lies; the new American ships will have to meet and master it and our monopoly of helium will be a big help.

A MONUMENTAL TASK.

To the lay mind it would seem as if the commission appointed by President Hoover to study law enforcement and the administration of the courts in general has a monumental task ahead of it. How long a time the commission will require for its work is merely a matter of guesswork. Many months will be required to investigate methods of procedure alone. Sectional conditions affecting the administration of federal justice will have to be examined. Presumably a great array of testimony must be assembled and digested. If the commission finishes investigation and presents its recommendations within two years it will probably be looked upon as doing well. Enough time must be taken to do the work thoroughly and soon.

deliberately if it is to command public respect.

For one thing President Hoover's selection of the members of the commission, ten men and one woman, with George W. Wickersham, who was attorney general in the cabinet of President Taft, as chairman, brings to this service a type of citizen which should command public confidence. His selection of the members of the commission shows a wide geographical distribution. All sections of the country are represented.

Not more laws but the revision and co-ordination of such laws as we now possess in such plenitude would seem to be the task of the commission, together with the reform of procedural methods in the courts. The delay in the prosecution of cases growing out of the oil scandals has shown how easy it is for rich offenders to hold up the courts. The congestion of calendars is more local than general, but it also presents a problem with which the commission will have to deal. The efficiency of judges and prosecutors may call for scrutiny, for manifestly justice is not promoted when its servants are incompetent.

It will be for Chairman Wickersham and his associates to determine the methods by which their work shall be undertaken, but it is to be hoped that whatever else they decide upon they will permit the fullest measure of publicity possible during the progress of investigation. The people of the United States are entitled to know what the commission is doing at every stage of its proceedings.

SENATE'S DEBENTURE PLAN.

Though the farm relief bill passed by the federal senate differs in some not unimportant administrative details from the measure previously adopted by the lower house, it is agreed that those relatively minor differences will be adjusted easily in conference committee. The house bill, is a sounder measure than the senate substitute, but a few slight concessions to the upper branch by the lower would not meet with serious criticism. The one major difference is the debenture feature of the senate bill.

That feature, it may be assumed, will be rejected by the house as it has been by scientific economists, by the business community and by the administration. Though under the terms of the senate bill the debenture plan is not mandatory, doubtless the farm board would be compelled to resort to it if it were made lawful. As President Hoover has pointed out, no administrative policy long neglects a power conferred upon it. The supposed beneficiaries of that power would not be slow in employing constant and strong pressure to bring it into use.

Exports financed by debentures under the system provided for in the senate bill would stimulate overproduction and intensify the difficult problem of the exportable agricultural surplus. Senator Capper and other advocates of farm relief have demonstrated that, despite the Norris amendment designed to discourage overproduction, the present exportable surplus might be doubled before the original debenture rate could be lowered by 20 per cent. Moreover, the original debenture plan, a bounty plan poorly disguised, would provoke retaliatory measures and restrict the American farmers' foreign markets instead of enlarging them. Finally, the debentures would enrich speculators and lead inevitably to a demand for direct bounties. With such practice would come open dumping of American products abroad a practice that would be deeply resented by all countries.

BILLBOARD CONCESSIONS.

It is a heartening sign of the value and the power of public protest to find the leading representatives of outdoor advertising interests proposing to cooperate in the elimination of advertising signs and billboards along certain designated highways running through scenic areas. The five New England states have a particular interest in seeing their highways kept free from these disfigurements, particularly at scenic points, as the states are so much the territory for tourist travel during practically all seasons of the year.

The concession is important, even though those who offer it are frank enough to say that it is not expected to apply to any large percentage of the nation's road mileage. At any rate, the plan will logically apply to several New England highways as well as to the leading route through Westchester county, New York, mentioned as a prominent example. And there are spots in other highways that have just claims for protection, even if they are not distinguished for scenic beauty. It is not to be acknowledged that this concession on the part of the bill board men is to give them freedom to run riot on parts of the highway which have nothing of the scenic to protect them. But it is considerable of a gain to feel the assurance that even a few highways, such as the Mohawk trail, are to be saved from having their beauty spots desecrated by the unsightly blot on the landscape which a shrieking billboard makes. The reform has been started and can well be pushed farther.

One trouble about a sleeveless era is that the girl can't roll up her sleeves and pitch into housework.

It seems, too, as if the federal commission might devise some way to make the radio behave itself better when company is present.

It might be worth while for Chicago to examine the Philadelphia police and court records in the Capone case to see how it is done.

The man on the corner says: The season is approaching when guide books, motor trails and railroad schedules come into the realm of popular literature.

In a few more weeks the canoe will be operating in competition with motoring and aviation for the reckless thrill that imperils human life.

A reckless air pilot who crashes affords another reminder of the strange fact that the phrase "safety first" has lost its meaning for the average person.

SALVAGE

Marge isn't really a social climber, but, as she carefully explains, there is no use getting off on the wrong foot when you move into a new and somewhat upstage suburb. Popping out onto the front porch in pajamas is the wrong foot, according to Marge. So is holding intimate family conversations between the bathroom window and garage. And most anything either Andy or I ever achieved before the Berlinger-Smiths seemed to be wrong foot.

On the whole, however, Marge had us pretty well to heel—Andy because he is her husband, and I because, although I am her brother, I have profound respect for Marge's social judgment.

As I said, we were well to heel when Andy acquired Hash. He brought him home in his ulster pocket one rainy night and set him down on the library table. Without looking I knew by the rising inflection of Marge's gasp that Hash was a social error.

"Andy Brewster, where did you get such a completely ugly dog? And what is he?"

"Well" said Andy, walking around him and surveying him from every frontage. "His chassis is dachshund. His upholstering is—er—abbreviated collie. But his heart is Great Dane."

"Well, if you must have a dog why couldn't you get one we could be proud of—not just hash," snorted Marge. At the word Hash the dog lifted an ear, cocked an eye at Marge and wagged his tail tentatively. From that moment Hash was his name.

Hash wasn't the stuff of which heroes are made. But he was an engaging little chap. As he grew older he grew a few inches taller—but yards and yards longer, till Andy, looking at him speculatively, remarked that if he lengthened out any more we would have to strap a roller skate to his tummy.

In spite of herself Marge liked Hash, but she kept him in the back yard, away from the public eye. Andy and I had no scruples. Where we went, Hash went, and before the summer was over the grocer, the postoffice staff, the filling station crew, the hotel and all its guests—ah, even the local banker—knew Hash well enough to call him by his first name. Winter was shaking down its first thermometers when Marge met us at the front door one night bursting with importance. The Hearth and Home Club had noticed her! They had found out somehow that she was an erstwhile home economics expert before she was married—and had asked her to give an afternoon on economy in planning well-balanced menus.

"And Mrs. Berlinger-Smith is program chairman," she finished with a final flourish of triumph.

For two solid weeks Marge labored over her paper while Andy and I and Hash lived meagerly on what we could find in the pantry. Canned salmon, weary-eyed sardines—even tuna fish. But Marge's social future was at stake and we ate it and said nothing. Andy and I had lunches downtown, but poor Hash—he was taking on a wistful look as though he were searching his soul for a vague, far-away memory of thick, red steak. I could interpret the expression because I was feeling so much like he was looking.

But even Christmas finally gets here, and on that Wednesday Marge, looking so perfect that even her husband was mute with approval, mounted the platform and told a spellbound group of Hearth and Homers how she fed her family—scientifically—on $3—or thereabouts—a week.

Andy and I were sitting in the car, nervous but proud, when she sailed down the steps of the clubhouse and sank breathless between us.

"Oh, Andy, I'm so glad it's all over. I need to celebrate. Can't we go over to the hotel and have dinner?" We could and did. Over large portions of succulent T-bone steak we confided to Marge how hungry we had been—Andy and I—and Hash.

"You are poor, long-suffering dears," she purred at us. "You are going to get just anything you want to eat—and all of it you can tuck away from now on. We'll even take these steak bones home to Hash." Andy beckoned to the waiter.

"Jake, could you persuade the chef to let us have these steak bones to take home to our dog?" Jake's solemn eyes twinkled.

"Hash, you mean? Sure, Mister Brewster." From the doorway came the stir that presages an entrance that merits a fleet of camera men.

"Mrs. Berlinger-Smith," breathed Marge. "And the program committee." Amid a convoy of waiters and an aura of perfume they bore down upon us and settled at the table at ourselves. Marge smiled and bowed and gave Andy and me a look which said, "Don't you dare wrong foot now."

"They were impressed," she boasted gently. "Mrs. Jason Blaire even came over and asked me about budgets and ordering meats and things." And then the blow fell. Jake came striding across the dining room with a bulgy bundle held out in his bony hand and in a voice you could have heard across a ball park he said, "Here are your table scrapings for Hash, Mrs. Brewster!"—Exchange.

Electricity on The Farm

Mr. Editor: My purpose in addressing this note to you is to emphasize how important, how entirely necessary in fact, electricity has become on farms as well as in city homes. One farm in Connecticut is electrified almost completely. That is the Daniels farm in Middletown. At first this farm used current for lights; then to replace an engine to pump water; then to operate milkers. The washing machine and sweeper came, together with other minor household helpers.

On this particular farm ice had to be hauled some distance. That made costly ice. But a low temperature for superior milk is a necessity. Duly came a large electric refrigerator in the dairy. This did away with the cost and toil and slop of ever-melting ice. Already electricity was whirling a cream-separator and bottle-brushes.

With the operation of all these machines the monthly bill for current mounted up and up until it reached about $40 a month. "And yet," said the late H. O. Daniels, "we couldn't get this work done as well by employing two men at greater cost."

And suddenly the $40-a-month current-bill tumbled down to about $14 a month. The electric range in the kitchen made the change. It was that marvellous self-watched, self-clocked cooking machine that carried this electrified farm over the peak of cost and down into the happy valley of a farm-home energized abundantly with obedient, co-operative helper, electricity.

Legislation, Wise or Otherwise

Mr. Editor: Almost the last official act of ex-President Coolidge was to sign the bill which carries with it a heavy penalty for those caught breaking the 18th amendment. For instance, a woman who breaks the law by selling a glass of so-called whiskey may be fined $10,000 and given five years in all, but the woman who is caught running a house of prostitution, corrupting the morals of the community draws a fine of from $25 to $50. There may be a reason. No wonder Darwin would say man descended from monkey and some men have not descended very far. Certain it is the 18th amendment is making monkeys of all of us. Some time ago one of the foreign diplomats drove through the streets of Washington with a load of whiskey. If whiskey is good for a foreign diplomat it is good for an American. If whiskey is bad for an American it is bad for a foreign diplomat. But there may be a reason.

Another incident that happened was when the killing of a boy was brought up in congress the dry members of that august body applauded.

When the untutored Redmen burned the white man's cabin they were classed as blood-thirsty savages, but when it comes to blood-thirstiness the ignorant Redmen have nothing on the cultured dry members of congress. Speaking about members of congress, how about those rabid dry members who go on vacations and bring back a trunk load of the stuff that cheers? It seems somebody had to be made the goat so it is a case of whiskey, who's got the whiskey. Others bring it back in suit cases for a sick friend.

Some there are who rejoice in the fact that King Alcohol is dead, but King Hooch is very much alive and is working much harder than even King Alcohol ever did.

Those who are in favor of the 18th amendment will do anything and everything to keep it in the statute books as the recent killings will show the one who killed the boy because he was an alleged rum runner, was presented a reward for his brave act. The constitution says every person is innocent until proven guilty, but the 18th amendment has changed that. Now a person must prove he is innocent. Will congress grant a regard to the brave lad who shot and wounded the murderer of his mother?

Nature's Laws

Mr. Editor: It is evident beyond dispute that every man devotes a part of his life in collecting material for use. Perhaps as he gets along life's journey and passes each succeeding milepost that leads him on to his journey's end, some there are among us who do this with a method, while others only notice these happenings, and then dismiss them without further thought. Speaking or writing are but the distribution of the thoughts that have been previously gathered and deposited in the storehouse of your memory during a more or less busy life. And the thoughts of others can be molded and fit in harmony with your own thoughts.

I noted a remark in the columns of The Bulletin, a response to the times when the rivers were teeming with fish and how one could go out and whip the brooks and get plenty of fish as a reward. I have an idea the real fisherman, the real honest to goodness disciple of Isaac Walton is never disappointed if he doesn't get anything, but of course if he does he is pleased to the extent that he can reason. "Well, the wind was in the right quarter, and they struck fine," or if he returned without anything. "Well it wasn't a very good day because there has been so much rain it has made the brooks muddy and they wouldn't rise." Now this is where optimism is sublime for such a man takes notes of the caprices of nature and has stored those thoughts away to use when the occasion requires it.

How well do I recall when I, in early days, went out fishing. Fish were very plentiful. There was no fancy pole, just go out in the bushes and get an alder that was straight, and for bait I have many times used a clover blossom, or rolled over a log and got the grubs that were using this place for a dwelling place. The whole thing in a nut shell is the fact that there are many causes for the disappearance of fish in the brooks. The principal thing is the polution of the waters by different things such as dye stuffs and the many discharges from the factories and the onward advance of civilization which is driving out all the wild life in the fields, the woods and the waters, but even today as we go a little ways back into the country where nature, is now and still remains almost in as primitive a condition as it was many years ago, we can look into the ponds and see the finny tribe just lazily swimming around and just waiting to be transferred from their native element to the skillet. You who have found this Eden can recall what a sense of satisfaction took possession of you when you were camping out free from all worries. As you gazed into the pan and saw this catch sizzling and turning into a fine golden brown, and as you listened to the sputting of the fat in the pan with a few slices of bacon that crackled at your touch, and with a good pot of java steaming and throwing off the blest odors of Arabia, and with a good piece of corn bread such as the boys in Blue used to make, say boy there was a treat for a man with a jaded appetite. That appealed to the inner man, and nothing could excell this not even the hame what am.

I have been out in the woods many times with a good pal and have seen the shades of night come over the earth, and then the wild things would come out in search of food. A friend of mine was camping up in the wilds of Canada at one time during the month of September, and as he said at this time there was already a chill in the air, and even during the day there was a very perceptible tang that told you that winter was just around the corner, and as he continued he said the solitude was very impressive.

One night as I with my companion was sitting before the tent, and as we looked into the blackness of the forests all about us we could hear the long drawn out cry of a wolf in the distance and this was answered by another, and eventually a large pack was in full cry, as they told each other in their cries, that was a signal for the chase, for they were out after their evening meal and the cries were coming closer and closer, and the howling told us there was a good sized pack, and just then a deer dashed from the woods and across the little clearing where we had our camp, and shortly after in full cry there dashed into the clearing a pack of wolves. They stopped for a moment as we stood in the light of our camp fire with our rifles in our hands. Then they turned and went in another direction in full cry. As we listened we could hear others calling in another direction, for they had surrounded their quarry. Then we could hear them as they gradually closed in and then the last despairing cry of the deer. We could hear the wolves as they fought among themselves for their share of the prize, and then there came quietness once again, and the moon we could see was slowly rising. And soon it softly bathed the surroundings with light and as it shone on the water of the lake the waves glittered and danced against the shore like millions of diamonds. And all is peace and quietness and all nature is at rest. All these are just memories that are recalled from wood and field.

YOUR HEALTH

May Show No Evidence in Sore Throats or Tonsillitis.

By W. Raymond McKenzie, M. D., Baltimore, Maryland.

You can have very badly infected tonsils, which may cause all sorts of trouble for you, without having sore throats or tonsillitis. Hundreds of people are suffering from the evil effects of diseased tonsils, made invalids or cripples for life by rheumatism and heart disease, simply because they do not suffer with sore throats and their attention is not attracted to the source of the trouble.

A number of diseases are caused by diseased tonsils, such as rheumatism, chorea or St. Vitus dance, and various types of heart and kidney disease. These are the most common ones and may occur at any age or time, during or following the first attack of tonsillitis, or late in life after repeated attacks of sore throats and tonsillitis.

What is the best treatment for diseased or enlarged tonsils and adenoids? Complete surgical removal is the only satisfactory method of treatment. Internal medication, local applications of various drugs, or exposure to the x-ray or radium give temporary relief but do not give us the ideal results, which are the correction of existing disease and deformity and the prevention of future complications.

It has been demonstrated that the only effect of x-ray radium on tonsils and adenoids is some reduction in their size, having little if any effect on the infection present. Do not be misled into believing that the tonsils can be "burned out" by drugs, x-ray or radium, or by electric needles or other means, just because you wish to avoid an operation.

To date there has been nothing to show that complete surgical removal of the tonsils and adenoids causes evil effects, whereas there is much evidence to show that good results follow.

The question may now be asked, At what age should the tonsils and adenoids be removed? My answer is that whenever the tonsils and adenoids are definitely diseased, or are so large as to cause obstruction to breathing or swallowing, operation is indicated, regardless of age. There is little benefit to be derived in allowing a child of from one to two years of age to carry a pair of enlarged or diseased tonsils, and adenoids that are causing mouth breathing with its bad secondary effects or constantly undermining the general health because you are waiting until the child is 5 or 6 or 7 or any other arbitrary age that you may have heard mentioned.

I have spoken mostly of tonsils and adenoids in children, first, because disease and enlargement of tonsils and adenoids are more common in the young, and secondly, because the trend of modern medicine is preventive. We hope to prevent all the serious manifestations if possible, and to have more children attain manhood and womanhood without the handicap of some deformity or disease that could have been arrested or eliminated in their youth.

Stories That Recall Others

Mother's Fault.

Perry had been to a music-hall and witnessed the antics of several performing animals.

"When dogs and ponies and monkeys obey the slightest commands so well don't you thing a little girl ought to obey even more quickly?" asked her mother on the way home.

"Of course mummie," agreed the little girl; "and I would too, if I'd been as well trained as they have."

Proper Response.

Little John, not yet two years old, was sitting in his co-cart, having been taken by his mother to the grocery, when a friendly shopper presented him with a cookie. His vocabulary consists only of detached words but as "Thank you" is among them, his hopeful mother prompted him: "What do you say to the nice lady, John?" Clutching the cookie in his plump fist he gurgled "More!"

IDEAS FOR THE DYE-WISE

PRIZE LETTER FROM MESOPOTAMIA, OHIO.

"No Dye to Compare with Sunset"
Says Mrs. Chandler

"Having a peach colored linen dress to darken, I obtained Navy Blue Sunset Dye, but made the solution weak as I desired a lighter shade than Navy. It came just what I wanted. I still wear the dress and it has been laundered all winter.

"Delighted with my first Sunset experience, I dyed a flat silk crepe of soft blue and white with tiny checks of black. I used Old Blue Sunset making the dye bath stronger than called for in order to cover the black thread. It came out darker than Old Blue, a smooth, even color.

I dyed a light gray figured wool dress, simply darkened it about two shades with Gray Sunset, and it looks like new material.

"I dyed a heavy, white wool sweater using Dark Brown Dye, and the result was perfect. My latest venture was a tan silk dress, the bottom heavily embroidered. I used Black Dye, and the result is highly satisfactory, a perfect black with a beautiful lustre.

I have never found any dye that compares with Sunset. They give maximum results with minimum labor, are so clean and free from discoloration of the hands, utensils, pressing board, etc., they are a joy to use, directions are so simple yet comprehensive."—Mrs. J. S. Chandler, Mesopotamia, Ohio.

For fast dyeing use Sunset Soap Dyes, 15 cents a cake. For beautiful tinting use Dytint, wonderful new tint in a big box, 10 cents.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 22 — When President Hoover is conning over qualifications of job seekers, no doubt he would welcome as frank a declaration as was made by Martin Rice of Cass county, Missouri, who was an applicant for a home (now interior) department job back in '49.

Rice's letter has been preserved all these years as a departmental treasure.

It was addressed to Thomas Ewing, home secretary. He was advised that Rice was "willing to accept office under the administration, provided it pays well."

"But I have very little expectation of getting one," Rice added.

"I consider myself qualified to fill almost any office; but there are hundreds who are as well qualified as I am and perhaps better," he went on. "I consider myself an honest man; but there are thousands equally honest.

"I am a political friend of the president; but that is no good reason why I should receive an appointment. I am a stranger to fame and fortune; but that is no good reason why I should receive one.

"I should, of course like the best office; but beggars must not be choosers. I should like to have an office near home, but I do not wish an honest and capable officer turned out to make room for me.

"I am a farmer; but that argues nothing for or against me. I also am a surveyor; but the man may be a great many better ones. I am a self-taught man; but I have much yet to learn. I have a small family; but everybody else either has, or wishes to have.

"I have sought office, it is true; but I have seldom been successful. You may think I am jesting with you; but I assure you I am in earnest. I could perhaps get a good recommendation from my neighbors; but I do not wish to ask them to tell a lie for me.

"If you can do nothing for me in the way of office please write to me and say so; but make no apologies. I shall await anxiously an answer to this letter; but shall be agreeably surprised if I get one."

The records fail to show whether Secretary Ewing did thus agreeably surprise Mr. Rice. Probably not, for the name of the Missouri job applicant does not seem to be among those of home department employes of his day.

Yet the secretary must have been tempted by such refreshing frankness. And no doubt he got a chuckle out of the last part of Rice's letter, a sort of postscript.

It noted that his missive contained "as many personal pronouns as if it had been written by Colonel Benton himself," the reference being presumably to Senator Silas Benton, who had a national reputation for use of the first person, singular.

"But I assure you it was not," Rice said.

DOCTORS TELL DAIRYMEN DISEASES MILK CARRIES

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Thirty-two thousand dairymen, members of 12 Ohio cooperatives, have asked medical scientists to name and help them eradicate diseases which may be transmitted to humans through cows' milk.

While the measure may mean monetary losses to them, the dairymen believe it eventually will prove a good marketing policy. C. G. McBride of Ohio state university says there is an increasing demand for high quality milk.

NORWICH SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA GIVES FIRST PUBLIC CONCERT

Norwich Symphony orchestra, a musical organization consisting of 60 musicians, men and women residing in Norwich and vicinity, made its first public appearance in Norwich, by rendering a concert at Slater Memorial hall under the direction of Dr. Frank Drago, Wednesday evening. The concert was enjoyed by an appreciative audience which filled the hall and applauded with marked enthusiasm. The applause was well deserved as Dr. Drago gave keen musical and highly temperamental readings and the orchestra under his direction played with confidence.

The performance began with Haydn's Symphony in D and it was played with technical finish rhythmic energy and clearness of melodic outline. It was a reading of music in which the conductor demonstrated his ability as a musician thoroughly imbued with the spirit of his work. The ensemble entered into the spirit of the symphony and was rewarded with warm applause at the finish of the first number.

Frank Farrell, piano virtuoso of Norwich, was the soloist of the orchestra. On Mr. Farrell's appearance the audience accorded him a cordial reception. Mr. Farrell proved to his many friends that he possesses at his command, power, delicacy of touch, variety of nuance, brilliant technical skill and infallable memory. Mr. Farrell's musical groups ranged from the poetic Chopin to the more modern Debussy and the ponderous Rubinstein Etude in C. Mr. Farrell's art as a soloist and his utmost command of the most advanced piano technique was clearly established to the gratification of his many friends and admirers. His rendition was received with hearty applause and he played several encores in appreciation of the hearty reception accorded him by the Norwich public.

The orchestra followed Mr. Farrell by playing Brahm's Hungarian Dance No. 5. This very popular and fiery number was played with vim and virtuosity and elicited warm public response. Largo, by Handel was the next number played by the orchestra, and Miss Lillian Hirsch, 13-year-old violinist, of great promise, played the solo part. Miss Hirsch notwithstanding her youth is a matured violinist and she displayed a broad tone of beautiful quality and put intense feeling into her play, receiving warm applause from the audience.

Mexican Dance, by Kroeger, was the number that followed. The rendition of this number was masterfully and beautifully accomplished. In the succeeding number, March from Tannhauser, Dr. Drago proved himself possessed of the rich fancy and passionate intensity which Wagner's score requires. The tone of the orchestra was full and rich and they rose magnificently to the imposing climaxes demanded by the director.

The program was closed with a scintillating performance of Mozart's Overture to Marriage of Figaro. The orchestra played the number with lovely clarity and precision—the applause continued long after the closing number. At the call of Dr. Drago the orchestra rose and shared with him the honors deservedly earned by their very able performance.

A prominent Norwich citizen, whose daughter is a member of the symphony, said that Norwich is to be congratulated upon the formation of this musical organization which was formed purely as an educational incentive for the study of music and interest in Norwich. The proceeds realized from the concert will mainly be applied to defray the cost of the music and other expenses entailed in the maintenance of the organization. All the players contribute their services for the love of music and the credit which will accrue to Norwich by possessing such a fine local musical organization.

With the reception accorded to the Norwich Symphony orchestra by the Norwich music lovers Dr Drago expressed the hope of continuing the organization, of enlarging its scope, and of rendering additional public performances. Dr. Drago also expressed his appreciation and indebtedness to Walter Lang, the concert master of the orchestra, for his untiring efforts as an organizer and for his service of being greatly instrumental in providing the needs of the orchestra since its inception. The conductor also praised in highest terms the public spirit and generosity of the Norwich Arcanum club for their contribution of one of their large halls for the practicing rehearsals of the orchestra during the entire period of the preparation for the concert. Dr. Drago added that he was sure that this public spirited contribution greatly enhanced the spirit and the enthusiasm of the entire organization.

MANY TO ATTEND PASTURE FIELD DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, May 22—More than 200 farmers in Connecticut interested in better pastures will attend the "Pasture Field Day" at Connecticut Agricultural college, June 1.

These farmers will come from all sections of the state to learn more about better pastures and to see the most extensive pasture fertilization experiment in America which has been in progress at Connecticut Agricultural college for eight years. The experiment which promises much for the Connecticut farmer consists of nine four-acre plots, laid out and pastured for the first time in 1921 and 1922. Various treatments of lime, nitrogen, superphosphate, and potash were applied in 1924, and in a few cases in 1927. The response to treatments is measured by grazing steers. Some plots have carried four to six steers even the fifth year after treatment was applied while untreated plots carried only two.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The flexible provisions of the tariff bill were attacked by Representative Beck in the house.

Rail-barge rates on wheat for export were reduced by the interstate commerce commission.

The senate and house conferees again failed to agree on export debenture plan in the farm relief bill.

President Hoover called a conference of governors of all producing states to consider plans for patrolling conservation.

The senate rules committee began investigating publication of purported secret senate vote by the United Press and other news agencies.

JURY AWARDS PLAINTIFF $1,650 IN $8,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Shortly after 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon a jury in the superior court returned a verdict of 1,650, in favor of Nathan A. Bingham, local wholesale grocery salesman, in his $8,000 damage action against Fred A. Slate of New London. The jury had the case under consideration for four hours. Just prior to the noon recess at one o'clock, Judge Allyn L. Brown delivered his charge and placed the case in the hands of the jury.

Mr. Bingham brought suit for injuries received November 13, 1923, in an automobile accident on Bank street, New London. He was just about to turn into Lee street at the time of the accident. He received a broken chest wall, several ribs were broken and he was otherwise injured. For some time he was a patient at a New London hospital. Those who testified for the plaintiff were Mr. Bingham, Don Houghton, Dr. S. John Satti, Alfred C. Gorton, David G. Tourtellotte and Mary Mitchell. Witnesses for the defense were Frederick A. Slate, Susan Miller and William C. Bushnell.

Those who served on the jury were: Frank W. Brewster, Walter W. Lang, Thomas H. Beckley, James R. Mullin, Norwich; Edward T. Bunyon, Colchester; Willis C. Terry, Griswold; E. Raymond Manning, William G. Thomas, Lebanon; Louis H. Smith, Franklin; Floyd L. Fletcher, Charles L. Beebe, Salem.

STRONG N. F. A. TRACK TEAM SCORES IMPRESSIVE WIN IN LEAGUE MEET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 22.—Norwich Free Academy's well-drilled track team won the first annual meet of the new Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league this afternoon at Morgan park, outrunning, out-jumping and out-tossing seven high schools. N. F. A. won with 37 1-2 points, closely followed by Stonington high with 36 and Bulkley of New London was third with 9. The other schools followed in his order: Westerly, 25 1-2; Chapman Tech, 8; Putnam, 5; Windham, 1; Plainfield, 0. About 150 athletes competed in the meet, which opened at 1 o'clock and took just four hours to run off.

Four Records Smashed

Four league records went by the boards today and two were tied. Both Wetmore of Bulkeley and Lyons of Norwich smashed the record in the 440-yard run, which the former won. His time was 54 1-2 seconds, he finishing about a yard in front of the Rose City runner. In the 220-yard hurdles Wills of Westerly broke the record, with 29 2-5 seconds, Frank Barber of Norwich took the shot put with a record-breaking throw of 39 feet, 5 2-5 inches and the Academy's crack relay team won the half-mile event in 1 minutes, 40 seconds for the other record-smashing occurrence.

Collins of Stonington, with 10 3-5 seconds in the 100-yard dash, tied the former record and in the high jump Gavitt, also of Stonington, equalled the record with 5 feet, 6 inches.

N. F. A. Relay Team Brilliant

The 440-yard run and half mile relay were the feature events of the afternoon. Lyons gave Wetmore a great race in the former event and was only nosed out. The N. F. A. relay team, New England champions, had a big day, finishing ahead by about 15 yards ahead of the Stonington men in second place. The members of this team were Lyons, Harvey, Taylor and Robinson. The relay team really won the meet for Norwich, for Norwich was trailing as this last event came on and would have lost out but for the quartet's win.

This was the fist victory in the interscholastics for Norwich. In 1926, 1927 and 1928, Norwich finished fourth, third and second, respectively, when only four schools were competing. Track has surely jumped from the cellar to the heights at the Norwich institution and Matthew J. Sheridan, coach, deserves worlds of praise.

INDIANS PLAY BETTER BRAND OF BALL AND WIN

DETROIT, May 22—(AP)—Although Tiger bats met the ball today with their usual vicious frequency, the Cleveland Indians showed a better brand of baseball and won the last of a two-game series, 7 to 4. Ed Morgan, with two triples and a single in four times at bat, was the principal cause of the Tiger downfall.

Early Whitehill, who started on the mound for Detroit, contributed much to his own defeat. His wild throw in the first inning permitted the Indians to fill the bases and subsequently to score two runs. Walter Miller was in trouble only once during the game. The score:

N. F. A. TO PLAY WESTERLY HERE MON.—BULKELEY SAT.

The Academy's postponed game with Westerly high will be played off Monday, May 27, at the campus, it was announced Wednesday afternoon. This will give the undefeated Wildcat team four games next week as they already are scheduled with Windham Tuesday at Willimantic, Thursday (Memorial day) with Warren Harding of Bridgeport at the campus and Saturday, June 1, with Holy Cross freshman at the campus. The new athletic house will also be dedicated on the latter date.

Westerly is playing today and Saturday so therefore did not have an open date this week.

W. J. Fitzgerald Donates Flagpole

A new flagpole has been donated by William J. Fitzgerald of this city and on it will be placed a banner, with the inscription, "State Champions." It will be placed atop the scoreboard in centerfield and will be ready for Saturday's game with Bulkeley. The flagpole is of iron and will be painted white. There will be no special ceremonies but the banner will be floating in the breeze when the Wildcats' ancient rivals from New London appear Saturday.

Bleachers Moved Back

The bleachers were moved back onto the track Wednesday, to make more playing room. This new arrangement also makes room in the future for more bleachers.

Expect Record Crowd Saturday

With fair weather Saturday's game with Bulkeley should draw the record-smashing crowd of the season. Butsy Weisgraber, Academy hurling ace will have had a week's rest and should be in top form. The rest of the lineup will be practically the same as was slated to start against Westerly this week. Buck LaCroix is expected to be at second with Capt. Jack Marks back in rightfield, Red Fagan in center and Anso Tomhari in left. The rest of the team sees Bud Fontaine catching, Alec Arico at first, Chubby Gibbs at short and Hal Cummings, at third.

The Bulkeley starting pitcher is as yet undecided. It is not known whether Petrosky's hand will be healed in time for him to pitch. In stopping Red Fagan's drive in the ninth last Saturday he ripped a finger on his right hand and it required three stitches to close the wound. Should he be unable to ascend the mound either Dayton or Halifteras will get the assignment.

The fact is, however, that the Academy cares not who hurls the pill for the visitors. The Wildcats are ready to score a decisive victory over their old rivals for the first time in years and feel they can do it right in their own back yard before the big home crowd Saturday.

PHILLIES TAKE DOUBLE BILL FROM BOSTON BRAVES

BOSTON, May 22.—(AP)—The Phillies went into a tie with the Braves for fourth place today by taking both ends of a double header from the Boston team, 6 to 3, and 13 to 4. The terrific hitting of the visitors, especially in the second game, proved the undoing of the tribal hurlers.

O'Doul, Klein and Whitney found six Boston pitchers to their liking, Klein batting in four runs in the second game. The Quakers made three home runs, Fresco Thompson clouting one in the first game, and Hurst and Davis in the second contest.

Claude Willoughby, Phils pitching ace, set a new major league record by making nine assists in the second game, all on easy chances. The previous record for a pitcher was eight assists made by Nick Aitrock, October 12, 1906, with the Chicago Americans.

BROWNS ENTER SECOND POSITION; BEAT CHISOX

ST. LOUIS, May 22—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns today jumped into second place in the American league standings by taking the third consecutive game from the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 2, while the Yankees lost both games of a double header with the Senators.

The Browns now are one and a half games ahead of the Yanks and two games behind the league leading Athletics. The Browns won eight of their last eleven games, just prior to which they lost three to the Yankees and one to the Athletics.

Faber, who started on the mound for Chicago today, was knocked out in the third. Collins not only held the visitors to six hits, but himself hit two doubles which resulted in runs. Schulte and Crouse got homers, each with one man on. The score:

NEW YORK WINS AND LOSES, ESCAPES CELLAR POSITION

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 22—(AP)—The Giants escaped a fall into the National league cellar here today by rallying to defeat Brooklyn in the second game of a double header, 7 to 3, in ten innings, after the Robins had taken the first decision by 5 to 2. The clan McGraw broke through the defense of Lou Koupal to score three runs in the fourth round of the night cap, sending the game into a tie which endured until the tenth when Eddie Moore, recent arrival from Toledo, permitted a double play ball to roll between his feet for a fatal error with three on base.

Fred Fitzsimmons pitched steady ball after the first when the Robins bunched hits to score all their runs. Doug McWeeny who came to Koupal's relief, was charged with the defeat.

Clise Dudley pitched more carefully than Larry Benton and Carl Mays in the opener, and as a result the Robins shaded the Giants although outhit by 9 to 7.

Commissioner K. M. Landis was among the 22,000 fans in attendance. The score:

FAVORED STARS COME THROUGH IN MET. GOLF

GREENWICH, Conn., May 22—(AP)—The two favored stars in the metropolitan women's golf championship struck their real strides with the advent of good weather today and swept through to the quarter final round with a pair of brilliant victories.

Miss Maureen Orcutt of the White Beeches club, Haworth, N. J., the defending title holder, displayed the best golf the tournament has seen so far to win her second round match from Mrs. Norman K. Toerge of Nassau, six up and five to play. Miss Orcutt had a medal score of 39 for the first nine, rounding the turn seven up. Mrs. Toerge went out in 48.

Helen Hicks of Hempstead, the youthful medalist, also took a one-sided victory in the second round, eliminating Mrs. Jay Lee of Hackensack, 7 and 5. Shooting a 43 over the first nine, Miss Hicks was three up at the turn and clinched the match by winning the next four holes. For the last five holes she played the Long Island girl was threeu nder fours.

The closest match of the day went to Mrs. J. Laroque Anderson of Cherry Valley, who eliminated Mrs. Martha Parker of Westchester Hills after a 19 hole battle. Mrs. Anderson won the sixteenth and seventeenth holes to even the match, then Miss Parker sank a 15 foot putt on the 18th green to halve the hole. Mrs. Anderson got a par four to win the extra hole.

FILE PAPERS IN $500,000 "HEART BALM" SUIT AGAINST GENE TUNNEY

BRIDGEPORT, May 22.—(AP)— Papers in the $500,000 "heart balm" suit brought by Katherine King Fogarty, of New York against James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion were filed in the superior court here late today by Deputy Sheriff Michael F. Ryan, of Stamford.

The filing of the action also sets at rest the amount of property attached by Sheriff Ryan in Stamford in behalf of the blonde divorcee who states that the former champion promised to marry her and then broke his promise to marry Mary Josephine Lauder, Greenwich heiress.

Sheriff Ryan placed attachments on a total of 79 acres of land owned by Tunney and located in Stamford. The parcels are one 75-acre tract on Erskine road and one four acre tract on Long Ridge road.

Service was made in a manner prescribed by law by the sheriff leaving with Peter Johnson, caretaker on the 75-acre tract, a copy of the complaint.

The filing of the papers, watched with avid interest by newspapermen, does not necessarily mean early trial of the case. Courthouse attaches indicated there is much doubt if anything will be done to bring the matter to trial in the next thirty days.

The law prescribes that within that time Tunney by himself or through counsel must file an answer to the allegations set forth by the plaintiff. Failure to do so will no doubt bring a motion from the plaintiff's counsel asking for a judgment for want of answer.

The case while assigned to the June term of the court will of necessity take its place on the trial list along with hundreds of other cases and will await a call for assignment. There is great doubt that this latter stage will be reached before September or October.

The writ itself does not bear any of the allegations reputed to have been made by Mrs. Fogarty that she met Tunney while still the husband of John Fogarty, Fort Worth, Tex., plumbing contractor, or that she was divorced but several days before the alleged promise from Tunney to marry her.

ATHLETICS POUND OUT 16 TO 2 WIN OVER BOSTON

PHILADELPHIA, May 22 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics today hung up their sixth consecutive victory at the expense of the Boston Red Sox, mauling three pitchers for a 16-3 score.

They drove George Morris, ace of the hub staff from the mound in the fifth inning as the starting gesture toward collecting a total of twelve runs before the side was retired. Durham and Carroll also were hit freely in this frame, in which hits by Al Simmons, at bat two times, produced five of the tallies. His homer accounted for another.

Lefty Grove, the Athletics starting pitcher, held the Sox at bay and was withdrawn after his mates had assumed an overwhelming lead. Morwoll succeeded him. The score:

FAVORED STARS COME THROUGH IN MET. GOLF

GREENWICH, Conn., May 22—(AP)—The two favored stars in the metropolitan women's golf championship struck their real strides with the advent of good weather today and swept through to the quarter final round with a pair of brilliant victories.

Miss Maureen Orcutt of the White Beeches club, Haworth, N. J., the defending title holder, displayed the best golf the tournament has seen so far to win her second round match from Mrs. Norman K. Toerge of Nassau, six up and five to play. Miss Orcutt had a medal score of 39 for the first nine, rounding the turn seven up. Mrs. Toerge went out in 48.

Helen Hicks of Hempstead, the youthful medalist, also took a one-sided victory in the second round, eliminating Mrs. Jay Lee of Hackensack, 7 and 5. Shooting a 43 over the first nine, Miss Hicks was three up at the turn and clinched the match by winning the next four holes. For the last five holes she played the Long Island girl was threeu nder fours.

The closest match of the day went to Mrs. J. Laroque Anderson of Cherry Valley, who eliminated Mrs. Martha Parker of Westchester Hills after a 19 hole battle. Mrs. Anderson won the sixteenth and seventeenth holes to even the match, then Miss Parker sank a 15 foot putt on the 18th green to halve the hole. Mrs. Anderson got a par four to win the extra hole.

YANKS LOSE DOUBLE BILL DROP INTO THIRD PLACE

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP)—The Washington Senators leaped from a five game losing streak here today just in time to wallop the Yankees comiez and going in a double-header by scores of 10 to 2 and 8 to 2.

The visitors ran riot against Henry Johnson, Eddie Wells and Gordon Rhodes in the opener as Goslin and Judge hit home runs and returned to the wars to shade Hoyt in the nightcap.

The double defeat sent the world champions careening into third place, three and one-half games behind the Athletics and one and one-half games to the rear of the Browns. This is the greatest distance the Hugmen have been from first place at this season since 1925.

Sad Sam Jones outpitched his Yankee opponents until the fifth round of the opener when he strained his back and had to give way in mid-inning to Fred Marberry. Credit for the victory, however, remained with Jones who had worked for the four innings required of a starting pitcher in the American league.

Garland Braxton, former Yankee, outpitched Waite Hoyt in the afterpiece. Braxton had the game won 2 to 1, going into the eighth when a bobble by Cronin permitted the champions to get one run to tie the score. Cronin then led a ninth-round assault against Hoyt for one run to win it all over again.

Buddy Myer reached base ten times in the double-header, five times on hits. Ruth got only a triple in the two games, while Gehrig had to be content with a single. Scores:

WESTERLY

BOAT CLUB VOTES AGAINST COLONIAL CLUB MERGER

Westerly Boat club, Geoffrey L. Moore, commodore, held a special meeting Tuesday evening with a large attendance at which time the proposition for the merging of the Boat club with Westerly Colonial club was voted down. The annual meeting of the Colonial club, organized in 1911, Addison S. Archie, president, was postponed a week from the regular date, the first Wednesday in May, and at the postponed meeting, plans were discussed for the uniting of the clubs. Plans for an addition to the Westerly Boat club building at Thompson's cove on the Pawcatuck river were submitted by a Norwich architect. To the members of the Colonial club board of management the problem appeared to be a building proposition. It was understood that an effort was to have been made to secure 100 new members at $100 each as the beginning of the building project.

FRED T. BAKER ASKS $1185 FROM TEFFT ESTATE

In Washington county superior court Wednesday morning, Associate Justice Antonio A. Capotosto of Providence heard the action at law brought by Fred T. Baker, barber of South Kingstown against John R. Armstrong of Cranston, R. I., executor and residuary legatee under the estate of his aunt, Mrs Sarah R. Tefft of Wakefield, who died at the State hospital, Howard, in April 1927. Suit was brought to collect for services alleged to be rendered Sarah R. Tefft during her lifetime, Baker claiming to have done chores about the house, carrying in wood and coal and making shopping trips to Providence, etc. The amount sought is $1185 or $1 a day from Sept. 1, 1922 to Sept. 1, 1925. The claim was filed with the probate court of South Kingstown and was disallowed by the executor.

Plaintiff testified to residing in Wakefield for 23 years and had kept a diary but the same was burned when he had moved his barber shop across the street in Wakefield and that Mrs. Tefft, related to his wife, was known as Aunt Sarah to him. He said he had shovelled snow from the walks for her in winter.

Simon Wreninsky, a Wakefield tailor, told of seeing Baker about the Tefft home; the gatetender on the Wakefield crossing of the Narragansett Pier railroad, talked with Mrs. Tefft about Baker's employment with her; John Casey testified that he had sought to secure similar employment with Mrs. Tefft.

At mid-afternoon Judge Capotosto said that he would charge the jury, with Walter Rodman, of North Kingstown, foreman, the first thing this (Taursday) morning. Both attorneys finished their pleas before court adjourned.

At the opening of the afternoon session the respondent's attorney declared that it would be shown that services were gratuitously rendered the extent of which had been magnified 100 per cent and from members of the Armstrong family it would be learned that gifts of both money and various articles of antiques had been made the plaintiff.

With the opening of court this (Thursday) morning the Chesebrough-Mataress jury, Frederick D. Johnson of Pascadale, foreman will report on the sealed verdict submitted to Clerk Caswell by them, after the judge had returned to Providence.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 23. —(AP)— Once more the Federal Reserve broke the back of the stock market today. Publication of the reserve board's advisory council's recommendation for higher rediscount rates brought a flood of selling that swept stock prices over the falls into the most disastrous crash experienced in recent years.

Although bankers and money brokers pointed out that raising rediscount rates from 5 to 6 per cent. would probably have little effect upon call and time money rates which have been averaging for months between 8 and 9 per cent., the fact that higher rates seemed assured belied rumors that the Federal Reserve authorities might have a change of heart, and precluded any possibility for some time to come of money cheap enough to sustain a prolonged bull market.

Thousands of traders who had been holding on in the hope that the thunder clouds that have been ominously gathering since early February might suddenly blow over, were completely discouraged by publication of the council's recommendation, and let go their holdings for what they would bring even though an exceptionally large short interest has grown up in the past week, the selling was of such a decisive character that shorts generally did not rush in to cover, even in the closing transactions, so the drop was unchecked, even to the closing gong.

The only bright side to the picture was that the selling was kept within reasonable bonds, the total day's transactions reaching but 4,844,130 shares. The Associated Press index of 50 industrials was swept down 8.7 points to 207.2 compared to the year's high of 225.4. Despite the fact that the St. Louis and O'Fallon decision, regarded as the best news for the rails in years, was but 2 days old. The index of 20 rails was depressed 3 points to within 2 1-2 points of the year's low.

The most serious break previously this year was probably on March 26, when more than 8,000,000 shares changed hands, but powerful support came into the market before the close that day, and the index of 50 industrials recorded a net loss of little more than a point. The worst break of last year was Dec. 6, when the index of 50 industrials was carried down 7.7 points. In some respects, that break was more serious than today's. As the turnover was about 1,600,000 shares greater.

The shake out today was despite temporarily plentiful call money. The rate was reduced from 7 to 6 per cent., and some offerings went begging at the latter figure. Time money, regarded as a better indication of what is in the offing, however, held around the highest rates since the 1907 panic. One broker said he had placed loans for six months at 9 per cent. and 30-day money generally commanded 9 1-2 per cent. The fact that no increase in the rediscount rate at Boston was announced after the directors' meeting was somewhat surprising. In view of the known attitude of Governor Harding. But the New York directors meet tomorrow. It is thought possible that higher rates may be delayed for an increase at London. In order to avoid a large movement of gold to New York. Sterling Cables were well below the incoming gold point today, and the fact that no purchases were announced was attributed only to lack of fast steamship sailings.

There was almost nothing in the day's industrial and business news to depress the market. The steel trade reviews reported that mill operations were being held near capacity, as orders from other sources offset declines in automobile manufacturers demands. Container corp. passed its common dividends due at this time, but other dividend actions and earnings reports were favorable.

Allied Chemical tumbled 18 points. Case Threshing, Baldwin, and Sparks Withington 15. General Electric, Burroughs Adding Machine, St. Louis Southwestern, and Commercial Solvents 12, and such issues as Goodyear, C. & O., American Can, New York Central, Packard, Westinghouse, Woolworth, Wright and United Aircraft, 7 to 10 points. General Motors and Chrysler were both depressed nearly 4 points to new 1929 lows, and U. S. Steel sold down about 6 points and closed near the bottom. Radio in a turnover of 362,400 shares, again was powerfully supported around 90, closing at 91 1-8, off about 3 points. Detroit Edison and Interstate Department Stores here virtually the only strong spots, actually selling up a few points.

In the commodity markets, Wheat broke to new lows for the season on foreign selling, but rallied with an upturn at Winnipeg and reports of crop damage to close nearly a cent a bushel higher. Corn also rallied from an early drop and closed steady. Cotton was depressed by lower Liverpool cables and favorable weather, closing about $1 a bale lower.

Foreign exchanges were dull and inclined to ease, with Sterling Cables touching $4.84 15-15, leading Continental Currencies sagged.

Burgess Bedtime Story

How Peter Was Fooled

Few folk have eyes that really see;
Things are not what they seem to be.
—Old Mother Nature.

It is always provoking to want to know a thing and try in vain to find it out. Peter knew that the Grebes must have a nest, because, though he often saw Dipper, he never saw Mrs. Grebe with him. Sometimes he saw Mrs. Grebe, but she was always alone. He never knew which one it was that he saw until he asked, all of which was very amusing to the Grebes. But at last one day he found a way of distinguishing between them. He noticed that there was a feather missing from Mrs. Grebe's right wing. After that he could always tell one from the other.

Peter tried watching Mrs. Grebe to see where she went. She always went in the same direction and Peter couldn't follow her. Have you guessed what direction that was? It was down. Whenever she bade Peter goodby, she dived and that was the last Peter saw of her. He knew that she swam under water, but when she finally came up it was always where Peter couldn't see her. Peter had become so discouraged that he had about made up his mind that he wouldn't look any more for that home of the Grebes. Then one morning, quite by chance, he discovered Mrs. Grebe. Peter had come down into the swamp at the head of the Smiling Pool during the night. You know Peter likes to travel about at night. At daybreak Peter was sitting under some ferns close to the place where the Laughing Brook enters the Smiling Pool. He was looking about idly and suddenly he made a discovery. Sitting on one of the many little mounds of dead rushes and weeds he discovered one of the Grebes. He felt sure it was Mrs. Grebe and in this he was right.

"I wish I liked the water better," thought Peter

"My goodness," thought Peter, "can that be her nest?" No wonder I couldn't find it! I wonder if it really is. I'll scare her and see what she'll do. If that is her nest and there are any eggs in it, I ought to be able to see them from here. So suddenly Peter thumped as only Peter can. Instantly Mrs. Grebe was off that nest and disappeared under water. There had been a couple of quick movements of her head as she went off, but that was all. Peter then stretched up as high as he could, but he could see no eggs. Indeed, he could see nothing that looked like a nest. It was just a mass of dead reeds and grass matted together. There were several other similar masses scattered about. No, it didn't look at all like a nest. Peter was disappointed. Still, he felt that it must be the nest.

"I wish I liked the water better," thought Peter. "If I liked the water better I wouldn't mind swimming out there to find out. But I don't like the water, so I guess I'll just stay here. If that is Mrs. Grebe's nest she will come back to it sooner or later. Of course, she may have been just sitting on that place."

So Peter settled himself to wait in patience. He could hear Redwing the Blackbird. He always did like to listen to the song of Redwing. Presently Redwing came flying along and alighted on that little mound that Mrs. Grebe had been sitting on. He stood there for a few moments, after which he flew over to where Mrs. Redwing was sitting on her nest in the alders, not far from where Peter was sitting.

"That settles it," said Peter with a sigh. "If that had been Mrs. Grebe's nest with eggs in it, Redwing wouldn't have sat there so unconcerned. He didn't see anything unusual there and there is nothing the matter with Redwing's eyes. Oh, dear, I was sure I had found that nest! Well, I guess I'll go home to the dear Old Briar-patch."

That is where Peter made a mistake. He should have remained right where he was. He would have seen something.

CRAB WASTE STUDIED FOR USE AS HEN FOOD

Formerly used only as a fertilizer, the waste is being converted into poultry food which is being rationed to a farm flock in Maryland. Elements that are rare in land foods, such as iodine, make the scrap a valuable supplement to the diet, it has been found.

Annual crab waste amounts to 33,000,000 pounds, which provides 4,000 tons of dried scrap in finished form.

SHENANDOAH CRASH HERO SEES DIRIGIBLE AS SAFE

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Faith in the increasing safety of dirigibles is professed by a survivor and hero of one of the worst dirigible disasters in history.

Lieut. Charles E. Rauch, U. S. N., who successfully maneuvered to safety one section of the ill-fated Shenandoah when it broke up over Ohio, recently expressed his confidence in the safety of dirigible travel.

Lieutenant Rauch, the official navy representative on the return trip of the Graf Zeppelin to Germany last year said:

"We encountered worse squalls in the Graf Zeppelin than the one which broke up the Shenandoah.

"Just as automobiles have been made safer by improvements in manufacture, so have dirigibles. For instance, the control cabin on the Shenandoah was slung underneath, whereas it is now being built integral with the ship, as in the Los Angles and the Graf."

U. S. PLANES POPULAR IN OTHER COUNTRIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The increasing popularity of American airplanes in other lands is shown in department of commerce export figures for 1928. The total value of airplanes exported during the year was $3,644,733, just $49,706 short of the combined total of the previous three years.

Canada took 62 planes against 26 in 1927, Mexico received 20 as compared with one the previous year, and 24 were shipped to Peru, three times as many as in 1927. Airplanes were sent to 22 countries.

While approximately 4,600 planes were produced in this country during the year, reliable reports to the department of commerce gave production in France as 1,440; Italy, 475; Germany, 300, and Switzerland 25.

OLD CAR LOSES TO NEW WITH 4 TO 1 HANDICAP

LINAS - MONTLHERY, France, (AP)—Automobile progress, on a race course, was exemplified here recently by the oldest operating car and today's edition of the same make.

The new car gave the old one a handicap of four to one and beat it.

The 1895 model failed to make its one circuit of the track while the 1929 car circled the track five times. The old car is owned by the Abbe Davois, who has become a national character through his frequent trips to Paris in his old car.

It ran at less than 15 miles an hour while the new one made 75.

To add to the interest, the two passengers of the old car were arrayed in all the habiliments considered proper for driving 34 years ago, including goggles, while the new car was manned by a young fashion-plate of today.

FOREIGN AIR LINES INSURE PASSENGERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Travelers on several of the European air lines are insured when they take passage on airplanes. Commerce department representatives report two lines recently have been added to those adopting the policy.

The Czecho-Slovak Air Traffic company has joined the German and Austrian lines in insuring passengers on the Berlin-Dresden, Prague-Vienna route, and the Switzerland commercial air company also has adopted the plan.

The Czecho-Slovak plane passengers are insured for $5,920 against death or total and permanent disability, while the Swiss line insures its passengers for $5,000 in case of death and $10,000 for permanent and total disability. The cost of the insurance is borne by the companies.

Dealers in fruit, garden produce and flowers in Holland have solved the problem of transporting their perishable stocks by the use of airplanes. Two new freight planes will be put into operation soon between Amsterdam and London. Airplanes have made it possible for London residents to enjoy at dinner strawberries picked that morning in Holland.

Hearing Destroyed By Catarrh

Physicians warn that continued neglect of catarrh often results in impaired or, in some cases, total loss of hearing.

Catarrh of the nose and throat is a common and prevalent disease, hard to combat successfully because the germs penetrate to and infect the innermost parts of the respiratory system, making it impossible to treat these hidden, raw, tender, diseased spots with liquids or sprays.

The most effective way to kill all germs and promote restoration of healthy membranes, is through inhaling the vapor of heated "DEO," an amazing prescription of Eucalyptus and other valuable antiseptic, soothing, healing oils. "DEO" (Dennis' Eucalyptus Ointment) gives instant relief, and banishes all catarrhal symptoms so quickly it seems magical! TRY it. It is guaranteed to end catarrh—or your money back. Ask for "DEO" at all good dealers.

Face and Neck Covered With Itchy Pimples. Healed by Cuticura.

"My face and neck became covered with little pimples that were hard and red. They itched and burned so that I scratched them, which only made them worse. I could not sleep or get any rest on account of them. They continued for about six weeks and I thought I would go insane.

"Finally I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a free sample and found that the first application somewhat relieved my trouble. I purchased more and in about two weeks I was healed." (Signed) George Estok, 34 N. Fourth St., Ansonia, Conn.

POETRY

The Drawing Gift

I have had courage to accuse
And a tongue will that could upraid;
And a nice cunning that could bruise;
And a phrase wise to unfrock
Or shal, weak mortals fear to lose.

I have had virtue to expose
The sophistry of pious fools;
I have had hypnism to chastise;
And intellect to make me rules
To estimate and exercise.

I have had knowledge to be true;
My faith could obstacles remove.
But now, by failure taught anew,
I would have courage now to love.
And lay aside the strength I knew.
—Bladys Cromwell.

Look Not to Me for Wisdom

Look not to me for wisdom,
There's naught you shall be told;
I make the moon my loving cup
And toast the spilling gold.

Look not to me for wisdom—
The cup is warm above,
And I shall drink of kisses
So look to me for love.

When love speaks well of wisdom,
Watch out, and guard your heart,
Oh, do not give it wholly,
Or happiness depart.

For love with me is courage
A vagabond, a road,
Two roving underneath the moon,
And on their hearts no load.

For love with me is madness—
Go, oh, who would be wise!—
For, oh, she talks of wisdom
With challenge in her eyes.
—Charles Divine

Specifications for steel plates which the navy required of manufacturers for the construction of the first ships of the "steel navy" led to the establishment of the steel industry in this country on a sound basis. Prior to that time European countries were the largest producers of steel. This was in 1883. Four years later, through naval research, large steel castings were successfully made for naval ships, and these castings were afterward adopted in railroad construction.

ESTATE OF JOSEPH SPINNATO SUES LEATHER GOODS CO.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 22—Agostino Alfieri, administrator of the estate of Joseph Spinnato, of 127 Jefferson avenue, has brought suit for $10,000 damages against the Schwartz Leather Goods company and Arthur Messer, a part owner of the leather goods company. Property owned by the defendants was attached today and the action is returnable before the next term of the superior court. The suit is the result of a fire at the home of the Spinnato child four months ago, the boy being fatally burned as were two others who were caught in the building when a fire occurred there. The fire, it is alleged, was due to the carelessness of the defendants. Mrs. Rose Spinnato, mother of the boy, who was but five years of age when he died, was employed by the leather goods company, together with other members of her household, in making repairs to leather novelties at her home. The repairs were made by celluloid, provided by the leather goods company and while making these repairs a quantity of celluloid became ablaze by a match being carelessly dropped among the inflammable substance. A fierce fire resulted and caused the clothing of all the occupants in the room to be ignited. Two, including the child were burned to death in the house and another died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

He now seeks to obtain a correct statement of receipts from the property and to a record of his owning an equal one-half interest in the house.

Gimbel Brothers, New York, have brought suit claiming $100 damages against Susan E. Potter. Property owned by the defendant was attached today. The action, which is returnable before the next term of the court of common pleas, is the result of a purchase being made of the plaintiffs in the sum of $75 and which amount, it is claimed, payment has not been made.

Broadway Theatre

Rehearsals occupy a new importance in motion pictures since the advent of the talking motion picture. In the silent films, the director talks over the script scene with the players, makes a few brief suggestions, calls "camera" and the scene is taken. Full and painstaking rehearsals precede the "shooting" of talking films, however.

"Now we'll walk through it," says the silent film director and the actors take up their positions and, with suggestions from the director, a brief rehearsal is held.

In contrast, Director Robert Milton had all of his cast assembled for two days of rehearsals before productions started on Paramount's all-talking picture, "The Dummy," which will show at the Broadway theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. On the sound stage, where the picture was made, Ruth Chatterton, Fredric March, John Cromwell and other members of the cast went through their action and spoke their lines over and over again until everything was perfected.

On the morning that production started, many were on the stage early for an hour of rehearsal before the cameras and sound recording apparatus were interlocked and filming started. And, even after production started, rehearsals continued. Every moment needed to readjust sets and rearrange lights was utilized by Milton to polish off the action. There is not a moment of idleness on the set. Every instant of necessary waiting time is utilized for rehearsals of the next scene.

Beauty Expert Here

This matter of age has little to do with the number of birthdays, so says Miss Hattie M. Ford, personal representative of Dorothy Gray fifth ave salon, New York, who will be at The Porteous and Mitchell Co.'s toilet goods department the remainder of this week.

This is the age of youth, it is not enough to feel young, one must appear young as well. By this, Miss Ford says, she does not mean that a woman should dress like a school girl, nor act like sixteen, but she insists that no woman can afford to look as if her skin was neglected.

Strain on the nervous system is very great in this day and age and it is reflected in the face, therefore, it becomes all the more necessary that the skin receive intelligent, scientific care. Skins differ, there are dry skins, normal skins and oily skins, then there is the person whose nose and skin are oily but cheeks and neck dry. In cases such as this the same treatment would not be used for all parts of the skin.

Miss Ford urges all women to consult her without hesitancy. There is absolutely no charge for her valuable advice and she will be delighted to tell you how to cultivate your own good points.

CAMEL CIGARETTES

WHY CAMELS ARE THE BETTER CIGARETTE

Camels contain such tobaccos and such blending as have never been offered in any other cigarette.

They are made of the choicest Turkish and American tobaccos grown.

Camels are always smooth and mild.

Camel quality is jealously maintained . . . by the world's largest organization of expert tobacco men . . . it never varies.

Smoke Camels as liberally as you choose . . . they will never tire your taste.

Nor do they ever leave an unpleasant after-taste.

MUST ENCOURAGE WORKERS TO BECOME CAPITALISTS

B. C. Forbes, Internationally Known Financial Expert, Addressed Connecticut C. of C. on Subject "Industrial Evolution; Whither?"—Asserted That Unless the Industrial Giants Share Their Profits With Others the American Public Will Turn Against Them—Declared That the Workers Will Demand Satisfying Conditions and Will Go About Getting Them if the "Bosses" Do Not Provide Them—Warned Against the Trend Toward Mergers.

HARTFORD, May 23—(AP)—Warnings that the trend toward "bigness" or mergers in American industry, the tendency to "stampede" in the direction of "greener fields" and the credit situation are likely to have a serious effect on prosperity, unless immediate remedial steps are taken, were sounded at the 30th annual meeting of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce here today.

B. C. Forbes, internationally known financial expert, whose topic was "Industrial Evolution—Whither?": Congressman Louis T. McFadden, house chairman of the committee on banking and currency and author of the McFadden act under which national banks operate, with the topic "The Credit Situation," and W. J. Barrett, director of the Manufacturers' Service bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, were the speakers.

Forbes declared that unless the industrial giants of the day follow the lead of such capitalists as Carnegie, the elder Rockefeller and Schwab, who made their wealth but was they shared their profits with others, the American public will turn against him. He foresaw the approach of a critical situation through the tendency toward bigness, because it is wiping out the "old fashioned middle class, the soul and backbone of a nation" and leaving but two classes, "bosses and workers". The workers will demand satisfying conditions and will go about getting them if the "bosses" do not provide them, he declared.

Referring to the recent power and press mergers, Mr. Forbes said: "That is just the kind of thing the public will not stand for."

He said the antidote is to the prospective situation to encourage workers to become capitalists, or "to appeal to them on a dollar and cents basis." The high price of stocks, he asserted, will some day cause the market to break and it will never recover.

Congressman McFadden said wide fluctuations in capitalizations will eventually bring about a decline in prosperity, and is already causing a falling off in credit, as shown by loan demands on banks. He said there is a need of a readjustment of the financial machinery of the country, not only because modern conditions demand such a readjustment, but because modern conditions demand such a readjustment, but because the country must maintain its position of world-wide financial leader.

"We have made loans of 25 billion dollars to other nations and we receive annually an income from these of one billion dollars," he said. "Yet our own credit, at home, is declining. In a short time we must either expand or continue in our present smug condition."

"Bootleg" financing, Congressman McFadden said, is partly to blame for the situation. He described this as chain and investment trust banking and the increase of brokers loans through the sale of common stock.

Barrett's advice was that those industrial plants needing a change in locale select such locales on a basis of national distribution and production. He warned businessmen against the efforts of small communities to catch "butterflies in nets" and against selection of locations on "personal whim." He traced the rise and fall of industries through selection of producing and distributing locations.

Other speakers of the day were O. H. Caldwell, former member of the federal radio commission, who described the rise of the radio industry to its present great development; and Paul H. Wilson, of the Graton and Knight company, of Worcester, who told how successfully the 13 month calendar is working out in his plant.

The organization went on record as favoring a bridge across the Connecticut river, as sponsoring the Connecticut Motor Truck's association efforts to get better transportation laws in Maine and as approving an international change in the calendar.

6 YEAR OLD BOY SENTENCED FOR KILLING PLAYMATE

PAINTSVILLE, Ky., May 23—(AP)—A small boy who prattled unconcernedly with playmates while a jury tried him on a manslaughter charge, tonight faced a sentence of almost fifteen years in reform school for slaying an eight year old child following an altercation over a piece of scrap iron the two sought to sell to a junk dealer.

The boy, Carl Newton Mahan, six and a half years old was sentenced by a jury in county court today to serve until he is twenty-one years old in the reformatory at Greendale, Ky., for the killing of his playmate, Cecil Van Hoose, son of Albert Van Hoose, a railroad fireman.

Although juvenile cases usually are tried without jury, counsel for the defense had demanded a venire and the case was tried by a jury which deliberated 30 minutes before bringing in a verdict of guilty, Judge John W. Butcher pronounced sentence.

John Wheeler of defense counsel announced he would file motion for a new trial. He indicated the motion would be tried tomorrow.

While the Mahan youngster played with other children in the court room, apparently not realizing what was going on, Paul C. Hager, a witness, testified that the boy had told him he shot his playmate because the Van Hoose youngster had struck him and that he meant to kill Van Hoose.

Mrs. Manuel Fitzpatrick, a neighbor testified she heard a quarrel from her kitchen but that the sounds ceased and she decided matters had been patched up.

Following the quarrel, testimony was that the boy ran into the house, took his father's shotgun from the wall, went out on the porch and shot Cecil in the chest. Cecil died in a hospital.

Mrs. John Mahan, mother of the defendant and wife of a taxicab driver, testified her son told her he did not know the gun was loaded. Mrs. Fitzpatrick, however, said she heard the boy threaten to get a gun and kill his playmate, but did not go out as she thought the threats were idle.

FIRE ON ROOF OF BUILDING HOUSING HUGE GAS TANK

TAUNTON, Mass., May 23—(AP)—Fire which started on the roof of a building owned by the Taunton Gas Light company, housing a huge tank containing a reserve supply of 25,000 cubic feet of illuminating gas, threatened the business section of this city today. Two alarms were sounded before the flames were checked.

The cupola of the building, a large circular brick structure, crashed through the roof during the fire, puncturing the gas tank. In the opinion of fire department officials the tank would have exploded if it had not been punctured and the gas inside thus released. Sparks from the fire were carried by the winds across the Mill river and set fire to several houses, but none was seriously damaged.

JURY SELECTED FOR FELLOVIC MURDER TRIAL

BRIDGEPORT, May 23—(AP)—At 10 o'clock tomorrow morning the state will present its first witness in the trial for murder in the first degree of John (Spirits) Fellovic, 19 of Bridgeport. The youth is charged with the killing of Lester Jacobs, chain store manager in an unsuccessful holdup on the night of March 23.

A jury to decide the fate of the youth was secured at 5 o'clock this afternoon after examination of 65 talesmen. The defense used 18 of its 25 challenges in the selection of the 12 men and the state but eight of its equal number.

Due to the fact that a great number of the 65 men examined were opposed to capital punishment, some to greater degree than the others, Judge Isaac Wolfe, presiding over the trial excused 27 of the talesmen.

During the election of the jury, which took all of the court day, Fellovic sat with folded arms and watched with interest the picking of the men who will decide his fate.

Brown is one of their finest and greatest sons."

NO SIGN OF AGREEMENT ON DEBENTURE PROPOSAL

WASHINGTON, May 23(AP) —With no immediate agreement over export debentures in sight, further efforts to unravel the farm relief tangle in which congress finds itself will be made tomorrow by the conference committee appointed by the house and senate to work out an agreement.

How long the conferees will continue to negotiate is still problematical as those from each side of the capitol maintained today that they had as yet no intention of meeting the views of the other.

The senate conferees are insisting that the house have some sort of roll call on the debenture plan. The house members have declined to ask leaders of their branch to order one.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, May 23—(AP)— Parliament reopened today with a riot of noise by communists who took the floor to protest against the government's vigorous preventive measures on May day by which 3,500 suspects were arrested to forestall the predicted riots.

It was a short lived vocal storm for Minister of the Interior Tardieu promptly made it a matter of a question of confidence and the government won its first test of the session by a vote of 326 against 261. Interpolation on the arrests were postponed.

Two red lamps, newly installed on the desk of the president of the chamber of deputies, were used for the first time to flash warning to orators that they were speaking beyond their allotted time. This innovation and the presence of Leon Blum, socialist leader who was defeated at the last regular elections and narrowly won a seat at a recent bye-election, were the two things that seemed to interest the deputies most.

There are, however, many serious problems before them, such as a budget totalling nearly $32,000,000, rent laws, city planning, social laws and other subjects ranging from the high cost of living to the best methods for exploiting colonies.

FEAR BREAK IN LEVEE AT MOUNDS LANDING, MISS.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 23—(AP)—Fear of a break in the main Mississippi river levee at Mounds Landing, Miss., tonight marred an otherwise encouraging picture of the high water situation in the lower valley. At other points along the six hundred mile stretch of embankment, workers were engaged in what they believed their last fight against spring rises.

Governor Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, declared there was "imminent danger" of a break at the scene of the disastrous crevasse two years ago that resulted in inundation of Greenville, Miss. He reported his observation to Major General Richard P. Davis, commanding general of the fourth corps area, Ft. McPherson, Ga., and appealed for immediate shipment of 400 tents and 3,200 blankets.

Should the break occur, Bilbo's telegram said, "there will be a repetition of the 1927 overflow."

Rally In The Stock Market Yesterday

Easier Call Money Rates Were an Important Factor in the Advance of Prices—Market Was Professional.

NEW YORK, May 23—(AP)—Directors of the New York Federal Reserve bank today announced no change in the 5 per cent rediscount rate and the stock market, which apparently had been anticipitating such action, rallied briskly.

Stock prices, however, failed to make up all the losses sustained in yesterday's sweeping reaction which resulted from the annunocement that the Federal Reserve council had recommended that permission be granted to increase rates from 5 to 6 per cent.

While rumors were current during the day that the federal reserve board was divided three to three on the question of higher rates, and that Secretary Mellon would cast the deciding vote in favor of an increase, professional operators bought stocks heavily on the unofficial assurance that no change would be made today. Many brokers openly advocated a higher rate on the theory that it would be better for the market to have it over with than to labor under the uncertainty of not knowing when it was to take place, if at all.

Meanwhile, the weekly federal reserve statement of brokers' loans, published after the close of the market, showed a decrease of $45,000,000 during the week ended May 22, bringing the total to $5,520,000,000, which compares with the year's high of $5,793,000,000 on March 20, and with $4,456,000,000 a year ago. The decline was smaller than many traders had expected.

The rally in stock prices today ranged from $2 to nearly $10 a share, but a sprinkling of issues were still ranged behind minus signs at the close. On the Associated Press indices, the 50 leading industrials recovered 5 points of yesterday's 8.7 point loss, the 20 leading rails recovered a third of yesterday's 3 point decline and the 20 leading public utilities recovered 5.2 points of yesterday's 5.9 point drop.

Total sales were 3,814,320 shares, or about a million below yesterday's total.

Easier call money rates were an important factor in today's advance. Call loans renewed at 6 per cent for the first time since March 19 and held steady at that figure all day, but the supply of funds was so plentiful that the rate in the "outside market" dropped to 5 1-2. The official rate has not been permitted to go below 6 per cent since last August.

A few new week spots developed in today's market. Adams express, making its first appearance this week, dropped $59 a share on one lot of 100 shares to $541, which contrasts with the year's high of $750. Studebaker was driven downward $2.50 to a new low for the year at 27¼ but made up its loss. Case Threshing dropped $16 a share to $324, as against the year's high of $509. Industrial Rayon, Greene Cananea Copper and a score other issues sank to new low levels for the year.

"SHOT DOWN" BY THREE RED PURSUIT PLANES

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 23—(AP)—Flying without colors on their way from Norton field to Wright field, Dayton, Major General James E. Fechet, commander in chief of the United States army air forces and his pilot Lieut. Elwood R. Quesada, were "shot down" by three red pursuit planes prowling around the sky today looking for the foe in their mimic warfare with the blue army.

They did not recognize the ship of their commander until they had twice zoomed over it with an attack that would have sent the air chief and his pilot plunging to earth had it been real. Then when the reds discovered whom they were attacking they saluted like a couple of embarrassed rookies and sped away.

General Fechet came to Ohio today from Washington with Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aviation. They landed at Wright field.

Senate Is Defied By Senator LaFollette

Challenges That Body to Expel Him if He Tells His Constituency How He Votes in Executive Sessions.

WASHINGTON, May 23—(AP)—The senate was challenged today by Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, to employ its rule of exoulsion on him if he tells his constituency how he votes on nominations in executive sessions.

The Wisconsin senator issued his defy as he denounced the senate rules committee for investigating newspapermen instead of members of the senate for the publication recently by several newspapermen of a roll call purporting to show the vote on confirmation of Irvine Lenroot as a federal judge.

The speech was the signal for another round of discussion of the senate's indignation over the constant publication of proceedings in its executive sessions. The crowded press gallery joined in the laughter as Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, warned the rules committee that it would likely have to investigate itself for "leaks" from its committee if it holds the proposed investigation of newspapermen in executive session.

Earlier in the day, Senator LaFollette offered an amendment to the rules to provide that representatives from the press associations be accorded the privilege of the floor. This courtesy was withdrawn from the press associations yesterday on demand of the Wisconsin senator after the rules committee had voted unanimously to deny the privilege of the floor to the United Press association. No action was taken on the LaFollette amendment.

The United Press association was one of the news agencies carrying the purported Lenroot roll call. Paul Mallon, who signed the story carried by that organization, has been called by the rules committee on Monday.

The roll call has been described as "inaccurate". Because of the charges of inaccuracy, Senator Norris, republication, Nebraska, today asked unanimous consent that the roll call be made public but Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware, objected.

After Senatro LaFollette denounced the rules committe today for calling newspapermen for investigation and demanded that it first summon the members of the senate in its inquiry to determine who gave information about the Lenroot roll call, Senator Harris, democrat, Mississippi, a member of the rules committee, offered a resolution directing the rules committee to call before it each senator "for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not he divulged any secrets of the senate in connection with the confirmation of Irvine Lenroot."

Senator Sackett, republican, eKntucky, objected to immediate consideration of the resolution.

Senator Reed, republican, Pa., joined in the debate. He recalled his statement of the other day in which he referred to the "so-called ethics of this so-called profession" in speaking of newspapermen.

"I committed some offense, I suppose," he said, "by the remark I made the other day regarding the so-called ethics of the newspaper profession. I do not think that anybody there is anything very admirable in joining with the senator in violating the rules of the senate, and flaunting them, but ethically the action of the newspaper man is not comparable in its meanness with taht of the senator himself who violates the rules of this body, and then hides behind the newspaper man, and does not dare to disclose his identity. That, in my judement, represents infinitely greated culpability, and I feel sure that all members of the committee on rules share that opinion, that the real culprit in this matter is not the newspaper man, but is the senator who is the source of the information."

GRAF ZEPPELIN IS NOW IN FLIGHT TO HER HOME PORT AT FRIEDRICHSHAFEN

CUERS, France, May 23—(AP)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin tonight was homeward bound up the Rhone valley from this haven which she precariously reached about a week ago after four of her five motors had failed while attempting a flight to America.

It was 8:25 p. m. (2.25 eastern standard time, when) the last rope was cast loose by the ground crew of French soldiers and the great airship rose to point its nose for Friedrichshafen, 600 miles away. At 1.08 a. m. (7.08 p. m. eastern standard time) the airship passed over Geneva, Switzerland.

Conditions were completely changed since the dirigible put in at the French naval flying field here last Friday. New motors had been installed and the others repaired so that they gave forth a steady drone as they carried the ship northward into the same valley where it had been buffeted about, powerless to advance against the mistral last week.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the airship who had come from Friedrichshafen by automobile, arrived at the field at 5:20 p. m. and immediately went on board. Thousands of persons were lining the hillsides to watch the departure.

The seven French experts who are making the flight as guests of Dr. Eckener more than made up in weight the reduction to fourteen of the original passenger list. Mrs. Mary Pierce of New York, the only woman among the 48 persons who had begun the flight from Friedrichshafen was still a loyal passenger as were also Lieutenant Commander V. A. Clark of Lakehurst, N. J., and Sir George Hubert Wilkins, explorer and aviator.

The Zeppelin now has on board the 40 original members of her crew, 14 of the 18 original passenger list, and the seven special French guests.

The dirigible proceeded southeast to the Mediterranean where the crew dropped a memorial wreath to the 52 men who lost their lives in the wreck of the Dixmude. A wide detour was made to avoid flying over the naval dockyard at Toulon, 15 miles from here, and then the ship headed for Marseilles.

Weather conditions for the time being were fair but the latest official reports indicated a change was imminent, showing the wisdom of Dr. Eckener in starting without further delay.

Lands at Home Base.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 24—(Friday)—(AP)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin landed here today at 5:06 a. m. (11:06 p. m. Thursday E. S. T.)

BREAK UP OF REPARATIONS CONFERENCE IS IMMINENT

German Delegation, After Two Discussions With the American and Allied Experts, Failed to Aid Progress of the Negotiations—Fate of the Conference Hangs in the Balance—Dr. Albert Voegler Has Withdrawn From the German Delegation and Has Returned to Berlin.

PARIS, May 23—(AP)—Clouds of pessimism hung tonight over the headquarters of the German delegation to the reparations conference, after two discussions this afternoon with American and allied experts had failed to aid progress of the negotiations.

The fate of the conference was regarded as still hanging in the balance, but a sudden breakup is now thought quite as probable as an agreement. "It is even money," was the way the situation was summed up this evening at conference headquarters.

The final decision was expected before the end of the week, although no plenary session was forecast for tomorrow. Most of the experts have become thoroughly tired of the negotiations and at times show nervousness.

At the German headquarters, which are a center of interest since the resignation of Dr. Albert Voegler, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht and his staff are busily working on the German version of the revised report with the creditors' memorandum.

The chief German expert, with his new colleague, Dr. Kastl, made two visits to conference headquarters today. The Germans talked first with the American and then with the allied experts. Both discussions failed to throw any light on the situation.

HOW GERMANS VIEW THE REPARATIONS SITUATION

BERLIN, May 23—(AP)—The dramatic withdrawal of Dr. Albert Voegler from the German delegation to the Paris reparations conference was regarded here tonight as the culminating point of the deadlock over the negotiations, although it was not considered involving a breakdown of the conference.

Different interpretations of Dr. Voegler's motives in the German press have already fanned political passions to a considerable heat.

Dr. Voegler today confirmed his verbal decision to withdraw to the German government in writing. The text of his letter was not available tonight. But he will doubtless declare that he was unable conscientiously to agree to the allied counter-proposals to extend payments of reparations beyond 37 years nor to the safeguard clauses as amended.

Official spokesmen declared that his decision had been reached independently and that the impression it was due to pressure from heavy industrial interests was highly prejudicial to German standing abroad.

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, organ of the industrialists, supports this position. It characterized as "pure swindle" assertions elsewhere that Dr. Voegler's withdrawal was due to "revolt of the Ruhr magnates."

It categorically stated that "never during the whole course of the Paris negotiations has any industrial group made any attempt whatsoever to influence the German delegation in any direction."

The newspaper further argued that it was a psychological impossibility to load coming generations for six decades with the crushing debts of the lost war. This and the non-success of the proposed German reservations on the safeguard clauses, Dr. Voegler Dr. Schacht himself was in a position maintained.

The Allgemeine Zeitung concluded that he was therefore obliged to resign his office, and considered that D. Schacht himself was in a position hardly different from that of Dr. Voegler.

The Acht Uhr Abendblatt condemned Dr. Voegler's action as both precipitate and superfluous. It said the withdrawal was precipitate because he should have awaited the text of the creditors' reply to the report and the German reservations, and superfluous because the German delegation as a whole will find it impossible to accept the allied terms.

RUMORS CURRENT OF RESIGNATION OF SCHACT

The principals of the German delegation could not be reached immediately and other sources professed entire ignorance of the matter.

ESCORT OF SOLDIER SFOR AMBASSADOR MORROW

LAREDO, Tex., May 23—(AP)—Accompanied by an escort of twenty soldiers from the staff of President Portes Gil of Mexico, Dwight W. Morrow, U. S. ambassador to Mexico reached here late today from the Mexican capital.

Although the ambassador said he was making a "vacation trip" home, he gave the impression that he had returned to the United States for the marriage of his daughter Anne to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh. The soldiers on the special car, he said, were sent by the Mexican government "merely as a courtesy".

Although Mr. Morrow told newspapermen he was "not to be quoted on any matters of state," he said the marriage of his daughter and the flier of New York to Paris fame "will take place while I am on this trip north."

He said he would go directly to his home at Englewood, N. J., without visiting Washington. He declined to discuss the Mexican revolution. The rebels frequently have attacked Mr. Morrow and his policies. The opinion was expressed here that the soldiers might have been on the car to protect the ambassador against a possible attack since conditions still are unsettled in portions in Mexico.

HOUSE MAY VOTE ON TARIFF BILL TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, May 23—(AP)—The house republican conference today approved a rule for consideration of the tariff bill which would bring it to a vote in the house at 3 o'clock next Tuesday.

The conference voted down separate proposals to throw open to amendment the cement, sugar, brick, shingles, hardwood and flaxseed sections of the bill.

The conference approved the rule by a vote of 206 to 24.

The rule is similar in many respects to that under which the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill was considered in the house.

COAST GUARD TO LOOK OUT FOR PLANE GREEN FLASH

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 23—(AP)—When the Green Flash hops off for Rome within the next few days, if weather conditions permit, her crew will enjoy a feeling of security that was strengthened today by word that the coast guard will lace them through the first hour of flight.

In long distance flights the first hour has often in the past decided the success or failure of the venture. Captain Lewis A. Yancey, navigator of the Green Flash, referred to it today as the "danger hour"

"Any time I ever cracked up," Yancey said, "it happened within the first hour."

Lieut. L. M. Melka, of coast guard base seven, of East Gloucester, Mass., dropped down on the beach in a big amphibian today to notify Roger Q. Williams, pilot of the Bellanca, and Yancey, that he would accompany them during the first hour and farther if it seemed advisable.

In addition, a 75 foot coast guard patrol boat will follow the course taken by the Green Flash until it is determined the monoplane is well on her way to Rome.

SAWDUST RING ROMANCE THAT ENDED IN TRAGEDY

ALBANY, N. Y., May 23—(AP)—A romance of the sawdust ring ended in tragedy today at the Albany hospital to which Harry Youden, 27, a circus performer on the verge of delirium, from pneumonia, dragged his fever-ridden body to say goodbye to his wife, also a circus performer. He was too late. Mrs. Youden had died a few minutes earlier of the same disease.

Youden was put to bed by hospital authorities and tonight, when the circus shows in Worcester, Mass., the jesting, tumbling clowns will fill the place on the bill once occupied by Youden and his wife.

Mrs. Youden was sent to the hospital on May 17 by the circus physician. The unwritten law of the circus world is "the show must go on," and her husband bowed and smiled beneath the lights of the "big top," while his thoughts were far away. Tuesday night, he found time to visit his wife but returned to the circus again.

Last night he came again and after a brief visit went to a hotel to snatch some much needed sleep. When his wife died he was fighting the disease as he staggered step by step to the hospital.

"SMART MEN'S WEAR AT REMINGTON'S—A RED ARROW STORE."

Hello Men:

Surely you are thinking about that new suit. What with Decoration Day and warm weather drawing near the new rig demands some thought. It doesn't make any difference whether you select your own clothes or the "Missus" has a hand in it, you are bound to find just what you want in the full line of Men's Clothing and Furnishings awaiting you at The H. E. Remington Co., 766 Main street, Willimantic.

Hickey-Freeman and Hart, Schaffner and Marx Suits and Topcoats carried at this store come in ideal color schemes of Brown and Brown-Mixtures. There are very good looking models in these colors—and of course in others too, if you prefer them. The Four-Piece Sport Suits are also very fine.

The whole atmosphere of this spacious store bespeaks of discriminating style and the well dressed man at once senses this upon glancing at the complete line of Knox Straw Hats, famous for fit, looks and wear. And again, when he looks over the stock of Bates-Street Shirts which come with collar attached or with separate collar to match in white or colors. Cheney Neckwear, made in Connecticut and none better, lends no small part to this atmosphere. Remington's are also showing the Cooper Underwear in different models, including the now popular "shorts" in colors.

Men, you'll agree with me that Remington's is The Place, and by the way, before you pack for that summer trip drop in and choose from Remington's Traveling Luggage and be sure of proper equipment.

Now, in addition to an excellent assortment and standard quality in all lines, Remington's also give you Red-Arrow Money which you can use to great advantage at the monthly auctions conducted by Red Arrow Stores in Willimantic.

GEORGE LECLAIR IN CRITICAL CONDITION AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 23—George Leclair, 23, of Friendship street, lay near the point of death at St. Joseph's hospital late this afternoon suffering from injuries received when he ran out from the sidewalk into the path of a truck driven by Henderson S. Moulton, superintendent of the water department, on Main street, at 12:05 o'clock today. Leclair, who is an employe of the city street department had finished his forenoon's work on Manners avenue and was walking west on the south sidewalk of Main street at a point opposite the Burnham block near Clark street. Edward Jones, operating a street department truck came along and shouted to Leclair to "hop on" for a ride home. The latter ran out from between two parked cars into the street just as Superintendent Moulton came along. The latter jammed on the brakes and gave the steering wheel a sharp turn but the effort was useless. Leclair was thrown to the street and rendered conscious, being still in that condition late in the afternoon. The injured man bled profusely from cuts on the face and back of the head. Jones and Mr. Moulton placed him in the street department truck and rushed him to the hospital where he was placed under treatment by Doctors J. A. Girouard and Fred M. Smith. Little hope was held out for his recovery, however. Leclair is married but has no children. The accident was investigated by Investigating Officer Arthur M. Hurley of the police department but no action was taken pending the outcome of the injured man's condition.

The Knights of Columbus Boys' band receives high tribute in a letter received by Charles N. C. Wheeler, bandmaster of the juvenile organization and also leader of the B. P. O. Elks band of this city. The letter comes from the national executive offices of the Boy Scouts of America in New York city and announces a forthcoming invitation for the band to visit New York and be guests of the national organization at the executive dinner this summer. On this occasion the band will be requested to furnish music. The band will also be asked to attend the International Boy Scout Week in England this fall. These invitations must of necessity be abandoned, however, inasmuch as the band, is no longer classed as a Boy Scout band. It was under the name of the Willimantic Boy Scout band that the organization won the New England juvenile championship at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass., two years ago. The writer states that he heard the band play at the exposition and that it was the best Boy Scout band he had ever heard play in his many years connected with the Boy Scout organization in this country. The band is now being sponsored by San Jose Council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus, but remains wholly non-sectarian and carries on the same policies adopted at the time of organization.

This evening a dance was staged at the town hall for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus Boys' band, the affair drawing a large crowd. In addition to the large attendance there had been a good advance sale of tickets. Music for a concert prior to the dancing was by the band while the K. of C. Boys' orchestra comprising players drawn from the band, played for the dance.

As the result of a collision between a New England Transportation company coach and a horse and wagon driven by Daniel Tucker of Columbia on the Columbia road the evening of May 10, Edward Crandall, driver of the bus, was arraigned in the Columbia town court Tuesday night and fined $25 and costs for reckless driving. Crandall pleaded guilty. Justice of the Peace Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch remitted $20 of the fine, leaving a total assessment, including costs, of $14.10, which was paid. The transportation committee settled with Tucker for the damage to the wagon which was struck in the left rear wheel as Crandall attempted to pass the team as another car approached from the opposite direction. The right rear section of the coach collided with the team wheel, demolishing it. Tucker escaped injury. The accident was investigated by State Policeman Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks.

MOTHERS-DAUGHTERS' BANQUET WITH 45 PRESENT

A Mothers and Daughters' banquet was given Friday evening in the vestry of the Baptist church under the auspices of the Unceasing Workers class of the Sunday school. The class colors, yellow and white, were used in the decorations which were of crepe paper, lilac and thornless roses. The table was set in a large square in the center of the room. Festoons of crepe paper from the center of the ceiling to each plate made a very pretty effect. Covers were laid for 45, invitations including mothers and daughters of the Congregational church. The menu consisted of cold meat, salads, rolls, ice cream, cake and coffee. The greeting was extended by the class president, Lois Woodmansee. The speaker was Mrs. Charles Ellis of Norwich. Following her address there was a piano solo by Winifred Burdick, vocal duet, Phyllis and Arlene Bennett; talk, Mrs. J. A. Smith; piano solo, Phyllis Bennett; brief address, Mrs. Charles Zabriskie, teacher of the class. Each place card had a question which was to be read and answered by those present. POET-PRISONER SEEKS PARDON TO SELL BIRDS

LEAVENWORTH, Kas. (AP)—Robert F. Stroud, whose death sentence once was upheld by the United States supreme court, now seeks a pardon from the federal penitentiary here because, he says, he wants to sell canary birds.

For 13 years Stroud has been in "solitary." His death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment a few days before his scheduled execution. In the past few years he has spent his time training canaries and writing poetry.

He was convicted of killing a prison guard in 1916. Five prisoner witnesses were pardoned by President Wilson so they might testify against him.

THOUSANDS OF FISH DIE AS TRAIN WRECK RESULT

AMHERST, Nova Scotia, (AP)—Thousands of fish were killed as a result of a train wreck near here.

When ten freight cars left the rails at the headwaters of the Wallace river at Wentworth a drum of creosote was broken and its contents spilled into a small rivulet.

The rivulet carried the substance, poisonous to fish, into Colwell's brook and thence it was borne into the deeper pools of Wallace river. The effect upon trout, salmon and eels was disastrous. Dead fish lay along the banks of the river for three or four miles, and hundreds of gulls came inland from the salt water to devour them.

ALL ORCHESTRA PLAYERS CARRY LEADER'S BATON

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Every fiddler in the Philadelphia orchestra carries a conductor's baton in his fiddle case.

Likewise every man in the ensemble, from the manipulator of the "oompa" horn to the oboist, may hope to lead the orchestra soon if Leopold Stokowski's plans succeed.

Stokowski, the conductor, announced he would not go outside the organization to fill important posts left vacant by recent resignations, as he wants his men to have an opportunity for advancement.

The vacant places will include assistant conductor, first violin and concert master, leader of the second violin section and orchestra manager.

MILLIONS OF CHICKS CHAPERONED EN ROUTE

ZEELAND, Mich. (AP) — Since Easter week from one to two special railway mail cars of day-old chicks have been shipped daily from Zeeland.

A poultryman and a railway mail clerk have accompanied each shipment as far as Detroit or Chicago where the cargoes are split up for consignment to other roads.

Hatchery interests say high prices for eggs and poultry this spring have stimulated the demand for chicks.

U. S. SPENT $11,500,000 IN RECREATION LAST YEAR

NEW YORK (AP)—The American outlay for public recreation last year totaled more than $11,500,000, declares the new year book issued by the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

That figure was $11,000,000 greater than the amount similarly spent in 1924. The tabulation applies to tennis, golf, water sports, competitive athletics, organized playgrounds, winter sports, dramatics, music and other recreations.

Assistant Secretary Of War

Col. Patrick J. Hurley, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, new Assistant Secretary of War. The new Secretary is one of Oklahoma's leading bankers and oil men.

PLANE FIGHTS INSECTS IN CANADIAN FOREST

TORONTO, Ont. (AP)—Thousands of pounds of insect powder were dusted over the Lake St. John Country by airplane during May in the hope of preventing repetition of damage done in this Muskoka area last year by the hemlock looper and the spruce bud worm.

A plane has been assigned for the bug poisoning task by the provincial air force. A special hopper capable of carrying several tons of poisonous powder at one time has been attached to the plane's undercarriage structure. With the first approach of summer it will move from the Sault Ste. Marie base to the scene of operations.

RAILROAD VALUATION.

It fell to the lot of the St. Louis and O'Fallon railroad, a line of which the majority of people had probably never heard, to draw from the United States supreme court a ruling that serves notice on the interstate commerce commission to revise its method of railroad valuation. The decision lays down a rule of procedure that will have a far-reaching effect, though just how far cannot be predicted.

The railroad and the commission came to a legal clash over the amount of money to be considered as excess earnings under the "recapture" clause of the transportation act of 1920. This act provided that every railroad receiving a net operating income exceeding six per cent. of the value of its property should pay to the commission one-half of the amount earned above six per cent. The sums thus "recaptured" were to be placed in a fund from which loans could be made to railroads on which the earnings were below the "fair return" of five-and three-quarters per cent. established by another section of the act. It is easy to see that before the "recapture" figure could be reached the valuation of the road must be determined. The commission's valuation was based, in this case, upon reproduction costs as of 1914, plus subsequent investments, with reductions for depreciation. Obviously, the lower the valuation the larger the percentage of profits, on paper, to be turned over to the interstate commerce commission. But while the supreme court sustains the railroad's contention that present-day reproduction costs should have been taken into consideration, it does not prescribe the respective degree of weight to be given to this factor. On its face the supreme court decision seems very favorable to the position taken by the railroads, but the court interjects an element of doubt as to the full bearing of its decision when it says "there are some, perhaps many, railroads the ultimate value of which should be placed far below the sum necessary for reproduction." It does not appear that the way has been opened for any sudden and general increase of freight rates based on the assumption of much large valuations for the railroads.

Other decisions of the supreme court defining elements of value for rate-making purposes, in the case of other industries, had defined "present-day costs" as one of the elements, and the present decision seems to embody that common sense, which in the words of the jurist, is the foundation of the law.

CLOSING THE SUBJECT.

It may be presumed that the last word has been heard of the effort to oust Secretary Mellon from his office as secretary of the treasury. The report from the camp of his enemies in the senate is to the effect that they have virtually abandoned their efforts towards that end which serves to bring into greater prominence the clear, forceful and convincing opinion of the attorney general regarding the eligibility of Mr. Mellon to hold the office in which President Hoover has continued his tenure.

Concerning the statute which prohibits the appointment as secretary of the treasury of one who is engaged in business or commerce, Mr. Mitchell says that to give it the narrowest construction would "probably exclude from the office a great majority of the men most competent to hold and administer it efficiently, without accomplishing any good". That surely is the sensible view. It could not have been meant to deprive the country of the services in this office of the very men who might be best qualified to fill it. It is to be hoped that the last has been heard of this foolish attempt to deprive the government of Mr. Mellon's services.

AN OVERSEAS LOOK.

This is bound to be more than usual interest in a report coming out of Geneva that the council of the league of nations, which is to meet next month in Madrid, may possibly hold a session in the near future at Ottawa, Canada. There are obvious difficulties in the way of such a proposal. The European statesmen who are members of the council would not find it so easy to cross the Atlantic to attend a meeting as the time involved would be so much more than if the meeting were in a European country. Also the transportation of the council members and their extensive secretariat would be a tremendous expense to Canada, although the Dominion might welcome the opportunity to show the world that she is a nation and no longer merely a dependency of Great Britain.

But it is possible to vision advantage to the league itself which might counterbalance all these difficulties. To have it meet outside of Europe would presumably add enormously to the prestige of the league, giving it the appearance of a world organization, when it is regarded in many quarters as a European clique, a sort of twentieth century Holy Alliance. And it would give it a lot of greatly desired publicity on this continent. Whether or not the attitude of this country towards the league would be altered is another matter; but at least a meeting of the council in Ottawa would be an extremely interesting experiment.

NATIONALIZATION.

The question of nationalization, or socialism, has been discreetly kept in the background by the labor party speakers in the present British elections. It is only a few years since "socialism in our time" was the militant watchword of the British labor party, but experience at the polls and the fiasco of the general strike of 1926 seemed to indicate that it was not the most popular of issues. In the present election campaign, it is generally understood that the return of the labor party to power would mean the nationalization of the coal mines, but the rest of the socialist programme, including government control of banks, of transportation and industry, is supposed to be in abeyance.

Now, however, socialism has made its reappearance as a political issue. A prominent automobile manufacturer of Birmingham announced that if the duty on foreign automobiles were removed he would be compelled to close down his factory, whereupon the labor candidate for that district retorted that the labor government would take over the factory. The speeches of a candidate for parliament do not, of course, represent the strict policy of his party, but in this case Mr. MacDonald and other labor leaders will probably be compelled either to endorse or to disclaim their follower's utterance.

If socialism is to become a major issue in the British elections, the effect is by no means certain. A programme of complete nationalization would doubtless attract a great number of votes among the workers and the unemployed, but it would have the opposite effect of consolidating the opposition to the policies of the labor party. The outcome of the elections may very easily show that England is not averse to a second experiment with a labor government, but it is reasonably certain that the country would not submit to anything like complete nationalization.

SECRET SESSIONS.

The United States senate is stirred up because of the publication of what purported to be a record vote on the confirmation of the nomination of former Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin to be judge of the United States court of customs appeals, which was taken in one of the secret sessions of the senate. In many minds the opinion prevails that there is no good reason for such secrecy as the country is getting more and more away from the idea that any public business should be transacted in secret. There is a live movement on foot to do away with the secrecy rule, which at least might be amended to the extent proposed by Senator Jones of Washington, whose amendment would provide that nominations for office shall be in open executive session, unless a majority vote of the senate, in any particular case, shall direct it be held behind closed doors.

As long as the secrecy rule continues in effect it is to be expected that senators will be angered by the publication in newspapers of what transpires behind the closed doors of the senate chamber. From time to time, the publication of reports of proceedings of senate secret sessions have provoked discussion of the subject in the senate itself. Dire threats have been made to expel newspaper correspondents from the press galleries because of violation of the rules of secrecy. It has been apparent, however, that these violations of the rule originated first with a senator or a group of senators willing to make public what had happened in secret session. If the correspondent was to be punished, there remained also the senator or senators to be dealt with.

In earlier days the transaction of public business in secret session of the senate was the regular order. More and more, however, this practice has been abandoned. Even affairs of great national as well as international importance have come to be considered in the open senate, as for instance, the Versailles treaty after the close of the World war. Every step towards publicity has been fought by men of conservative habits of thought—men who believe that what exists and has existed in the past is right. The American people today are not willing to be kept in the dark by the senate or anyone else. They wish to know what their elected representatives are doing and why. The consideration of the nomination of a man for important office under the government is of public interest, and the public is entitled to know how the senate acts upon such nominations.

SHE CAME OVER.

"Well, mother, has our neighbor been over yet?" Randall Brookens put the question with careful carelessness.

"Not yet, son," Mrs. Brookens answered, without a sign that he had asked the same question every night for a week. She knows her men.

"No?" said Randall indifferently, and sauntered outside to work on the rustic pergola he was building to shade the west windows.

When a woman of 65 is asked to give up her own home in order to keep house for a young bachelor who has been jilted after his bungalow was bought and furnished she needs to put on her far-seeing spectacles. Mrs. Brookens knew this, but Randall had told her solemnly that unless she came he would have to live alone in that bungalow forever. Even so, she had not tried to sell her little house in the country. She had rented it, chickens, canary, and all, to a tenant who was willing to vacate on thirty days' notice.

By a happy chance Mrs. Brookens was acquainted with a lovely girl who lived only three blocks from Randall's house. It had been quite the natural thing to invite her over. Without obtruding her on Randall's attention, his mother had proved to herself that he was not completely heartbroken. And when the lovely girl had agreed to long drives into the woods with Randall to help him find branches that were just the right shade to fit into rustic pergola Mrs. Brookens had secretly applauded herself.

Then everything went wrong.

Randall's house is on the extreme edge of Chicago. Not suburban; but suburbanish. There are six little bungalows standing in a row with no dividing fence between and the one next Randall's had been vacant ever since Mrs. Brookens arrived.

But now a vivacious widow moved in there and began to ask Randall's advice about everything while he worked on his rustic pergola. And yet, in spite of the fact that the widow's black eyes were bright, she apparently could not discern Randall's mother.

"Don't you think you ought to call on her, mother?" Randall had asked early in the game. "She must be lonely."

"Well, I took her over that plate of popovers the first morning," Mrs. Brookens answered mildly. "You'd almost think she'd know me after that."

"But that was rather a country performance, taking the popovers. She's lived in New York. If I were you I'd put on my best togs and make a regular call."

So Mrs. Brookens did and came home fully convinced that the widow had been at least ten years in this world the day Randall first was laid in his decorated clothes basket. But, being 65 years wise, what she told him that evening was that the call had been pleasant.

The pergola was finished now and Randall was absurdly proud of it. His passion for that pergola was his mother's chief comfort in those days. She had come to look on the widow and the pergola as rivals for Randall's attention, with the lovely girl out of the running. It was the first thing Randall ever had built in his life and to his ears no praise of its points seemed fulsome.

The trouble was" that the widow sensed this accurately. Randall had well-grown vines ready to train over his pergola and every evening he trained and trained, while the widow hovered near and admired and admired.

"Our neighbor's going to have a car," he told his mother one morning. "She wants me to give her points about driving."

"She'll have a splendid teacher," Mrs. Brookens answered discreetly, with her heart in her slippers.

The following day a portable garage was set up just opposite the rustic pergola, and at 5 o'clock the next afternoon, as Mrs. Brookens sat on the porch sewing, the widow came swinging around the corner in her shiny new car and turned into her portable garage.

"Much she needs a driver!" Mrs. Brookens had begun to think, when—crash—crash—crash! What was happening? The back wall of the portable garage, with a splintering din, was approaching the rustic pergola, propelled by the widow's new car. Crack—crack—bang! Horrors! Rustic pergola, vines—everything—had gone down, and the car, stopped at last, was on top of them.

Fifteen minutes later Randall arrived. The widow was in her house telephoning. In spite of sixty-five years of experience, Mrs. Brookens could not resist saying, as her son viewed the wreck, "Our neighbor's been over!"

To her relief, after one gasp, he shouted with laughter. To double her joy, when dinner was done, he decided to pay a long-deferred call on the lovely girl down the street, and at midnight, when his mother retired, he had not yet come in.—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

Keep Clean to Avoid Skin Cancer

By Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, Baltimore, Md.

The face, hands and neck, those parts most exposed to sunlight, are the common sites of cancer, and, naturally, one might conclude that the sun was their cause. But there are other factors to which they are exposed—wind, rain and cold; there may be frostbites in the winter as there is sunburn in the summer.

But there seems to be one factor that is essential to produce cancer, and that is—DIRT. When these patients exposed to the weather and sunlight keep their faces clean, they are less apt to develop those areas of irritation of the skin that are identical with the areas that were formerly produced by X-rays—warts and keratoses (horny growths).

I am confident from my studies and observations of more than thirty years that cleanliness will protect and practically prevent cancer of the skin. As we grow older, both men and women, age thickens and wrinkles our skin and it needs more attention. In addition to cleanliness with soap and water, there must be added some toilet water containing alcohol of at least 70 per cent, and some application of an oily substance like vaseline, cold cream or cream and almond oil. The skin as we grow older loses its natural secretion of the sweat and sebaceous glands. Individuals exposed to dirt, sunlight and the weather must be more careful, therefore, of the exposed skin.

Statistical studies have clearly demonstrated that cancer of the mouth is more common in men whose occupation allows them to smoke all the time than in another group whose work prohibits the use of tobacco except during rest periods. The same is true of cancer of the skin. There are many men whose occupation is so grimy, for example, the miners, that they must energetically scrub with soap and water after the day's work. The incidence of cancer is much less in this group than in others whose dirt from occupation is less visible and who are not compelled to clean up after the day's work.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 23 — When house democrats decided upon making political hay during the interval between introduction of the tariff bill—shaped by republican members of the house ways and means committee—and decision of the republican caucus on house procedure in passing the bill, it was quite natural that Henry Hainey of Illinois should be drafted to take part in the show.

Among democratic house stalwarts he is about the readiest of the give and take of political sparring on the floor. And he also is a notable tariff veteran, now serving his thirteenth consecutive term in the house.

Only John Garner of Texas, democratic leader and a colleague of the democratic membership of the ways and means committee, has had longer service. He is doing his fourteenth consecutive two-year hitch.

Tariff Veteran

As a matter of fact, there are four democratic members of this all-powerful tariff making committee who outrank any republican member in committee experience.

In addition to Garner and Rainey, both Collier of Mississippi and Cordell Hull of Tennessee antedate on the committee any republican member.

Rainey, naturally, made a good deal of that in his tariff speech.

"Why, Garner, Collier, Hull and myself were members of the committee before a single one of the present republican members made their appearance on the committee he said. "We were all members of that committee when some of the gentlemen who have been potent in drafting this bill and who have had charge of some of these schedules were at home dreaming of the time when they might come to Washington to represent the interests they now have so well succeeded in doing."

Starting off with the assertion that the pending tariff bill ranked "worst of them all" among the 30 such measures dealt with by congress since 1787, Rainey paid his respects to what he pleased to term the "scandals" of past republican administrations.

For the most part, the republicans grinned cheerfully back at him. There is usually not much point in attempting to meet a man of Rainey's quick wits when he sets out to make a highly political speech of that sort.

Schafer of Wisconsin, however, was not to be restrained. Rainey endeavored to ignore him, but finally yielded to let Schafer say that "manhandling and mishandling of alien property" under a democratic administration was "one of the greatest scandals of government in history."

"But I notice it was a republican alien property custodian who went to the penitentiary," Rainey shot back.

Doughty Leader

Which illustrates why, aside from his long familiarity with tariff legislation, the democrats picked Rainey to talk party politics at the republicans.

And Rainey further showed his caliber by adding that he was discussing "the reprehensible conduct en masse" of the republicans.

"I have all the confidence in the world in my republican colleagues individually and separately, but when they act en masse I have not the slightest confidence in them," he said, in support of the joint resolution, declaring Marshall Jewell elected governor of Connecticut. In 1874 he was the republican nominee for lieutenant governor and ran ahead of Hon. Henry H. Starkweather. In 1876 he was elected to the forty-fourth congress and was re-elected to the forty-fifth, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, forty-eighth and forty-ninth congresses. He declined a renomination in 1887 and was succeeded by Charles A. Russell.

Returning to Norwich, he resumed his law practice, which had not by any means been neglected during his term in congress. He became early in his legal career especially successful in the prosecution of criminal cases, and was considered one of the foremost criminal lawyers in Connecticut.

He associated with him Gardiner Greene, under the firm name of Wait & Greene, and this association was conducted until his death. Of recent years he had not practiced much but he continued to visit his office and could be found there nearly every day.

Upon the organization of the County Bar association, in 1871, he was chosen president, and held the office up to the time of his death. He was president of the Eliza Huntington Memorial home, founded by his sister, from its institution; a member of the board of corporators of the William W. Backus hospital; a member of the Arcanum club, the New London County Historical society and the Connecticut Society of Sons of the American Revolution. He had been president of the I. K. A., a Greek society of Trinity college, since its foundation.

Col. Wait always took a deep interest in the soldiers of the Civil war, his only son, Lieut. Marvin Wait of the Eighth Connecticut having been killed at the battle of Antietam, and was made an honorary member of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R.

His honors were not confined to his own town or state, for in 1851 Trinity gave him the degree of A. M., and he received the same honor from Yale in 1871. Harvard conferred upon him the degree of L. L. D., in 1883, and Trinity gave him this degree in 1886.

In 1842 he married Mrs. Elizabeth Harris. Three children were born to them: Marvin Wait, who fell at Antietam; Mrs. Heusted W. R. Hoyt of Greenwich and Mrs. James H. Welles of this city, who survive their father. Mrs. Wait died in 1868.

Former Norwich Leaders

The Hon. John T. Wait

(From Norwich Bulletin, April 20, 1899)

In the death of the Hon. John T. Wait, which occurred at his home at Norwich Town on Friday afternoon, Norwich loses its best known citizen, and one who has been intimately associated with all the important public events of this city for considerably more than half a century. Although not a native of Norwich, Col. Wait came of Norwich parentage, and has always considered himself a son of the Rose of New England.

John Turner Wait was a native of New London and was born on August 11, 1811. His father was Judge Marvin Wait, son of Richard Wait and Elizabeth Marvin. He was long one of the leading lawyers at the bar of New London county and for several years a judge of the court of common pleas. He was a presidential elector in 1792 and cast his vote for Washington. He was also one of the commissioners appointed by the general assembly to dispose of the western lands and establish the present school fund. Mr. Wait's father represented the town of New London for nineteen sessions in the general assembly and was several times one of the candidates for congress of the old republican party during the administration of Mr. Jefferson.

Judge Marvin Wait died in 1815 and Mrs. Wait with her son removed to Norwich. She died in 1851. John T. Wait was educated in the schools of this city, and after spending three years in mercantile business he decided to study law. He attended Bacon Academy in Colchester for a year and took a two years' course at Washington, now Trinity college Hartford.

He returned to this city and entered the law office of the Hon. L. F. S. Foster. He later studied with the Hon. Jabez W. Huntington and was admitted to the bar in 1836. He at once took a prominent place at the bar of New London county and continued in active practice almost to the time of his death.

He became a supporter of the democratic party and in 1842 was made aide-de-camp on the staff of Gov. C. F. Cleveland. The same year he received the appointment of state's attorney for New London county, which office he held for two years and again in 1846-54. He made a good record in this position and soon had gained a prominent place at the county bar.

His name began to be known throughout the state and in 1854-5-6 and 7 he was the democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, but was not elected.

In 1867 he was elected to the house of representatives from Norwich and was nominated for speaker by acclamation. He was very highly esteemed as a presiding officer for the ability, urbanity and impartiality with which he discharged the duties of the chair. He was re-elected in 1871 and 1873.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Queensland

Children six years old recently tugged at parental apron strings in western Queensland, Australia, when the roofs of their homes resounded with the tatoo of the first rain they had ever seen or heard.

"Queensland is not an arid desert, as the report would indicate," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Queenslanders, nearly all of whom are boosters of their State, if twitted about the report, would counter with a boast that Queensland is large enough to accommodate many different climates. The State occupies the northeastern corner of Australia, including the Cape York Peninsula, the tip end of which is the northernmost point on the continent. This trip is but 750 miles south of the Equator.

"Maine, the northeastern corner of the United States, could be swallowed up within the borders of Queensland twenty times, and then there would be room enough for a Rhode Island or two. If the tip of the Cape York Peninsula were placed on the northern tip of the Michigan Peninsula, Queensland's southern border would lie in the Gulf of Mexico in about the same latitude as Tampa, Florida. And at its widest part, the Australian State spreads across as many miles as the distance between Washington and Des Moines, Iowa, as the crow flies.

"Tropical fruits thrive in the northern portion of the State. Bananas are so abundant that the State has been called the Banana State. Not to be outdone by the fruit producers, the sugar cane planters along the coast increased their sugar production in the past half century so that 95 per cent of Australia's sugar comes from Queensland, and it has become the so-called 'sugar bowl' of the continent.

"The traveler can ride for miles over roads between thickly planted fields of cane, so high that only the sight of a sugar mill breaks the monotony, and now and then the silence of the vast area is broken by the chug of 'donkey' engines which haul the cane from fields to mills. Vast cotton fields here and there in the northern part of the State are not unlike those of America, but they are worked by white laborers. Years ago, white Australians decided that they wanted the continent to be a white man's country, so they sent the South Sea Island laborers back to their native homes.

"Listen to a Queenslander of the Darling Downs, in southern Queensland, and he will nearly convince you that he lives in one of the world's finest agricultural districts. Here are four million acres of rich soil where seeds are merely sown and Nature produces enormous crops without the use of fertilizer. This region was opened up less than a century ago. Today it is an endless panorama of orchards, cattle ranches and farms. Corn, wheat and alfalfa grow abundantly. On some portions of the Downs, nine crops of alfalfa have been harvested in a single year.

"Toowoomba, the capital of the Downs, reflects the prosperity of the district in its fine buildings and residences set in garden-spotted lawns. There is an air of wealth and importance to Toowoomba, yet at times its streets resemble those of a small American county seat on court days, for it is here that the rural folk come for amusement but finally settle on the street corners and in the shops talking sheep, grapes, wheat, wool, and corn.

"While Queensland is not a Johannesburg, Mount Morgan, near the Pacific coast, has produced more than $125,000,000 worth of gold.

"Rockhampton, a city of 20,000 inhabitants, owes its worth to the precious metal. Copper and lead now are important mineral products of the gold mining region. Tin is mined on Cape York Peninsula.

"In western Queensland, the traveler passes through cultivated areas, larger than entire States in the United States, which were once arid. There are also portions which man has not exploited. Rain here is seldom seen but artesian wells are brought in by drilling. Western Queensland is the land of the Australian opals. These gems which are valuable on the gem markets of the world are found in diggings from 6 inches to thirty feet deep. About 200 miles from Rockhampton, the Anakie gem fields produce about $100,000 worth of sapphires a year.

"Queensland's drawback, according to Queenslanders, is its small population which is slightly less than that of Boston, Massachusetts. More than a third of the inhabitants of the State live in Brisbane, capital of Queensland, which was made famous by the landing there of the Southern Cross transpacific flyers. Lying on both banks of the Brisbane River, the capital city, in many respects, resembles a thriving American port, with its busy docks lining the water front and with modern tall buildings along clean, bustling streets in the background. As Queensland increases in population, Brisbane, now the largest city in the State, bids fair to rise above its rank as the fourth largest city on the continent.

Stories That Recall Others

Good Memory

Recently little Billy, age four, was taken to the hospital to visit some friends. "You know Billy, you were here before, you were born here," remarked his mother.

"Yes," replied Billy, "I remember."

Big, Bigger, Biggest

Henry dropped into an office to chat a while with several neighbors who chanced to be present. He proceeded to relate an incident that had come under his observation, somewhere, and which seemed to some of his listeners as having some elements of improbability. This reminded one of the crowd of an incident that he had witnessed. Then up spoke a third man with a "whale" of an episode that he had encountered. When he had ended Henry arose and yawned wearily, saying: "Aw, fellers, the man who tells the first lie in a crowd like this never has any show."

Gratitude is the fond recollection of the heart.

OBITUARY

Charles L. Browning

Charles Lathrop Browning, formerly in business in this city, died Tuesday evening in New York after several years of failing health.

Mr. Browning was born in the Greeneville section of the city about 62 years ago, and was the son of Charles D. and Henrietta Lathrop Browning. His father was in the grocery business in Greeneville, with which the younger man became connected after graduating from the Greeneville school. About a year before he went to New York he located in Thamesville and conducted a store there until he removed to New York city, where for 25 years, until illness compelled his retirement, he was interested in the transportation business, having been affiliated with the United Trucking company and other transportation concerns.

Mr. Browning was married Oct. 18, 1888 at Middletown, to Mary Steele. He was an active member of the Congregational church in Greeneville and attended the Flatbush Congregational church while he was in New York.

He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. William H. Arnold of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a brother, Arthur Perkins Browning of Montclair, N. J., who was formerly a resident of this city. He also leaves a granddaughter.

Mrs. Herbert Spicer

The death of Mrs. Esther Spicer, widow of Herbert Spicer, occurred at her home in Poquetanuck Thursday morning at 2 oclock.

She was born at Newport, R. I., the daughter of Peleg G. and Catharine Sweet. For the past 60 years she has resided in the town of Preston, and for the past 50 years has lived in the village of Poquetanuck.

About three years ago she suffered a fractured hip caused by a fall on the ice, and since that time had been an invalid, but had not been seriously ill until the past two weeks.

She was an active member of the Women's Guild of Saint James' parish up to the time of her accident. Her husband passed away about eleven years ago.

She is survived by two sons, Gorton P., and Willis H. Spicer and two grandsons, Stanley C. and Clarence B. Spicer, also by four great grandchildren and one sister, Sarah J. Sweet of Poquetanuck. GUARDSMEN TO HAVE OVERNIGHT CAMP SATURDAY

This week end members of the local National Guard units are to have an advance taste of camp life to prepare them for the annual field training period. With other outfits of the 192nd Field Artillery, they are to take part in overnight maneuvers at Fort Shantok on the Thames river, a few miles south of Norwich. The units taking part are the Headquarters Battery and Battery A of New London, the Service battery of Danielson, Battery B and the Combat Train of Norwich, Major Otto H. Schroetter will be in command.

The battery members will assemble here in the state armory at one o'clock Saturday afternoon and immediately thereafter depart in battery trucks and private cars. Arriving at Fort Shantok, which is a state park, they will pitch their pup tents, if the weather is not fair, buildings are available. During the stay of the artillerymen there tests will be conducted to establish an eligible list of truck drivers who hold ratings as specialists and draw additional pay. The Danielson boys will have an opportunity to view some of the operations which they are too busy to see during the annual camp period. The firing batteries are to take 155 mm howitzers and will go into position with them under cover of darkness Saturday night. The headquarters detail will establish telephone communication.

FUNERAL

Henry Fredette.

With a large gathering of mourners including people from Manchester, N. H., New London, Hartford, Norwich, Bridgeport, Providence and other places and with a delegation from the New London division of the S. N. E. Telephone company present, funeral services for Henry Fredette of New London were held at the home of his brother-in-law, Andrew Plante, Anthony street, Jewett City, Wednesday morning at 8:15. At the requiem mass which followed at St Mary's church at 9 o'clock, Rev Nicholas Caron officiated and James Olson, church organist was in charge of the music, assisted by Mrs. Arlae Sarrazin. At the offertory Mrs Sarrazin sang Jesi Salvatos Mundi, and as a walting hymn, Fins Deriueres As the processional Chopin's funeral march was played.

Burial took place in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon, where a committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Caron. The bearers were Joseph Fredette, John Fredette, Charles Fredette and Arthur Fredette, all of Manchester, N. H., Frederick Belisle of Jewett City and Albert Duhaime of Norwich. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Undertakers Cummings and Ring were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

NORWICH AERO CLUB HAS ADOPTED CONSTITUTION

The second meeting of the Norwich Aero club was held Wednesday evening at the home of the president with a majority of the members attending.

Progress was noted since the last meeting a week ago, the club now having printed stationery and printed application blanks for new members will soon be distributed among the present members.

Important business transacted at Wednesday evening's meeting included the reading and adoption of a constitution and by-laws. Rapid increase of the club membership is expected, due to the tremendous interest in aviation. Helping to "Make America Supreme In The Air" is one of the aims of the club.

With the definite conclusion of the question for a proper site for a Norwich airport foreseen by the coming of State Aviation Commissioner Clarence M. Knorr to Norwich for the purpose of making a final report of suitable sites, and the existence in Norwich of an active live-wire flying club it can be seen that Norwich is rapidly becoming air-minded.

ANNUAL CITY BUDGET CALLS FOR TAX OF 12 3-5 MILLS WITHOUT EXTRAS

A tax of 12 3-5 mills will be required to meet the regular expenses of the city, as submitted to the court of common council at a special meeting in the council chamber, Thursday evening, by the committee on finance. There are, in addition to the regular items in the list, 17 "extras", calling for appropriations of $129,800. If all the "extras" are adopted by the annual city meeting next month an additional tax of 3 3-5 mills will be required.

It was the final meeting of the present council, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins called the meeting to order at 8.15 o'clock and after a brief recess, the council reconvened. Mayor Robbins called attention to the fact that at the last meeting, action on the petition to change the name of Newcomb street to Thames Terrace was held in abeyance. He asked if the council wished to act on the matter. Alderman Fred Ortman presented a letter from Mrs. W. C. Brinkman in which she referred to the opposition that developed at the last council meeting to the petition. The writer stated that there was no reason for opposition and spoke of the confusion that often resulted between Newcomb street and Newton street. After the letter had been read by the clerk Alderman Ortmann moved that the name of Newcomb street be changed to Thames terrace.

The council then adopted a resolution appropriating a sum not to exceed $50,000 for the North Main street improvement which was authorized at a recent city meeting.

Alderman Dahl, reporting for the public works committee, stated, with reference to the petition of M. F. Noyes asking the city to accept Garfield avenue, that the committee did not feel that Garfield avenue was in condition to be accepted by the city. He stated that if the avenue were put in proper condition the committee would reconsider. The report was accepted.

The committee reported that the petition of H. W. Mitchell for the extension of the sewer in Garfield avenue had been granted. As there was some money left over after the Garfield avenue sewer had been built, the extension was made without extra cost to the city.

The following reports were accepted: Monthly and annual reports of the city treasurer; annual report of the cemetery department, health officer, water department, finance department, financial report of the police department, financial report of the gas and electric department, annual report of the street commissioner, annual report of the fire commissioners, fire pension fund, financial report of the fire department and the annual inventory of the fire department.

The finance committee submitted its report of the claims referred to them during the year, with the action taken and it was accepted.

The finance committee then submitted the list of estimates, including the estimated expenses and receipts of the city for the ensuing year, a list of "extras" and the recommended tax rate.

To meet the expenditures called for by the foregoing estimates a tax of twelve and three-fifths (12-3-5) mills on the last city list will be required, said list being $36,035,266. The tax recommended last year by the finance committee was twenty-five and three-fourths (25 3-4) mills on the list of $17,100,287.

In addition to the said estimated expenses for the ordinary requirements of the city, the committee on finance has been requested by petition and otherwise to submit to the annual city meeting for its action, estimates for the following purposes, which are as follows:

1. Repair of defective sidewalks	$5000.
2. Parks and trees	1500.
3. The enactment of building, plumbing and electric codes as ordinances	1500.
4. New chassis for police patrol	1000
5. Additional pay to give each regular police officer one day a week off duty	1000.
6. Hamilton Ave., Corning Road to City line, macadam	4800

15. Hobart Ave., Oak St. northerly, sewer	4000.
16. Smith Ave., County Home to Hamilton Ave., sewer	4000.
17. Removing ledge opposite No. 20 Spruce St.	6000.
Total	$129,300.

The foregoing items are all desirable, but will, if all are voted by the city meeting, require an additional tax of three and three-fifths (3-3-5) mills above that required by the regular estimates for which the committee has recommended a tax of 12 3-5 mills. Your committee recommends that the warning for the next annual meeting include the last named estimates, commonly known as "extras," and a call for action thereon. Your committee expresses no opinion as to which of said extra items are necessary and the order in which they appear have no meaning as to the respective merits of each.

The committee's report was accepted and the estimates ordered published.

Petitions were received and acted on as follows:

From Carl Johnson, et al, for a sewer on Avery street; referred to the public works committee.

From C. L. Lucia for the removal of a tree in front of No. 312 Boswell avenue; referred to the public works committee.

From Patsy Sera asking for a grade for a sidewalk on the northerly side of North Main street from No. 14 to No. 56 inclusive. Referred to the public works committee.

The committee on street signs made the following report:

That careful investigation of various styles, patterns and makes of signs has been made as well as experimentation regarding visibility, legibility, etc., of samples. As a result of this work new rust proof metal direction signs done in white Duco field with red point and black lettering were procured and erected during the year in conjunction with the chamber of commerce.

Street name signs are now under construction and are being placed according to the urgency of the need. These signs are wooden with bright Duco aluminum field and black sanded lettering with emphasizing border in bright green.

It is impossible to renew all street name signs without a special appropriation but a substantial start has been made and we recommend that the work be carried on to completion by placing one or two hundred signs each year.

The aid of the Boy Scouts was solicited in numbering unnumbered houses and they are conscientiously doing this work and have covered about sixty per cent, of the city.

Aluminum numbers are being used except in cases where individuals prefer to supply their own.

The report was accepted after which the city clerk read a letter from Scout Executive Frederick Bielefield, calling attention to the work accomplished by the Boy Scouts in re-numbering a number of residences in the city.

Corporation Counsel Edmund W. Perkins made the following report with reference to the proposed investigation of the gas and electrical department:

Pursuant to a resolution passed at a special meeting of the city, held February 27th, 1929, I have conferred with the fact finding committee appointed to investigate and report upon the gas and electrical department of the City of Norwich, and I find no facts to justify any legal action and that it is unnecessary for me to investigate the department.

Mayor Addresses Council

Just before the meeting adjourned, sine die, Mayor Robbins addressed the council as follows:

Gentlement of the council: You all know this is our last meeting of the fiscal year. In my address to you last June I stressed the importance of efficiency in the operation of the several city departments. The best criterion of your businesslike management during the past year exists in the pleasing results obtained and the fact that there is a considerable cash balance on hand.

Two years ago Mayor Waters commented upon the item that the only overdraft, about $8,000, was due to the failure of the Connecticut company to pay the public works department for work done for it in the improvement of Main street. He further stated that the treasurer's annual reports for the past 50 years would show this to be an unusual state of affairs. As a matter of fact the records show that during the 10 years prior to this year the average yearly overdraft amounted to almost $11,500.

With nothing slighted and with all bills paid—an unusual situation in itself—there has been no overdraft and the treasury shows a real cash balance in excess of $13,000. This result is more than unusual — it is unique. I commend you for this splendid record.

No one will deny but that you have experienced an unusually strenuous year. There have been many unusual undertakings and several perplexing and serious problems to solve but you have done well and there is no failure of accomplishment on the side of wisdom and good judgement. I thank you for your co-operation, uniform courtesy and patience and I am very sorry that some of you will not be here to carry on the work of the new year.

One of the four alleged bootleggers and speakeasy proprietors arrested Wednesday night pleaded guilty in the city court Thursday morning to actual sale, but the other three were granted continuances until Saturday morning under bonds of $1,000 each. Victor Fontaine, 43, of Merchants avenue, Taftville, was the one to plead guilty. Judge A. F. Libby imposed a fine of $200 and costs and a sentence of 10 days in jail. A second count of keeping liquor with intent to sell was nolled in the Fontaine case.

The three who secured continuances were Rose Caron Ouellet, 35, of 467 North Main street, James Cirves, 47, of 7 Hill street, and James St. Germaine, 38, of the same address as Cirves.

The raids were made with warrants by the members of the local and state police force. No liquor was found at the Ouellett place, but at the Fontaine place the police seized eight cases of home brew, two gallons of rye and three quart bottles of rye.

A telephone call at 1:55 o'clock Thursday afternoon called out the fire department to the three and one-half story brick building at 93 School street where there was a fire on the roof. Several holes were burned in the roof and the rafters became ignited before the fire was put out by Engine No. 5, Squad A and Acting Chief Henry R. Taft.

WEDDING

Duquette-Pion

A very pretty wedding took place at the Immaculate Conception church, Baltic, at 8 o'clock Monday morning when Rev. Father William O'Brien united in marriage Miss Mabel Pion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pion of High street, Baltic, and Peter Duquette of Norwich. As the bridal party entered the church Mendelssohn's Wedding March was playing by the organist, Miss N. V. Miller. The bride was beautiful in a gown of white satin and lace with pearl trimmings. Her tulle veil was caught up with orange blossoms, pearls and rhinestones and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and orange blossoms.

The maid of honor, Miss Cecelia Duquette, sister of the groom, wore a handsome gown of yellow georgette and gold lace with picture hat and gold slippers to match and carried pink rosebuds. John Donegan of Norwich, an intimate friend of the groom, acted as best man.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful platinum lavalier pendant. The bride presented her bridesmaid with a gold mesh bag. The groom presented the best man, a bill folder and key holder.

Following the wedding ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, consisting of fruit cocktail, a roast turkey, mashed potatoes, turnips, green peas, celery, olives vegetables, salad, rolls, cake, ice cream, salted nuts, tea, coffee and soft drinks. Breakfast was served to about 50 guests. During the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Duquette left for a honeymoon trip to New York and Atlantic City. A number of friends accompanied them in machines as far as New London.

The bride's going away gown was of tan georgette and lace over orange colored satin and tan coat with hat and slippers to match. She also carried a tan leather hand bag.

The bride is well known and very popular among the younger set. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Duquette, formerly of Baltic, and is employed at Young's Market, Norwich.

BULKELEY HAS HABIT OF GIVING ACADEMY A BATTLE AS SCORES SHOW

The Academy will enter the second Bulkeley game of the season again the favorite to win, although not by such big odds as were in force for the first tilt, at New London last Saturday. The Academy did not have as easy a time at New London as was expected, winning only by 5 to 2 and Bulkeley gave them several anxious moments.

However, the Wildcats will have everything in their favor to continue their unbroken string and annex their fourteenth straight at the campus tomorrow. Butsy Weisgraber, star hurler, was lined out in the Bulkeley game, pitching as he had in most every game for the past two weeks. He will enter the second clash with a full week's rest, as Coach Brigham did not even use him against the Richmonds last night. Butsy, when right, should have little trouble with the Whalers.

Bulkeley Has All to Gain

Bulkeley, of course, again Saturday, will have everything to gain and little to lose. They have no unbeaten record to protect, they have lost five or six games, Bulkeley has never received a bad beating from the Academy in recent years and many times gave highly favored Wildcat teams a great big scare before losing. The scores since 1926, when on every occasion the Academy was the favorite to win will bear out this statement. Here they are:

1926—At New London: Bulkeley 1, N. F. A. 0.
At Norwich: N. F. A. 10, Bulkeley 0.
1927—At Norwich, N. F. A. 6, Bulkeley 5.
At New London: N. F. A. 11, Bulkeley 10.
1928—At Norwich: N. F. A. 10, Bulkeley 9.
At New London: N. F. A. 6, Bulkeley 0.
1929—At New London: N. F. A. 5, Bulkeley 2.

Bulkeley Usually a Jinx

Saturday Academy fans feel is the time for Bulkeley to receive a real lacing from the Wildcats. Somehow or other, the Academy seems to forget nearly all the baseball it knows when it faces Bulkeley, recovering in the late innings after Bulkeley has run up a big lead. A big crowd will be out Saturday to cheer the Wildcats on to a big win over Bulkeley—and New London.

Fair weather should be the Academy's lot on the week end for they have already lost one game this week by rain.

YANKS PLAY LOOSE BALL BUT BEAT RED SOX, 7-6

BOSTON, May 23—(AP)—The Yankees continued their winning ways against the Boston Red Sox, the only team they have defeated since May 10, by taking the first of a five-game series here today, 7 to 6. Five errors were chalked up against the world's champions, and only one of the Boston runs was earned.

Babe Ruth hit his eighth homer of the season in the fifth with Mitt Gaston in the box and the bases empty. Lyn Lary, who played a spectacular game at short, backed it up with his second home run, a single and two passes in four chances at the plate. He scored three runs.

Miller Huggins juggled the Yankee batting order in an attempt to break his bad luck, but the cause of the champions seemed lost in the ninth when they came to bat with the Red Sox leading by 5 to 4. The first two men to face Gaston singled and Ed Morris hurried to the rescue. The Yankees were not to be denied, however, and drove three runs home before Ed Durham relieved Morris and retired them.

Koenig batted in two runs in the big ninth, and Cedric Durst, one. The Yankees lost half a game to the Athletics, who won two from Washington to increase their margin over the champions to four games. Score:

BROWNS AND INDIANS SPLIT EVEN IN DOUBLE BILL

CLEVELAND, May 23—(AP)—After a three-run rally in the twelfth inning had given them the first game, 5 to 4, Cleveland Indians dropped the second game today to the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 5.

Walter Stewart, Browns' left hander, had the Clevelanders at his mercy throughout most of the opener, but was driven from the box in the twelfth and the tribe sewed up the game by nicking Ogden for two more hits.

The tribe also rallied to score four runs in the nightcap, but Dick Coffman set them back after Blaeholder had retired under fire. Oscar Melillo, St. Louis second baseman, continued his terrific hitting of the last two weeks by clouting out a single, and a double, and a triple and a home run in the second game. The scores:

ACADEMY SCORES LOP-SIDED WIN OVER RICH. RADIATORS

Scoring eight runs in the sixth inning, the Academy defeated the Richmond Radiator team of the Industrial league in easy fashion Thursday evening at the campus, 18 to 3. The Ironmen took a one run lead in the third and added two more in the fourth before the Wildcats scored five times in this stanza, one in the next, 8 in the sixth and one more in the seventh. The game was called at the end of eight innings.

Red Fagan and Louie Green pitched for the Academy with Bud Fontaine catching while Andy Kotch and Speed Riordan did the hurling for the Richmonds with Blinderman behind the bat. A fairly large crowd attended. Flather had a triple and Cummings, Fontaine and Gibbs doubles. Bargnesi featured in the field with a one hand catch in center off La Croix. The score:

BASEBALL BITS

Cammarano, Hillhouse high captain and third sacker, is said by Coach Chick Bowen to be the best at that school since Joe Dugan. When Hillhouse played against the Academy last year, Cammarano was at first base.

The New York Yankees will meet the Hartford Senators in an exhibition game at Hartford Monday.

Baseball has shown such a deficit at Hartford high that there is talk of dropping that sport. A recent game with Pawling school of New York had to be postponed for lack of funds to make the trip. But in view of the fact that Pawling school beat Warren Harding 1 to 0, ten innings and that Hartford has won only one game this year, it probably was for the best.

On the other hand, a New England league game had to be postponed in Lowell, Mass., Tuesday because Lowell high had the field before them there.

Wildcat Eddie Wilson, former Hillhouse star, is seeing quite a bit of service in the outfield with the New Haven Profs. He performed against the Yankees last week when they played an exhibition game in the Elm City. He did not get a hit in three tries but Bruce Caldwell didn't get any in fuor attempts. Wilson hits in third position.

With good weather Saturday, the Academy ought to break all attendance records for the season. Bulkeley and the Academy always draw and because of the closeness of the first game and the fact that the Academy is undefeated and is driving on to its third straight state title, there should be an extra large turnout.

Denny Murphy, Taftville boy, is still in there as regular catcher for Reading of the International.

Don't forget Saturday, June 1, when Liody Jarvis and the Holy Cross freshmen tackle the Academy at the campus. Or Memorial day when Warren Harding comes, or Saturday with Bulkeley, or Saturday, June 8, with Naugatuck, or —etc?

Hillhouse high of New Haven, last year one of the leaders in state scholastic ball, lost to West Haven Wednesday 6 to 5.

Fitchville A. A. will open its season Sunday against the Polish Citizens club. Fitchville has a new field this year and it is said that a standing offer of $5 is up to the first home boy who drives the ball over the hill in left field. It is a bit of something over 400 feet.

KILOWATTS POUND P. & A. HURLERS TO WIN, 11 TO 3

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 23 — The Kilowatts slugged two P. and A. pitchers for 11 hits tonight to win by the large margin of 11 to 3. The Kilos knocked Reynolds out of the box and came close to doing the same thing to Brown. The big inning for the Kilowatts was the first in which they scored six runs, partly due to the five errors of P. and A. The Pacos bunched their hits in the third to make their three runs. Schofield pitched a great game for the Kilowatts and allowed only three scattered hits while fanning eight men. The score:

HENNESSEY'S VICTORY GIVE U. S. LEAD IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

WASHINGTON, May 23—(AP)—A hard fought victory by John Hennessey over Tamio Abe today gave America's tennis forces a 1 to 0 lead over Japan in the semi-finals of the American zone play for the Davis cup.

Hennessey, playing below his usual form, met stiff opposition from the spectacled Nipponese who forced him to four sets before yielding, 8-6, 6-1, 3-6, and 6-1. The second singles encounter of the day, John Van Ryn against Tyoshiro Ohta, captain of the Japanese squad, was halted at 6:30 by prearrangement, with the American leading two sets to one and 4-2 in the fourth set.

A colorful gallery, of 1,500, including Mrs. Herbert Hoover, gathered at the Chevy Chase courts for the first Davis cup matches ever played in Washington. Among the notables were Ambassadors Debuchi of Japan, Von Prittwitz of Germany, Padilla of Spain; Minister Bostrum of Sweden, Mme Claudel, wife of the French ambassador, and Princess De Ligne, wife of the Belgian ambassador.

The doubles tomorrow will bring together the same four players in a five set match, preceding which Van Ryn and Ohta will finish their singles match. Two more singles will be played Saturday.

Howard Stops Williams

NEW HAVEN, May 23.—(AP)—Buddy Howard, New Haven heavyweight, continued his winning ways by disposing of Joe Williams, New York, in the first round at the weekly amateur boxing show tonight. Bristol boxers won in three divisions. Don Knapp, New Haven, fighting in the 130-pound class, lost his first amateur bout to Pasy Potter, of New York.

There ain't no justice.

The doo what vaccinated me said that I wouldn't be sick at all but oh, how mistaken he was.

Didja ever feel like a good healthy steam roller had run over you and then had been hung up over some live coals to dry out? Well that's the way I feel, only worse.

The way my arm looks and the way I feel I should think I had a shot in the arm with a high pressure grease gun. And to think one little needle stuck through the skin can cause all these mean feelings.

Say if one little sore arm can make me feel like this what would have happened if I was took with smallpox. Oh, boy I hate to think of it.

And say folks can you imagine me trying to write this on a typewriter with one hand? And believe me it ain't going to be much.

So long, folks. I leave you for better or worse. Let's hope it's better because it couldn't be any worse.

ATHLETICS TAKE TWO FROM SENATORS BY 9-8 SCORE

PHILADELPHIA, May 23—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics outslugged the Washington Senators in both ends of a double header here today and by winning both games by the score of 9 to 8 ran their winning streak to eight games in a row.

The league-leading Mackmen overcame Washington's 8 to 0 lead faoricated in the first innings of the opening clash when they hammered Hadley and his successors for eight runs in the fourth inning.

Bing Miller delivered the winning blow in the following round when he hit pitcher Paul Hopkins for his third home run of the season.

The second game was a see-saw affair in which the Senators were twice ahead and was not settled until the Macks scored two runs in the eighth that broke a 7-7 tie.

Bluege hit a home run in each game, while Goslin hit his seventh of the season in the second encounter with two men on base. Score:

MAINE LOOKS ABLE TO DEFEND N. E. TRACK TITLE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 23—(AP)—The power and balance of the University of Maine track team appeared strong enough to enable the Pine Tree staters to successfully defend their New England intercollegiate championship, here tomorrow, and Saturday at Tech field.

Though several of the other 16 colleges entered in the meet have outstanding performers, none appeared to have the slightest chance of disputing the victory with Maine's exceptional field and distance performance. The pre-meet dope had Holy Cross, Brown and New Hampshire battling for second place.

Tomorrow's programme called for trials in 10 of the 15 events, and a total of 372 athletes to perform. All of the finals have ben put over until Saturday.

The colleges entered, all from this section, were Amherst, Bates, Boston college, Boston university, Bowdoin, Brown, Colby, Holy Cross, Massachusetts Aggies, Maine, New Hampshire, Northeastern, Technology, Tufts, Wesleyan, Williams and Worcester Polytech.

HELEN WILLS AND EDITH CROSS LOSE IN DOUBLES

PARIS, May 24.—(AP) —The vivacious Senorita Ella De Alvarez outpokered the reliable Miss Helen Wills, sometimes known as "little poker face," in a brilliant tennis doubles match today.

Largely as a result of the Spanish girl's dashing play, Miss Wills and her fellow Californian, Edith Cross, the first and third ranking players of the United States, were eliminated in the women's doubles quarter-finals of the French championships by the Senorita and her Dutch partner, Kea Bouman.

The defeat which marked the first setback of Miss Wills' European invasion was administered in straight sets by scores of 8-6, 6-4.

LOUGHRAN CLASHES WITH SCHAAF IN BOSTON TONIGHT

BOSTON, May 23—(AP)—Strengthened by some extra poundage, Tommy Loughran, the light heavyweight champion will try his hands against an aggressive and stiff punching heavyweight, when he clashes with Ernie Schaaf, here tomorrow night in the Boston Garden's feature bout.

Though Loughran has ben made a favorite, this fact has not dented Schaaf's confidence. He has convinced himself that he can astound the boxing world by flattening the clever titleholder with hisg reater weight and punching power.

If Loughan is successful, he will probably join the heavyweight ranks after defending his title against Jimmy Braddock next month.

FARMING TAKES ALL-AROUND ABILITY

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

The editor of The Toronto Globe, up 'toher side the border, has been taking a 'go, look, see' at farming as it is farmed in Canada. And some of his conclusions are so strikingly like some of those you and I have come to in these random "Talks," that perhaps you will be as much interested as I was in reading them. The Canadian editor says:

"The successful farmer must be fairly familiar with business methods and with some of the factors operative in our modern economic structure. He must be something of a mechanic, as mechanical labor-saving devices, some of them fairly complicated, are now regarded as essential to the farm routine. He must have some idea of physics and chemistry if he is to give his soil the correct treatment which it requires. The proper care of his livestock presupposes some knowledge of the fundamental principles of veterinary science. He must possess considerable initiative—must be 98 per cent industrious and, perahps above all, must possess a peculiar mental temperament that the profession of agriculture requires, combining ability for affairs and capacity for routine. The boy who does not give promise of possessing these qualifications should endeavor to find his place with some large financial concern or industrial corporation, where his actions can be directed from head office, and where very little initiative on his part is required."

"Conditions have changed in agriculture in the past half century, and brains are of more account today than brawn in making a success of this profession. Farming is a science in modern life, and scientific training and education are necessary if the highest results are to be obtained. It was to impart these and to meet the changed conditions prevailing that agricultural colleges were founded. There are many men who can run a bank who would be utterly unable to run a farm; many who make millions following the vagaries of the stock market who could not make "salt to their kail" if they had to follow the plow."

Senators Borah and Brookhart and a dozen or so other western bullfrogs hold the conviction that congress, by the exercise of some mysterious hocus-pocus, can legislate a capacity for success into farmers—all farmers, of whatever sorts and whatever habits.

This is quite on a part with the so-called intelligence which thinks that a "Be it enacted" is all that is necessary to make men moral and fashion sensible and a peck always weigh fifteen pounds and a pint pot hold a gallon.

But what can you expect of congress? Or, rather, of the senate, into which, as into a cess-pool, seem to have oozed the most amazing seepages of vanity, stubbornness, self-conceit, incapacity, wrong-headedness and pig-headedness ever contained in any one sewage-vat?

As I have asked you, above, to read what a Canadian newspaper man thinks about farming, its demands and its problems, let me ask you, next, to read what seems to me a deliciously satiric view of the senate of the United States, as seen by a roving correspondent of one of the most prominent western papers. The Kansas City Star.—You will note that, throughout, he speaks of "congress." But the context plainly shows that it is the senate he has in mind. Listen, please:

"Those Capitol Hill pupils in Secretary Mellon's correspondence course of instruction, who got to thinking they knew more than their teacher, again have had their error revealed to them.

"Mr. Mellon, in his capacity of pedagogue to backward pupils, has imported many lessons to congress on subjects it was pretty well understood it had known nothing about, such as finances and economics. Congress wasn't supposed to know anything about those things, of course, but it did have an idea it knew something about law. It got that impression because it makes laws—although it has been demonstrated with some frequency that it didn't always know what it was doing when it made them. But now on a question of a law of its own making Mr. Mellon has proved himself qualified to give lessons to congress in lawmaking, also.

"Take Mr. Norris and Mr. McKellar in the senate. They were virtually empty vessels until Mr. Mellon began pouring wisdom into them. They didn't know what he was doing and resisted desperately and with screams every time he did it, but unconsciously they kept on inviting the process, and thus became the gainers by it. They wouldn't keep still about teacher. That is how they came to be the beneficiaries of knowledge. If they had kept still, teacher wouldn't have known they were there. But they stood up—and Mr. Garner in the house stood up—and by exhibiting their need of attentfon, received it. Teacher came and poured wisdom into them.

"If they keep on attacking Mr. Mellon they are going to be marvels of knowledge and wisdom some time. Perhaps qualified to be legislators even.

"Last March, when President Hoover retained Mr. Mellon as secretary of the treasury without sending his nomination to the senate, some of our backward pupils didn't know the proceeding was perfectly constitutional. In time, of course, they learned it was—they were just slow, that was all. They then turned from constitutional law as being a little deep for them, and tried statute law which, they had heard somewhere, disqualified Mr. Mellon from holding his office because he was engaged in trade and commerce. They were quite a while learning that wasn't so, but they learned it.

"I point out these facts to controvert the common impression about congress that it can't learn anything. That is not so. It can learn, but is just a little slow at it. It learns faster when it has the guidance of Mr. Mellon than it does without him, that is all. As Mr. Mellon is going to stay at the treasury, and as congress probably is going to continue to use its peashooter on him, I think the prospect is very encouraging that congress will improve rapidly in instruction and some day—if Mr. Mellon stays long enough—make us all proud of it."

But it is hard to see how such a day can ever come, while the "sovereign people" of so many states continue to send to the senate the Cheap Jacks of politics, rather than honest students of statecraft.

Peace

Sometimes the soul from faith recoils
When life grows harsh with pain;
But Night's dear music and her stars
Bring heaven near again,

We hear a wood-bird's tender song
Make holy all the wild;
See love of God in wayside flower,
And we are reconciled.

BERRY SPRING GINGER ALES

Your Choice of Golden or Pale Dry in Full Pint (16 oz.) and . . . Full Quart (32 oz.) Bottles

The toast "good health" is more than a courteous social gesture when drunk in a sparkling glass of Berry Spring Ginger Ale. Then it takes on especial significance. For here in this delightful beverage are the very health elements which help to turn the wish "good health" into a glowing reality. They are here not thru accident or happy inspiration, but rather as a result of infinite study and research, coupled with long experience in the art of fine beverage making.

. . . Ginger Root of best quality, imported direct from the isle of Jamaica—ground and percolated in our own laboratory.

. . . Pure flavors made from fresh fruit juices—no synthetic or artificial flavors are used.

. . . Fine granulated Sugar, such as you serve at your own table.

. . . Pure spring water, bubbling from the rocky depths of famed Berry Spring.

. . . Scientific carbonation secured by pure carbon dioxide gas.

. . . These are the ingredients which, carefully blended in correct proportions of an approved formula are aged to perfect flavor and wholesomeness, bottled in a sun-flooded, hygienic plant, aged again for further refinement of flavor and to give nature time to change the sugar content into that valuable health-property known as "invert sugar."

. . . These are the reasons for Berry Spring quality—the simple but important facts that account for its rare wholesomeness and healthfulness.

An economical price does not always go with superior quality. In the case of Berry Spring Ginger Ale, however, you are privileged to buy the finest of beverages at a modest price. For the Berry Spring idea of service to the public is twofold; (1st) to make the best ginger ales possible to produce; (2nd) to market these beverages so that every family may conveniently purchase them economically. Several thousand retail stores sell Berry Spring Beverages. There's a dealer near you.

Berry Spring Ginger Ales Contain Vitamins "B" and "C"

VITAMIN "B" is regarded as essential to normal appetite and growth . . . lack of it accounts very often for cases of dyspepsia, constipation and other intestinal troubles.

VITAMIN "C" is an important factor in the diet. Lack of it causes loss of vigor, vitality, stamina. It is especially valuable for the expectant or nursing mother.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

NEW ENGLAND FARM WAGES ARE HIGHEST

A favorable comparison between wages of hired farm hands and industrial wages for comparable work, when allowance is made for the various perquisites such as board, rent, food, etc., received by farm hands in addition to wages, is disclosed in a preliminary report of a survey by the bureau of agricultural seconomics, United States department of agriculture.

In the bureau's survey, 2,117 farm employes reported that the total average farm value of all perquisites was $30.34 per month, wages $46.44, or a total of $76.78. Should the farm value of perquisites, of which food is a large part, be expressed in terms of retail prices, the total of perquisites and cash would compare favorably and in some cases probably exceed wages for comparable labor in industrial employment.

By geographical divisions of the country, the survey shows the total monthly farm value of perquisites and wages to farm hands in the New England states at $88.15; Middle Atlantic states, $85.20; East North Central states, $78.60; West North Central, $78.21; South Atlantic, $59.78; East South Central $55.72; West South Central $63.47; Mountain states $90.94; and Pacific states $104.98

The American method of expressing farm wages may be responsible in a slight degeree for the undue emphasis often placed by the farm laborer on the relative superiority of city wages, expressed entirely on a cash basis, as compared with farm wages that consist so largely of non-cash items. On the other hand, farmers may at times fail to appreciate the possibilities of retaining capable laborers and keeping them contented by giving them perquisites which cost the farmer little.

U. S. HAS MANY BARRIERS AGAINST FOOT-AND-MOUTH

"It shall not pass," is the watchword of the United States department of agriculture with respect to foot-and-mouth disease, one of the world's most dreaded livestock diseases from which the United States fortunately is free. In a signed article issued May 1 to public officials and to the veterinary and livestock press, Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, discusses the present situation with special reference to the safeguards now in effect and to the possibility of future outbreaks.

The first line of defense, Doctor Mohler says, lies in a veterinary inspection and quarantine service. The precautionary measures to bar out the contagion extend not only to live animals but also to a great diversity of products of animal origin as well as to hay, straw, bags, bagging, and other articles commonly used on premises where livestock are kept

The second line of defense is a well-trained force of veterinarians experienced in detecting and eradicating the malady.

PROTEIN FEED FOR CATTLE

It is important to get a protein feed for cattle that will supply the nutrient most cheaply. This may be figured out by the percentage of protein and the price per ton. Wheat and rice bran and legume hays if of good quality, have a protein content of about 15 per cent, linseed meal about 35 per cent, and cottonseed meal from 36 to 50 per cent. Generally speaking, the higher grades of a certain feed are the most economical sources of protein.

BEST TIME TO CAPONIZE

The best time to caponize cockerels is when they are from 2 to 4 months old, or weigh from 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 pounds. For several months after being caponized they should be fed a good growing ration, not a fattening one. The ration may consist of whole grains, ground grains, or a combination of these.

DETERMINE GRAIN RATION

A good rule for determining the grain ration for a dairy cow is to give 1 pound of grain a day for every pound of butterfat produced in a week. Or, the grain mixture may be fed in the proportion of 1 pound to each three pints or pounds of milk produced daily. A cow producing 40 pounds or more should have a grain ration of 1 pound to each 3 1-2 or 4 pounds of milk.

KEEPING CITRUS FRUITS

Citrus fruits will keep in good condition several weeks after packing if decay can be prevented. They should be picked dry and kept dry. Washed fruit should be dried well before being packed. Mechanical injuries, bruises, and rough handling should be avoided in picking and packing, and any fruit showing incipient decay discarded.

INDISCRIMINATE KILLING OF CROWS NOT WARRANTED

What a crow eats or does not eat is the first question to be answered in any inquiry into its economic status, says the United States department of agriculture.

Examinations by the biological survey of the stomachs of 2,000 crows, killed in 40 states, the District of Columbia and several Canadian provinces, indicates that about 28 per cent of the yearly food of the adult crow is animal matter. In this are found insects, spiders, snails, the remains of reptiles, amphibians, wild birds and their eggs, poultry and their eggs, small mammals and carrion.

Only about a third of 1 per cent of the animal food of adult crows and 1.4 per cent of that of nestlings, is derived from wild birds and their eggs, although bird lovers complain frequently of this type of injury.

The favorite mammal food of crows is young rabbits, and in such control of these and other rodent pests the crow supplements the good work of hawks and owls. More than half of the 72 per cent of vegetable food of the adult crow, however, is corn.

The offenses of which the crow has been accused outnumber its credits for good deeds, but this does not mean that all are equal in importance. Many of the crow's depredations may be lessened or entirely prevented by protective measures, though the good work it does in preying on insects can ill be spared. Indiscriminate killing, therefore, is not warranted, says the biological survey. Preventive measures will often put a stop to the nuisance and allow the bird to continue its good work with insects. For example, coal tar or other deterrents may be used on seedgrain. Grain may be scattered sparingly over parts of fields where crows have been found feeding on the sprouting crop. "Scarecrows" and bodies of dead crows may be put up conspicuously. Where it can be used safely with respect to poultry and livestock, strychnine-poisoned grain is effective.

Searchers in the Deorville cedar swamp's dry area, for pink moccasin flower Thursday were rewarded with a plentiful find. All along the border of the damp sections there were many blossoms of trillium and star flower. Some are the star flower, give it a casual glance, and mistake it for the wind flower (anemone), which is now done with its blossom mission until another spring comes. Some in the schools are starting out with their first herbarium, and will find plenty of business to identify the local summer floral pageant of over 200 flowers.

To local young men planning to try the next examination for the airmail service, the following cutting from a letter in the current Railway Post Office, should be of some interest.

Future Mail Service.

By M. Howseman, St. Louis, Mo.

It involves no strain on the imagination to visualize an immense expansion of the rail mail service within the next few years. Mighty air cruisers, with dependability and regularity, carrying tons upon tons of first-class mail, will hurtle through space at incredible speed upon a network of air routes extending from coast to coast and from border to border of our country. Undoubtedly, limited distribution will be performed in planes during transit.

Some have thought, upon reading in the advertisements that appear in this column, which have stated that delinquent taxpayers will be charged interest on noverdue taxes, that such regulations were optional with the collector. Such is not the case. If he does not charge the interest prescribed in such cases, he violates the law.

Dairy farming has invaded one of the south's leading cotton strongholds, eastern Texas.

Burgess Bedtime Story

What Peter Rabbit Would Have Seen

Have you a secret? Guard it well;
Tell one and all the world you tell.
—Mrs. Grebe.

Never is it wise to jump to conclusions. Peter Rabbit had jumped to conclusions. He had discovered Mrs. Grebe sitting on a little mound of dead rushes, grass and moss out in the water, and had at once been sure that he had found her nest. Of course, he couldn't be sure, but he thought that if she would leave the nest—if nest it was—he might be able to see the eggs and then he would be sure. He had thumped, as only Peter can thump. Instantly Mrs. Grebe had made a few quick motions with her head and had slipped off into the water and disappeared. To his great disappointment, Peter couldn't see any eggs. A few minutes later Redwing the Blackbird had alighted on that same little mound, and it was clear from Redwing's actions that he didn't see any eggs. So Peter had jumped to the conclusion that he had been mistaken and that was not Mrs. Grebe's nest at all. So he had given up and gone on home.

Now, had Peter remained and kept watch, he would have seen something that would have repaid him for his patience. For some time after Redwing flew away that little mound remained just as it was. Then, without warning, a head came up out of the water, close to that little mound. It was the head of Mrs. Grebe. She had come by swimming under water. Mrs. Grebe looked this way looked that way and looked the other way. Satisfied that no one was watching her, she climbed up on that little mound. For a moment she stood on the edge of it. Then with her bill she began to toss aside loose material and in a moment there were six eggs in the very middle of that mound. She looked at them with pride. Then she settled herself on them.

"Is everything all right, my dear?" he inquired.

"No one has discovered the nest yet," thought Mrs. Grebe. "I saw Redwing the Blackbird alight on here, but he didn't discover that it was my nest. He thought it was just another one of these little mounds around here. This is what comes of covering up the eggs. I never would leave this nest without covering those eggs thoroughly. It is no trouble at all and it certainly does save a lot of worry. I can't understand why other birds don't do the same thing. I suppose that some of them that nest in bushes and trees cannot. Any bird nesting on the ground ought to be able to cover the eggs. They are foolish if they don't. I wonder where Dipper is."

As if in answer, another head suddenly appeared above the water, close to the nest. It was the head of Mr. Grebe. He had a billful of moss. He tucked it into the side of the nest. "Is everything all right, my dear?" he inquired.

Mrs. Grebe nodded. "Everything is quite all right," said she. "There was a strange noise over here a while ago and I thought it wise to leave the nest. But, of course, I covered up the eggs first. I don't think any one has found our nest yet."

"That's good," replied Dipper. "I guess I'll go back to the Smiling Pool. If two of us should be seen here at the same time, our secret might be suspected. Goodby, my dear."

Dipper disappeared as suddenly as if he had been pulled under water by something beneath. When he reappeared he was out in the Smiling Pool. He had, of course, traveled under water. There he swam about and dived and fished and seemed to have not a care in the world. Mrs. Grebe sat on the nest and dreamed of the family that would be hers by and by.

WESTERLY

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN ALLEGED THEFT OF ICE

"We find that the defendant did not promise to pay," said Foreman Frederick D. Johnson of Peacedale, in the suit begun last Friday afternoon by Lloyd H. Cheseborough of Wequetequock against Amelio Matarese of Westerly to collect for fifty tons of ice at $2 a ton, alleged taken from the burned Wequetequock ice house, July 9-10, 1923. Thus the sealed verdict reached by a jury in Washington county superior court Monday, was announced Thursday morning for Mr. Matarese in the concluding session this week of Washington county superior court, Associate Justice Antonio A. Capotosto of Providence on the bench.

Judge Capotosto announced that he would open the superior court term for Bristol county Monday next and that the Westerly court sitting would be suspended until he had finished in that county when he would return to Westerly to hear cases in equity, divorce, and restraining orders for persons passing along Ocean Drive at Narragansett Pier and elsewhere. The judged thanked the jurymen and directed that they be paid and discharged with the exception of the jurymen on the panel of the suit Fred T. Baker vs. John R. Armstrong started Monday.

Baker Allowed $500

In the Baker-Armstrong action at law to collect the sum of $31185 for services rendered by the plaintiff to Mrs. Sarah Tefft of Wakefield, R. I., Attorney Stephen J. Casey made his plea for the plaintiff and Col. J. H. Quinn for the defendant Wednesday befor adjournment for the day. Thursday morning Judge Capotosto charged the jury beginning at 11:30 and closing at 11:45, the jury retiring at 11:50.

At 2.45 p. m. the jury returned to the courtroom when Foreman Walter Rodman announced judgment for the plaintiff that Mrs. Sarah Tefft did promise payment and they awarded Baker $500. The jurymen were paid off and discharged.

OFT-CONTINUED CASE IS FINALLY DEFAULTED

Previous to the return of the jury cases were disposed of as follows:

A default was entered in the case of Joseph Pickering vs. J. Edward Stenhouse, when Pickering took the stand to prove claim. A judgment was given in the sum of $100 and added interest amounted to $107.55. The suit was for taxi fares and money advanced, the case having had 15 continuances in the third district court and being assigned in superior court Sept. 27, 1928, April 15 -May 6 and May 13, 1929.

George E Money vs. Thomas H. Barber, set down for trial on June 3rd, or such other date as court may determine.

Judge Capotosto recommended an extra effort to settle the action at law John Gabrielle vs. Frank Brocato, saying that if he came down to Westerly in the September term he did not wish to see the case on the docket.

Seaweed Privileges

May 22, George F. Champlin of Avondale, R. I., transferred to the Watch Hill Beach association, seaweed privileges at Watch Hill, one-half ownership, conveyed in two deeds one from William D. Potter under date of Jan. 3, 1868, and the second from Edward F. Vose, April 3, 1869.

Westerly Scottish Rite Mas ns attended Wednesday evening the annual meeting at Freemasons' hall, Providence, of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite, Valley of Providence, when reports were read and officers re-elected with William L. Refreshments were served at the close of the work.

Improving Detention Room

Under direction of Joseph Fraser committee of the Westerly town council, and supervision of Custodian Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell, Alexander Mitchel and helper Thursday began the work of removing a granite ashlar in the foundation wall on the Union street side of the county courthouse and of Westerly town hall. The stone was taken out just below the window of the sheriff's office and was the beginning of setting a new window to give added light and ventilation in the women's detention rooms, connected with the Westerly police station. This was preliminary to the action of the town council in ordering for the police committee of the council, Rogers E. Trainer, chairman, a more sanitary and proper detention room for women and minors. The room will be repainted and refurnished.

About 7:35 a. m. Thursday on Main street, a Ford dump truck driven by Willard P. Hall of Avondale was in collision with a Dodge commercial truck of Henry A Stahle the latter being driven by Harvey W. Included in the program there was aesthetic, acrobatic and tap dancing, and the various numbers were roundly applauded. POETRY

Reverse

The pleasant art of self-restraint
Cannot be too carefully taught
And that is what—maybe—sometimes
So very hard to do.
You meet a man you think you'll like
But, oh, his language flows
And pretty soon you find that he
Has told you all he knows.

The wisest man is he who knows
When he has said enough;
Who does not run by too much talk,
The risk of a rebuff.
However much a man may know,
His eloquence may pall;
I like a man who knows a lot,
And does not tell it all!

—Somerville Journal.

Modern Bloser

He was of an old mind,
And so would have preferred
Conscience less kind
Around him when he erred;
Darker wires to bind
The scarcely caged bird.

Such wings as now he wore
Were lifted quite in vain
Without a narrow door
To take them in again,
And shut, and hide the sore
No probing would explain.

For still he could be healed
And try another flight.
Now all was sunny field,
With never a stroke of slight,
So wearily he wheeled
Into the endless white.

DANIELSON

HARRINGTON RETURNED TO NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 23—Everett Harrington went back to the Norwich state hospital today after an absence from that institution that dates back to last November. He was not too pleased to be returned, judging from his remark in the town court that he preferred to be committed to the state prison. He was given no option in the matter, however, notwithstanding, in the opinion of Prosecuting Attorney A. G. Bill that he was liable to be presented in the superior court under the habitual criminal act with the possibility of facing a long time behind prison bars.

Harrington, who escaped from the Norwich institution last fall, seemed rational enough this morning. Among other things he talked about was the great amount of publicity he has received, first and last since 1924, over the episode in which it is alleged that he attempted to force Edwin Pinkham of East Killingly to dig his own grave. "That's a lot of newspaper talk," Harrington declared, but against this declaration stands the record of the investigating state police officers and the fact that Harrington was committed to the state hospital on account of it.

Harrington's mental angle may be indicated by quoting his remark that he would rather be in the state prison than in the state hospital because it would not be so easy for him to get out of prison.

His trip back to Norwich was one in which he was personally conducted by State Officer Elton Nolan. With them went Louis Gorigianni, the youth who has been Harrington's companion in his raids and other activities during the past three weeks, ship, the pair were making their headquarters at a shack near Old Killingly pond. Judge W. Penner Woodward in the town court this morning ordered Gorigianni committed to the State School for Boys at Meriden until he is 21 years of age. He is now either 14 or 15, according to varying accounts. After entering Harrington at Norwich, State Officer Nolan took Gorigianni on to Meriden.

TEXTILE PRODUCTS SHOW SLATED FOR JUNE 13, 14, 15

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 23—Every indication points to the third biennial textile products show to be held at the state armory here on June 13, 14 and 15 being a success greater than those achieved at the two previous exhibits of the kind, held here in 1925 and 1927. As in the previous instances, the coming exhibit is to be under the auspices of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association.

Prentice W. Chase of Jewett City, secretary of the association, is authority for this statement. Only nine exhibit spaces remain available at this time. The member mills are entering into the spirit of the promotion as they have in former years, and this is of special interest to machinery manufacturers and allied industries. Incidentally, it is of interest to everyone who lives in southern New England and appreciates how important the textile industry is to this section of the country.

The exhibit to be held here is not primarily for financial gain, but an honest effort on the part of the association to stimulate interest in eastern Connecticut made textiles, and as an education to the general public not engaged in the industry, to show what actually takes place in the process of manufacture. No section of the country can boast of as varied and as high quality fabrics in cotton, wooled, worsted, silks, drapes, velvets, rayons and various other lines of textiles as does eastern Connecticut.

In addition to other machinery in actual operation, there will be three looms, each of the latest type, and each weaving an entirely different fabric at the textile exhibition. This in itself is a highly interesting feature.

The exhibitors who have been allotted space to date are: Ashland Cotton Co., Jewett City; Quinebaug Co., Danielson; Foneman Mills, Taftville; Wauregan Co., Wauregan; Wauregan Mill Bar, Wauregan; Central Worsted Co., Central Village; Powdrell and Alexander, Inc., Danielson, Attawaugan, Baltic, Jewett City and Pineville; Veeder-Root Co., Hartford; E. H. Jacobs Co., Danielson; U. S. Ring Traveler Co., Providence; Whitin Machine Co., Whitinsville, Mass.; Draper corporation, Hopedale, Mass.; Stafford Loom Works, Readville, Mass.; Crompton and Knowles Loom Works, Worcester, Mass.; Shambow Shuttle Co., Worcester, Mass.; Plain Dyeing and Processing Co., Central Falls, R. I.; Bradford Soap Works, Inc., Providence, R. I.; Walter Anderson, Danielson; Assawaugs Co., Doyville; New York and New Jersey Lubricant Co., New York; Battery Camp Fund, state armory, Danielson; Association Headquarters, Fibre and Fabric and Danielson chamber of commerce.

It is a matter of interest that negotiations are underway for Governor Trumbull to be present on one evening during the exhibition, as he was two years ago, and address those in attendance.

The bearers were Hollis Bass, Waterloo, Mass., a half-brother of Mrs. Tubbs, Charles Hull of Springfield, a nephew, William McEwen, Henry McEwen, Hayes McEwen, relatives, and Kent A. Carble. A. F. WELL KNOWN BUSINESS MAN TO RETIRE SOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 23—It was announced today that F. E. Bitgood, because of impaired health, is to dispose of his business interests here and retire. Mr. Bitgood has one of the oldest established business enterprises in Danielson. He came here as a youth from the town of Sterling, worked in the Leavens store for a number of years, then entered a partnership, dealing in dry goods and kindred lines and eventually engaged in business on his own account. The 37th anniversary sale of his own enterprise was observed in the fall of last year. Mr. Bitgood during his long term of commercial activities here became one of the best known business men in this section of the state, and retains that distinction. He feels, however that the time has come to retire from the cares and worries attendant upon conducting in a personal way a large business enterprise and so will retire from the field. He will retain, however, his connection with local banking institutions and other more personal interests. Mr. Bitgood has been one of the most successful of the business men who have been engaged in commercial pursuits here during the past two score years.

It is a matter of passing interest that Danielson, as a whole takes the cling of its streets more complacently each spring season than was the case in the old days. There are various reasons for this, and among them the fact that it is done more rapidly and more efficiently than in the past. The day several of Danielson's streets in the central section received their annual baths of the oil. A force of men covered the oil just about as fast as it was applied, and within a day or two the benefits derived will be in evidence.

M. H. Berthiaume, Nathan Blumenthal, G. Rene Caron and Sidney P. Marland were in Hartford today attending a session of the state chamber of commerce.

Miss Madelyn Veronica Cronin, daughter of Michael Cronin of Academy street, is to be graduated on Tuesday, June 4, from the college of Mt. St. Vincent, on the Hudson. The conferring of degrees is to be His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes. Relatives from Danielson will be in attendance.

The Resence this evening at Wildwood park of the Cliquot Club Eskimos attracted an unusually large attendance for the concert and dance.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, who has been a patient in a Worcester hospital the past seven weeks, has returned to her home in Brooklyn, and is much improved in health.

All of the subordinate granges in this section will be represented at the meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange with Highland grange in South Killingly Saturday evening. A supper, at 6 o'clock, is to precede the business session scheduled for 7:30, all events being scheduled on standard time.

Preparations are complete for the trip of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. track and field team to Wesleyan field, Middletown, Saturday for the State Y. M. C. A. meet. The Windham county entries are in good condition and are expected to make a good showing.

A group of Danielson's business men, members of the chamber of commerce, were in conference last evening over ways and means of co-operating with the Eastern Connecticut Mills association during that organization's textile and silk show at the state armory here in June.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing has prepared a list of suggestions for increasing the potato yield in this county, and growers of this vegetable will find them of value.

Director H. H. Ellis of the State Trade school at Putnam was in Danielson on a business trip this afternoon.

Judge James N. Tucker of East Killingly, keeper of a daily record for a long term of years, says that he has Providence weather official to the effect that there has been a deficiency of temperature during May, as against the statement of a weather official in Boston that there has been an excess of temperature. To date, Judge Tucker says, he estimates the month, as to being warm or cold, about an average one, though there has been an excessive amount of rain.

Painted bands, showing safety zones for crossing the street in the business section, have worn so dim, they barely can be seen, and a result is that many drivers park on these crossovers, and that persons cross the street about anywhere.

St. Theresa's Guard of Honor in fancy drill, followed by whist, Town hall, Sat. evening.—Adv.

The Danish scientific ship Dana has found two unusual specimens of deep sea fish in Australian waters. One is the female deep sea angler, her mouth is of extraordinary size and she carries the male angler, a tiny fish in comparison to her, own flesh attached to her body. The other is a lantern fish, a habitant of depths where it is believed no daylight penetrates. The fish has its own phosphorescent lights, strung along its side like a row of portholes on a steamer.

PUTNAM

MONTGOMERY WARD CO. TO HAVE STORE IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 23—Charles A. Seder, local business man and owner of the Central block on Main street, which is soon to be razed and a new business block erected in its place, today confirmed the report that he had signed a lease for the Montgomery Ward & Co. mail order merchants of Chicago, to the effect that the merchandise house shall occupy a total of 26,000 square feet of the new two-story brick and steel block to be erected on the site of the Central block.

Plans for the construction of the new block were drawn up by a Worcester firm of architects had been submitted to bids and work on the new building will be rushed as soon as contracts have been awarded. Cast stone, brick and steel will comprise the exterior finishing and the interior will be finished in wood, placing the structure in the semi-fireproof type of building. The building will be of two stories in height on Main street, by reason of a rise on Pomfret street, there will be three stories on this frontage.

For several months stories have been circulated about the city to the effect that the Chicago firm had made negotiations for the establishment of a branch store in the proposed Seder block. For nearly two months Mr. Seder remained non-committal on the subject. The new store, it is said, will carry a complete line of merchandise, much on the same order as the line of necessities contained in the mail order catalogue, only on a smaller scale.

NEW CORPORATION TO RUN WILSONVILLE MILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 23—It was announced yesterday that two Webster men with Edward J. Keegan of Wilsonville are to form a corporation to operate a mill in Wilsonville. The transaction when completed will involve about $100,000.

The men entering into business with Mr. Keegan are Clarence E. Cleveland, former general manager of the Intervale mills of Webster and Quinebaug, Conn., and James P. Bergin, town treasurer of Webster.

The Lawrence Keegan mills have been operated by Edward Keegan since the death of his father. An industrial slump in this branch of manufacturing that has in a general way affected many mills in New England has been felt by the Wilsonville plant, since the mills have operated only on a part time schedule for several months. It was learned today that the plant will be operated on a full time schedule within a few weeks if the corporation proceedings are completed. Employment will be given to about 100 or more operatives. Included in the deal are 22 tenement houses that will be taken over by the corporation.

About a month ago attachment proceedings were instituted against the eKegan estate and to meet the demand of a shortage held by a Webster bank the mill was offered for sale at a sheriff's auction and was purchased by Mr. Keegan for a large amount. The fact that the new organization is now being formed which will result in operation of the plant being resumed is received with joy to many who will find employment opportunities there.

Mr. Cleveland, through many years of experience in the textile world, is an expert in this line and his name is well known in New England woolen manufacturing circles. The ability of Mr. Keegan as a mill man is also recognized throughout the state. Mr Bergin is a well known resident of Webster and was a candidate for treasurer of Massachusetts on the democratic ticket last fa'.

PRICES OF STOCKS REBOUNDED, BUT TRADING WAS IN MODERATE VOLUME

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP)—Stock prices rebounded sharply today from the bottom struck in yesterday's violent collapse, but trading was in moderate volume, and the upturns were regarded as primarily a readjustment of technical conditions rather than any revival of speculative confidence.

The Associated Press indices indicated that more than half of yesterday's losses were regained but total sales of 2,514,320 shares were about 1,000,000 less than yesterday's turnover. The rise was facilitated by the liberation of a large supply of funds in the shakeout. Call money renewed at 9 per cent, and held at that rate all day, and funds were available in the outside market at 5 1-2 per cent during most of the day. Time money, however, still held around 8 per cent.

Although it was the publication of the federal reserve advisory council's recommendation for higher rediscount rates that prompted traders to pound their holdings on the market yesterday, the New York bank announced no change in its 5 per cent rate after the weekly directors' meeting. The federal reserve board met simultaneously in Washington with Secretary Mellon in attendance and Wall street was inclined to the belief that a higher rate had again been held up there.

Wall street now believes that a 6 per cent rediscount rate within the near future is a certainty, and is only waiting to have it done and over with. It is pointed out, however, that the recent violent liquidation has probably released a store of funds large enough to satisfy the reserve officials temporarily, particularly in view of the fact that Bank of England announced no change in its rediscount rate this morning and a higher rate here would undoubtedly threaten its gold reserves.

The weekly federal reserve broker's loan compilation showed a reduction of $45,000,000, but as yesterday's transactions were not completed until today, the additional reduction resulting from the severe break will not appear until next week's figures are published. The total of brokers' loans as of last night was $3,520,000,000, which is $235,000,000 less than the record total of March 29 and about $1,000,000,000 more than the total a year ago, when action to reduce the volume was first being considered by banking authorities.

The day's business news continued generally favorable, including a 50 per cent stock dividend by Borg Warner and a five-for-one split up by Packard. Reports from the reparations conference, however, were less cheerful, and it was feared in automobile circles that stock market losses may have an adverse effect upon sales.

Much of the day's rally was attributed to shorts who covered on the theory that a higher bank rate had already been largely discounted marketwise, and that in any case the increased rate probably would be deferred, in view of the fact that the London rate was unchanged. There was also a feeling that the market was oversold, and investment trust and bargain-hunting buying was in evidence.

The utilities were prominent in the upturn, making up most of their losses. Columbia Gas rose more than 4 points to a new high, and American Power and Foreign Power and American Power and Light rose about 6 points and Commonwealth Power 10. General Electric mounted about 10 points. Allied Chemical and Packard about 3. National Cash Register 4, and such shares as New York Central, American Can, Radio, U. S. Steel and Chesapeake and Ohio 4 points and more. General Motors rallied about 3 points. There were a few soft spots. Adams Express appearing on the tape for the first time this week, tumbling 53 points, and Case Threshing dropping 18. Detroit Edison, Jewel Tea, Industrial Rayon and Phillips Jones sold off 3 to 5 points in small turnovers. Studebaker touched a new low at 74, but regained its loss.

The statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank, furthermore, showed such an exceptionally strong condition that a higher rate just at this time might have been difficult to justify. The bank's ratio of total reserves to deposit and federal reserve note liabilities combined was 84.4 per cent, as compared with 72.5 per cent, a year ago, and a legal minimum of only 40 per cent. The New York city banks during the week reduced their borrowings at the reserve institution by $35,000,000 to $111,000,000, less than half their borrowings of $230,000,000 a year ago.

Commodities moved in comparatively narrow ranges. Wheat dropped about a cent a bushel, but made up its loss on reports of unfavorable weather in Canada. Corn closed a little higher on reports of rains and delays in seeding. Cotton futures were steady.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to heaviness, reflecting the high rates for time money here. Sterling cables touched a new low for the movement at $4.84 7-8.

PNEUMONIA RELIEF FOUND IN USE OF GAS

NEW HAVEN, (AP)—The use of carbon dioxide to inflate collapsed lungs in the treatment of pneumonia has been found effective in experimental research.

Experiments with dogs prove that lung collapse is a vital factor in pneumonia and that inhalation of the gas will counteract the effects by opening up closed areas.

What effect the results will have in the treatment of pneumonia in man is not predicted. If clinical pneumonia is not promised relief similar to that demonstrated in experimental infection, it is at least believed that a new field with many possibilities has been opened.

Research was carried on by Yandell Henderson of Yale university in collaboration with G. L. Birnbaum, P. N. Corylios, H. W. Haggard, and E. M. Radloff.

Carbon dioxide, commonly known for its use in soda water, had earlier been demonstrated as effective in forestalling the development of pneumonia in patients who developed collapse of the lungs after surgical operatons.

The present experiments go one step further to show that the gas is effective in clearing up closed areas after pneumonia infections has developed.

The action of the gas is to induce deep breathing.

Two Million Sans Books.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Two million persons in Illinois have no access to public libraries, according to M. F. Gallagher, Chicago attorney, who is chairman of the legislative committee of the Illinois Library association. Public libraries in Illinois now have more registered borrowers than the number of children in public schools.

SCHOOL BELLS RINGING FOR ADULTS IN LOUISIANA

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Adult response to school bells leads Louisiana educators to predict that the state soon will pull away from its bottom position in national adult illiteracy statistics.

Communities in all but five of the state's 64 parishes have organized classes for adult illiterates.

Mothers, educators say, have constituted the greatest number of students in the night classes.

TEXAN'S FARM TESTED FOR ARTICHOKE GROWTH

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Experiments to determine whether the Jerusalem Mammoth French artichoke can be raised successfully in Texas have been started on Jay Wills' farm near here.

Wills is operating under direction of the United States department of agriculture. The artichoke is grown extensively in Wisconsin, the tuber for human consumption and the tops for livestock food.

TREMBLORS A LA CARTE FOR 'QUAKE STUDENTS

NEW YORK (AP)—A thrill was furnished the Seismological Society of America, eastern section, at its annual meeting here.

"Just before the meeting ended," reports the Rev. J. V. Bridgman, S. J., of Fordham university, where the scientists gathered, "nature showed her interest by furnishing a major earthquake on the eastern shore of the Caspian sea. The disturbance was recorded on Fordham instruments.

"The seismologists were at a loss to know whether mother earth was snapping her fingers in disdain or giving them a complimentary wave."

The Bedroom

The lovely Bedroom is a fine example of modern decorative ideas. A graceful French Vanity, a Spacious Chest, and an exquisite Bed, all in genuine Walnut Veneer, with Chair and Bench to match, are the foundation. For comfort a fine quality Layerfelt Mattress and high grade Coil Spring are included. The Boudoir Chair, in a choice of colorful coverings, adds a sparkling touch to the room—as do the Boudoir and Bed Lamps, with attractive shades. A fine Rayon Bed Spread, Night Table, 2 feather Pillows and a genuine Carpet Rug complete the grouping $176

The Living Room

The Heart of the Home is the Living Room. It must be cozy, comfortable, inviting, which is just what this one is. The luxuriously upholstered Settee and Club Chair, in high quality Jacquard coverings form the basis of the room. A pull-up Chair adds the different touch—while a Console Table and Mirror make a decorative corner or wall. Two wrought iron Lamps, with beautiful shades shed a soft light. Book Ends, Table Scarfs, 2 Sofa Pillows, Smoking Stand and Magazine Rack are the accessories completing the room, while a Carpet Rug covers the floor $178

The Dining Room

The Dining Room is another instance of the modern idea of grouping furniture for the maximum beauty and utility. It is primarily a room in which to dine—but a beautiful room too. A Large Buffet, a well designed, sturdy Extension Table in Walnut Veneer are the main pieces. Host Chair and 5 Guest Chairs in a choice of Jacquard Coverings, well upholstered; an unusual Buffet Mirror; a 3-Pc. Console Set, Fruit Bowl and 2 Candle Sticks; Table Scarf; a complete Dinner Service for 12 people—100 pieces; a room size Carpet Rug make up the dining room $173

The Kitchen

Designed for long service—easy to keep clean, neat and wholesome, the Kitchen is an exceptionally attractive one. The first necessity is, of course, a Gas Range—this one in white enamel with all modern labor and time-saving devices. The Porcelain Top Table is large and like the two bow-back Chairs in shining white enamel. A fine food-protecting Refrigerator, a 32-Pc. Breakfast Service, and a cheerful room-size Congoleum Rug complete the Kitchen. A convenient work place—a cheerful room $68

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Norwich Choral Society

The following will be of interest to those who expect to hear tonight among other fine works, presented by the Norwich Choral society, Coleridge-Taylor's cantata "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," in which Arthur Hackett will sing the tenor solo.

Coleridge-Taylor was born 1875 in London, England. He is, or rather was a mulatto, for he died in 1912, his father having been a full blooded African, while his mother was an English woman. The father was a highly educated man; he soon recognized the boy's talent for music, and had him start the study of the violin at the age of six. The boy kept the promise, taking all sorts of prizes and finally winning a scholarship at the Royal Conservatory of Music. He won several prizes for composition. A symphony was performed, also a number of compositions for violin; but he became first much spoken of as the composer of "the African Lovesongs" and his "Hiawatha Sketches," Jagoo, Chibiabos, Panpuk keewis", the words for which were from Longfellow's famous poem. In 1898 he brought out the cantata, which made him known throughout the musical world.

Critics agree that he is one of the best and most original composers England has produced.

Arthur Hackett's American record is quite an enviable one, in the field of oratorio and concert and as an orchestral soloist. In 1916 the critical attention of the Boston press and wider public was attracted to the young artist through his debut with the Boston Symphony orchestra, with which organization he has since made 32 appearances at its regular concerts in Boston, New York and other cities, singing under Conductors Muck, Raboud, Monteux and Koussewitzky.

In December 1927, Mr. Hackett had the honor of singing for the first time under the distinguished Russian conductor's baton, and after the rehearsal Mr. Koussewitzky expressed himself so delighted with the tenor's voice, and musicianship, that he immediately re-engaged him to create the role of "Oedipus" in the American premiere of the opera-oratorio "Oedipus Rex" by Stravinsky, which he presented with the Boston Symphony in February 1928, and which has created such great stir in Boston, New York, and several European cities.

During the years when Mr. Hackett has thus been proving his wide appeal to American audiences he has always been admired as the possessor of a tenor voice of purest quality, rich true, resonant and of wide range. To this natural endowment he has added a long and solid technical training.

Capitol Theatre Willimantic.

The entire projection equipment at the Capitol theater which has been in use is now dismantled and replaced by the latest and finest equipment money can buy. The work is being done by acoustical experts, engineers, electricians and carpenters, who are busily engaged in their task for the grand opening of this popular playhouse with R. C. A. Photophone. Audiences everywhere have hailed the outstanding features of this new system of sound reproduction as giving absolutely life-like rendition of music and speech in talking motion pictures. Radio experts have given the R. C. A. Photophone the latest acoustical achievements brought about through a unique method of photographing sound and motion on the same film as an assurance of perfect synchronization of action and speech. Sounds are given their relative tonal values without the flatness of music, or speech that heretofore has characterized sound reproduction in motion pictures.

Manager George A. Bartlett of the Capitol theatre predicts that in the future audiences at the theater will be astounded with the vast progress made in talking motion pictures as displayed by this new device. Manager Bartlett said: "The R. C. A. Photophone system will permit us to offer a new and revolutionary form of entertainment to our audience." Sound-motion picture entertainment will begin in the Capitol theater on Saturday, May 25.

The sword salute originated in the time of the crusaders when the hilt of the sword was made in the form of a cross. Every crusader kissed the cross as a seal of his purpose and faith and swore by the hilt of the sword, raising it to his lips for that purpose. Another custom passed down to the ages from the crusaders, and one that has been a custom in all Christian navies since then, is that of placing an officer's cap and sword on his coffin during burial services. The crusader's shield and arms covered him in death.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

The management of the Broadway theatre will entertain the Boy Scouts of Norwich under the charge of Scoutmaster Fred J. Billefield, Jr. The attraction they will witness is "The Dummy" with Mickey Bennett and Ruth Chatterton and a big cast.

The manager at the Broadway has always been in harmony with the Boy Scout organization and avails himself of every opportunity of serving them. The Dummy is now running at the Broadway and being enjoyed by the little folk as well as the older ones.

The troups which will be represented are United Congregational church, Norwich Town M. E. church, Taftville Congregational church, St. Patrick's R. C. church, Trinity M. E. church, Laurel Hill, First Baptist church, Sacred Heart church, Park Congregational church and the Third Baptist church numbering about 200 boys in all.

"The Dummy" is, first of all, a comedy and the ruse by which the "deaf and dumb" office boy gets his job in the detective's office is an uproariously funny one.

Mickey Bennett does some excellent pantomime as the deaf and dumb rich boy trying to be kidnaped by the desperate gang.

The discovery of the detective's disguise and the fight which ensues is a great climax in a picture filled with excitement.

Sharp voices, hysterical cries, the falling bodies furnish real hot melodramatic situations as the clever office boy gets the drop on the gang in the mountain cabin.

Breed Theatre

A battery of twelve cameras filmed thrilling sea sequences in "Scarlet Seas," the latest Richard Barthelmess-First National picture coming to the Breed theatre Sunday.

These cameras were chained down and weighted, each manned by three men, and occupied strange and odd places in order to get the extraordinary effects. Cameras were secured to the mast, some on a barge, some on the deck and some atop the cabin of the "Southern Cross," a 1200-ton ship which was set afire in mid-sea, and a charge of dynamite exploded in the middle of the ship. Knowing that the scene could not be retaken, Director John Francis Dillon spent two days in preparation, and the cameras were securely fastened before he gave the order "Camera."

The result of this scene is an unusually dramatic one brimming with action and thrills and what is heralded as the most thrilling sea scenes ever filmed.

Firestone Tires

The last word in tires, the new Firestone Supreme Balloon, has arrived and is on display at the Goldberg Rubber Tire Co., local Firestone dealer.

"By far the most outstanding tire ever purchased," says Mr. Goldberg.

"The experience of twenty-nine years of tire building has been utilized in the construction of the New Supreme. In planning, Firestone engineers were told to forget price—but remember value—and build a tire that would be so outstanding in performance and looks that it would set a new standard for the entire industry. We feel that they have succeeded in the highest degree.

"Looking back a few years we recall the old fabric tire that gave 3,000 or or 4,000 miles of doubtful service. Then came the cord tire—a great improvement over the square-woven fabric casing that immediately preceded it. Soon afterwards Firestone brought out the Gum-Dipped Balloon. Now the New Supreme—larger, tougher, added endurance and extraordinary beauty for those who demand the best.

"The Supreme Tube is equally as outstanding as the tire. It is a deep blue color, and Circular Molded fitting the casing perfectly."

TWO HOUSES ROBBED OF MONEY AND JEWELRY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONLON, May 23—Two robberies yesterday afternoon and last night netted burglars money and jewelry to the amount of $500, at the home of Charles H. Wood in Jefferson avenue and during the early evening hours at the home of Mrs. Lena E. Coombs, 48 Golden street. Mrs. Wood upon returning to her home from a short visit next door discovered the house ransacked and about $40 in money, several bank books and articles of jewelry missing. As there was no evidence of a break when the police investigated, the assumption is that the thief entered the dwelling through the front door. The Golden street robbery happened at about 11 o'clock last night. Every room in the home had been ransacked and around $50 in money, two watches, a diamond ring, a diamond lavaliere and several articles of clothing were stolen.

The latter robbery is suspected as having been perpetrated by a man who was rooming in the house and who took his departure during the absence of Mrs. Coombs. It is understood that a taxi driver took the man from the house last night to Union station where he boarded a train for Providence.

MOTHER OF SEVEN DIES—HUSBAND ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 23—Louis Cardello, 12 Elizabeth street, made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide at Lawrence-Memorial hospital last night, inflicting a knife wound to his throat a few minutes following the death of his wife. The wound was a superficial one and Cardello was prevented from making additional wounds, his weapon, a jackknife, being taken from him. Cardello went to the hospital last evening when his wife's condition became such that indicated that she would survive but a short time. While seated beside his wife and when the woman breathed her last, Cardello pulled his knife from his pocket and attempted to plunge the blade into his neck. His aim was poor, for only a surface wound was made. The knife was taken from Cardello, who then went to his home where he is left with seven children to care for. Mrs. Cardello was operated upon earlier in the week.

Jail, Sentences for Drink

Today was drunks day in the police court for as a result of an attempt being made by the police to rid the streets, particularly, Water, North Bank, John and Douglass streets, of a gang of inebriates who loiter on those highways after indulging in drinking parties, eleven men faced Deputy Judge John McGarry when the police court convened. Of this number, six were arrested yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Dennis Murphy. A laborer employed at Fishers Island who was fined $10 in court yesterday for intoxication, was there again today for he proceeded to become drunk immediately after his fine was paid by his brother. Today he was sentenced to three months in jail. The brother, who upbraided his kin for becoming drunk yesterday, today faced the court and he was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Another man, a resident of Bedford, Me., declared that he obtained his liquor at the store of John Quinn, a cripple, corner of Atlantic and Potter streets who has a long record for violation of the liquor law, Quinn was arrested today, but in court his accuser failed to identify the cripple as the man who sold him the liquor, so Quinn was discharged. New York raved about Chevalier. He dazzled packed houses at Ziegfeld's famous Midnight Frolic.

"The show was completely paralyzed, stopped dead still by a performer, Chevalier—What a debut!"—The Morning Telegraph.

"He works with the vigor of the jester who is having a delightful time of it himself and gets the usual reward of good will. His first grin caught the audience."—The New York Sun.

"A charming personality, a delightful voice and a dynamic quality are the attributes which will keep M. Chevalier packing them in—"—The New York Evening Post.

You will rave about him too. The idol of Paris and London! Coming to the "Broadway" in his talking, singing picture. He sings, dances, acts a great, thrilling love drama.

HELD FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING AFTER CRASH

After a Chevrolet coach driven by Daniel Alton McLeod of 14 Marjorie street, and owned by his wife, had run into a Hupmobile sedan driven by Richard Troeger of 14 Highland street, Taftville, on Norwich avenue about 6:20 Thursday evening, McLeod was placed under arrest by State Policeman Arthur Whitmarsh on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was brought to Norwich police headquarters and locked up there.

Both machines were traveling south on Norwich avenue at the time of the accident, the Troeger machine ahead of the other. As Troeger was about to make a right turn into Maennerchor avenue, the McLeod car clipped his left rear wheel, sending the Troeger car off to the right into a telegraph pole while the McLeod car shot across the street to the left and also landed against a telegraph pole.

Richard Troeger and Helen and Lena Troeger, who were in the back seat of his machine were taken to the home of Thomas Brown at No. 324 Norwich avenue where they were attended for cuts and bruises by Dr. J. W. Callahan. Henry Troeger, who also was in the car, received minor injuries. The cars were towed away by a wrecker sent from Bill's garage.

NORWICH SOCIETY RE-ELECTS OFFICERS AT TWENTIETH ANNUAL BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, May 23.—In the new home of the New York Athletic club Monday evening there was held the 20th annual dinner of the Norwich society of New York. With a reception for the members first, a menu by the N. Y. A. C. and such speakers as Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Alfred L. Aiken, vice president of the New York Life Insurance Co., and J. Jacobson, the man who brought Commander Richard Byrd's ship the City of New York back to civilization from the Antarctic.

Seventy-five members of the society and their guests partook of the bountiful repast provided for them by the Athletic club chef and listened to the musical entertainers, Carl Schraubstader and Chick Norris, both of Cornell, 1924. Mr. Schraubstader in a monologue entitled, "From Boonton, N. J., to Ithaca, N. Y." gave a good imitation of the "Toonerville Trolley," the Central Vermont railroad, and a Ford of the vintage of 1900 rolled into one. He kept the gathering in good spirits with his "wise-cracks" although he had no good "come back" for Arthur McWilliams question "Who won the crew race?"

After the cigars had been passed around and the chairs were pushed back from the table, President J. Olin Howe, the toastmaster of the evening, opened the business meeting by asking for the reports of Treasurer William McNamara and Secretary Charles H. Tirrell. These reports were accepted and it was noted with a good deal of satisfaction that there was a surplus in the treasury of the society. Next came the report of the chairman of the membership committee, Dr. Louis M. Alofsin. He proposed the names of 12 new members who were elected to membership in the society. An increase in membership of 12 men in one year must mean that the membership committee is on the job.

The following new members were voted into the society: Chas W. Lynch Mitchell L. Lynch, Dr. Joseph A. Shea, A. H. Manes, S. H. Whipple, P. Carpenter, L. M. Carpenter, Arthur Gates, Philip L. Sayles, H. A. Malman, Simon Wickes, and Dr. Herman Alofsin. Probably the new member of the society, who is best known in Norwich is Sidney Whipple, an Academy graduate, who at the outbreak of the war enlisted in the British army and served with great distinction as an air pilot and lieutenant in the British flying corps on the western front.

President J. Olin Howe after speaking of the members of the society who were unable to attend the meeting—Charles Hurlbutt, James A. Albertson and others, asked for a report from Ed. Crawford, chairman of the "Back to Norwich" committee. Mr. Crawford reported that he thought a trip to Norwich "en masse" was impractical at the present time because of the difficulties involved in getting the members to agree upon a time. So the invitation of Howard Russ to have the members of the society visit him for a week-end was declined with many thanks.

Before passing on to the election of officers, President Howe mentioned the fact that because of the low dues of the society, $5 per year, it was necessary to assess each member a small fee for the fall dinners, in order that expenses could be met.

Ed. Crawford in his report as chairman of the nominating committee proposed the re-election of all officers for another year with the addition of Chas. H. Tirrell to the executive committee and the substitution of John Powelson as secretary to take the place of Chas. H. Tirrell. This ticket was unanimously elected.

With the election of officers completed, the business meeting was concluded and Mr. Howe introduced one of the most illustrious sons of Norwich, Alfred L. Aiken. Mr. Aiken, in a very pleasing manner, spoke of reminiscences of Norwich in his youth, of Mr. Foster, United States senator and acting vice president at one time, of Moses Pierce, of Dr. Pratt, of his grandfather, Governor Buckingham, the war governor of Connecticut, and of the wonders of old Norwich. Mr. Aiken's talk was exceptionally entertaining and inspiring, as it took the members back from the drab, sidewalks of "Little Old New York" to the green lawns and stately elms of the Rose of New England.

In contrast to Mr. Aiken's talk on "Old Norwich" the next speech was delivered by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins who spoke on "Present Day Norwich." Mayor Robbins brought from Henry A. Tirrell souvenir score cards and gave one to each member of the society present. These score cards were edited and published by the students at the Academy and contain pictures of the present day baseball team and of some teams of the past as well as giving a "Sketch of Baseball at the Norwich Free Academy" by Miss Mary E. Coughlin of the Academy faculty.

Mayor Robbins said the baseball team at the Academy this year is one of the best that has ever worn the red and white and compares very favorably with many college teams of today.

Mayor Robbins said that he wanted to correct one impression which he understood some men in New York from Norwich had and it was, that the present people in Norwich do not consider the emigrants to New York from home as quitters but rather as pioneers. — Norwich is proud of its sons in New York. Mayor Robbins said, that if it were not for Norwich men there would be no skyscrapers; there would be no one to operate the skyscrapers and there would be no Wall street. Norwich men have made New York he said. Mayor Robbins spoke of the beauties of Norwich at this time of the year and there were many listeners to his address who wished that they could enjoy the spring in Norwich.

Mayor Robbins' address helped a great deal to make the evening and the dinner one of the most successful ever held by the Norwich society of New York.

The toastmaster then announced that the son of Patrick O'Brien of the Norwich society was now in the Antarctic with Commander Byrd, and that he had sent a radiogram to the dinner which he read:

Byrd Antarctic Expedition.
Radio, Received by The New York Times

S. S. Eleanor Bolling, May 20, 1929
To Patrick O'Brien,
New York City.
Dear Dad:

Greetings from the bottom of the world to the Norwich society and to the people of the city of the Rose of New England. We have many fine New England seamen on the expedition, notably Captain Melville, a fine old sailing skipper from Lynn, Mass. Was made a Pakeha Chief by the Mooris of Tairohead, New Zealand. Greetings to my shipmates of the expedition now assembled here tonight. It will be with your help that the commander will achieve the south pole.

ESMONDE M. O'BRIEN.

President Howe then introduced J. Jacobson, the pal of Esmonde O'Brien on the Antarctic expedition, and the man who brought the "City of New York" up from the winter quarters. Mr. Jacobson who looks not a day over 40 years, is 61 years old and has sailed the seas for 45 years. He spoke of the dangers encountered while bringing the square-rigger up from the ice-floes and paid the highest tributes possible to Esmonde O'Brien, to Paul Siple, the Boy Scout on the expedition and to the commander himself. Mr. Jacobson did not enlarge upon his own experiences but F. E. Meinholtz, the New York Times radio man at this end of the south pole expedition told some amusing experiences of Mr. Jacobson when he acted as Neptune while crossing the equator.

Mr. Meinholtz told of the radio connections directly to the Byrd expedition, and to the airplanes of the expedition. He gave a very interesting and instructive talk on this subject.

The last talk was delivered by Dr. Storer, one of the charter members of the society who told of the early days of the Norwich society which was founded in 1908.

The meeting adjourned at 11:30 P. M. Present at the dinner were:

After a Chevrolet coach driven by Daniel Alton McLeod of 14 Marjorie street, and owned by his wife, had run into a Hupmobile sedan driven by Richard Troeger of 14 Highland street, Taftville, on Norwich avenue about 6:20 Thursday evening, McLeod was placed under arrest by State Policeman Arthur Whitmarsh on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was brought to Norwich police headquarters and locked up there.

Both machines were traveling south on Norwich avenue at the time of the accident, the Troeger machine ahead of the other. As Troeger was about to make a right turn into Maennerchor avenue, the McLeod car clipped his left rear wheel, sending the Troeger car off to the right into a telegraph pole while the McLeod car shot across the street to the left and also landed against a telegraph pole.

Richard Troeger and Helen and Lena Troeger, who were in the back seat of his machine were taken to the home of Thomas Brown at No. 324 Norwich avenue where they were attended for cuts and bruises by Dr. J. W. Callahan. Henry Troeger, who also was in the car, received minor injuries. The cars were towed away by a wrecker sent from Bill's garage.

NORWICH SOCIETY RE-ELECTS OFFICERS AT TWENTIETH ANNUAL BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, May 23.—In the new home of the New York Athletic club Monday evening there was held the 20th annual dinner of the Norwich society of New York. With a reception for the members first, a menu by the N. Y. A. C. and such speakers as Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Alfred L. Aiken, vice president of the New York Life Insurance Co., and J. Jacobson, the man who brought Commander Richard Byrd's ship the City of New York back to civilization from the Antarctic.

Seventy-five members of the society and their guests partook of the bountiful repast provided for them by the Athletic club chef and listened to the musical entertainers, Carl Schraubstader and Chick Norris, both of Cornell, 1924. Mr. Schraubstader in a monologue entitled "From Boonton, N. J., to Ithaca, N. Y." gave a good imitation of the "Toonerville Trolley," the Central Vermont railroad, and a Ford of the vintage of 1900 rolled into one. He kept the gathering in good spirits with his "wise-cracks" although he had no good "come back" for Arthur McWilliams question "Who won the crew race?"

After the cigars had been passed around and the chairs were pushed back from the table, President J. Olin Howe, the toastmaster of the evening, opened the business meeting by asking for the reports of Treasurer William McNamara and Secretary Charles H. Tirrell. These reports were accepted and it was noted with a good deal of satisfaction that there was a surplus in the treasury of the society. Next came the report of the chairman of the membership committee, Dr. Louis M. Alofsin. He proposed the names of 12 new members who were elected to membership in the society. An increase in membership of 12 men in one year must mean that the membership committee is on the job.

The following new members were voted into the society: Chas W. Lynch Mitchell L. Lynch, Dr. Joseph A. Shea, A. H. Manes, S. H. Whipple, F. Carpenter, L. M. Carpenter, Arthur Gates, Philip L. Sayles, H. A. Malman, Simon Wickes, and Dr. Herman Alofsin. Probably the new member of the society, who is best known in Norwich is Sidney Whipple, an Academy graduate, who at the outbreak of the war enlisted in the British army and served with great distinction as an air pilot and lieutenant in the British flying corps on the western front.

President J. Olin Howe after speaking of the members of the society who were unable to attend the meeting—Charles Hurlbutt, James A. Albertson and others, asked for a report from Ed. Crawford, chairman of the "Back to Norwich" committee. Mr. Crawford reported that he thought a trip to Norwich "en masse" was impractical at the present time because of the difficulties involved in getting the members to agree upon a time. So the invitation of Howard Russ to have the members of the society visit him for a week-end was declined with many thanks.

Before passing on to the election of officers, President Howe mentioned the fact that because of the low dues of the society, $5 per year, it was necessary to assess each member a small fee for the fall dinners, in order that expenses could be met.

Ed. Crawford in his report as chairman of the nominating committee proposed the re-election of all officers for another year with the addition of Chas. H. Tirrell to the executive committee and the substitution of John Powelson as secretary to take the place of Chas. H. Tirrell. This ticket was unanimously elected.

With the election of officers completed, the business meeting was concluded and Mr. Howe introduced one of the most illustrious sons of Norwich, Alfred L. Aiken. Mr. Aiken, in a very pleasing manner, spoke of reminiscences of Norwich in his youth, of Mr. Foster, United States senator and acting vice president at one time, of Moses Pierce, of Dr. Pratt, of his grandfather, Governor Buckingham, the war governor of Connecticut, and of the wonders of old Norwich. Mr. Aiken's talk was exceptionally entertaining and inspiring, as it took the members back from the drab, sidewalks of "Little Old New York" to the green lawns and stately elms of the Rose of New England.

In contrast to Mr. Aiken's talk on "Old Norwich" the next speech was delivered by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins who spoke on "Present Day Norwich." Mayor Robbins brought from Henry A. Tirrell souvenir score cards and gave one to each member of the society present. These score cards were edited and published by the students at the Academy and contain pictures of the present day baseball team and of some teams of the past as well as giving a "Sketch of Baseball at the Norwich Free Academy" by Miss Mary E. Coughlin of the Academy faculty.

Mayor Robbins said the baseball team at the Academy this year is one of the best that has ever worn the red and white and compares very favorably with many college teams of today.

Mayor Robbins said that he wanted to correct one impression which he understood some men in New York from Norwich had and it was, that the present people in Norwich do not consider the emigrants to New York from home as quitters but rather as pioneers. — Norwich is proud of its sons in New York, Mayor Robbins said, that if it were not for Norwich men there would be no skyscrapers; there would be no one to operate the skyscrapers and there would be no Wall street. Norwich men have made New York he said. Mayor Robbins spoke of the beauties of Norwich at this time of the year and there were many listeners to his address who wished that they could enjoy the spring in Norwich.

Mayor Robbins' address helped a great deal to make the evening and the dinner one of the most successful ever held by the Norwich society of New York.

The toastmaster then announced that the son of Patrick O'Brien of the Norwich society was now in the Antarctic with Commander Byrd, and that he had sent a radiogram to the dinner which he read:

Byrd Antarctic Expedition.
Radio, Received by The New York Times

S. S. Eleanor Bolling, May 20, 1929
To Patrick O'Brien,
New York City.
Dear Dad:

Greetings from the bottom of the world to the Norwich society and to the people of the city of the Rose of New England. We have many fine New England seamen on the expedition, notably Captain Melville, a fine old sailing skipper from Lynn, Mass. Was made a Pakeha Chief by the Moors of Tairohead, New Zealand. Greetings to my shipmates of the expedition now assembled here tonight. It will be with your help that the commander will achieve the south pole.

ESMONDE M. O'BRIEN.

President Howe then introduced J. Jacobson, the pal of Esmonde O'Brien on the Antarctic expedition, and the man who brought the "City of New York" up from the winter quarters. Mr. Jacobson who looks not a day over 40 years, is 61 years old and has sailed the seas for 45 years. He spoke of the dangers encountered while bringing the square-rigger up from the ice-floes and paid the highest tributes possible to Esmonde O'Brien, to Paul Siple, the Boy Scout on the expedition and to the commander himself. Mr. Jacobson did not enlarge upon his own experiences but F. E. Meinholtz, the New York Times radio man at this end of the south pole expedition told some amusing experiences of Mr. Jacobson when he acted as Neptune while crossing the equator.

Mr. Meinholtz told of the radio connections directly to the Byrd expedition, and to the airplanes of the expedition. He gave a very interesting and instructive talk on this subject.

The last talk was delivered by Dr. Storer, one of the charter members of the society who told of the early days of the Norwich society which was founded in 1903.

The meeting adjourned at 11:30 P. M. Present at the dinner were:

Harold H. Thresher, O. Chester Johnson, Reginald Reynolds, Patrick O'Brien, F. E. Meinholtz, J. Jacobson, John R. Powelson, Lee Roy Robbins, J. Olin Howe, Alfred L. Aiken, Charles F. DEBENTURE PLAN MUST BE CUT FROM FARM RELIEF BILL

Friends of the Plan Acknowledge Committee Report Must Include a Recommendation For the Rejection of That Proposal—Senate Conferees Are of the Opinion That the Senate Might Lay Aside the Debenture Plan and Thus Gain Some Important Compromises Necessary Before the Differences in the Two Farm Bills Could Be Composed.

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—Acknowledgment by friends of the export debenture plan that any report of the farm relief conference committee must include a recommendation for the rejection of that proposal, served to clarify the status of agricultural legislation today in spite of the committee's failure to agree upon a course of procedure.

After a fourth meeting of the conferees had ended with no progress made, debenture advocates admitted that if a report is agreed upon it would suggest the elimination of debentures.

Disagreement has been occasioned by insistence of senate members of the committee that the conferees hold a general discussion on the two farm bills passed separately by the two branches of congress and then decide upon what shall be done with the debenture section. The house conferees have stubbornly declined to go ahead with the negotiations unless the senate members first agree not to bring debenture into the discussions.

To agree to such a proposal, senate conferees considered the senate would first have to recede from its position in favor of the debenture plan. The senators pointed out to the house members that it would be virtually impossible to bring this about speedily.

They argued, however, that if a conference report was brought in suggesting the elimination of the plan as the best course under the circumstances, the senate probably would recede more quickly, thus insuring earlier enactment of farm legislation.

It was the opinion of the senate conferees that the negotiations might result in a victory for the senate on a majority of the important compromises necessary before the differences in the two farm bills could be composed, and that on the basis of such a showing, the senate might agree to lay aside, so far as farm relief legislation was concerned, its previous demand that the debenture plan be made part of an agricultural measure.

MURDEROUS BANDIT LOST HIS BRAVADO IN COURT

BRIDGEPORT, May 24.—(AP)—Shorn of his bravado, and apparently frightened by the amazing rapidity with which the state moved to send him to the gallows, John (Spirits) Fellovic, 19, took the witness stand in his own defense before Judge Isaac Wolfe and jury in criminal superior court here this afternoon.

The youth is on trial for his life for the murder of Lester Jacobs, 39, who was killed on the night of March 23, while resisting Fellovic's efforts to rob him of the day's receipts of a chain store, located at Noble and Berkshire avenues, of which Jacobs was manager.

The youthful slayer, broke down when he was first called to the witness stand but later regained the calm that has marked his presence in the courtroom during the trial, and declared that the killing of Jacobs was an accident and that he had had no intention of shooting the store manager.

Fellovic and his aged mother, Mary, of the same address, were the sole witnesses called by the defense in one of the speediest trials for murder in the first degree on record in the state of Connecticut. The slayer spent slightly less than 45 minutes on the witness stand, and his mother less than ten. The state presented its entire case in exactly two hours and ten minutes.

The slayer will know his fate by Monday afternoon, the court having recessed for arguments on Monday. It was originally planned to hold a session of the court today but upon the request of counsel for the state and the defense, Judge Wolfe granted a delay over the week end.

TEST OF STRENGTH IN THE PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY

ST. PAUL, May 24—(AP)—In the first test of strength on the Princeton theological seminary controversy at the Presbyterian general assembly today, the more liberal faction scored a victory, voting to follow the moderator's program instead of that offered by Dr. J. Gresham Machen, ultra-conservative professor at the seminary. The vote was 530 to 309.

The vote came as the convention prepared to hear no less than six various and conflicting reports on the Princeton situation. Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, the moderator, in the interest of speed and efficiency, suggested a program limiting all reports, both majority and minority to allotted periods of time.

Dr. Machen countered with a substitute asking the various reporting chairmen how much time they would need to present their reports.

The matter was then put to a vote.

COTTON MILLS WARNED AGAINST OVER-PRODUCTION

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 24—(AP)—Warning that the cotton mills again were on the road to disastrous over-production was made tonight at the convention of representatives of the cotton industry by Lincoln Bayliss, president of the American Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

The sessions are being held jointly by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers and the American Manufacturers association.

"The prices for gray goods" said Mr. Bayliss, "are lower today in respect to the price of cotton than they were at this time last year or in the middle of last summer. This would indicate that the trade has already begun to discount a situation that will result from excessive over production."

BANK MESSENGER ROBBED OF ABOUT $75,000 CURRENCY

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 24.—(AP)—Five men held up a messenger car of the American First National bank here today, shot the messenger, Charles H. Vowell, in the arm, and escaped through crowded streets with about $75,000 in currency.

Hugh Johnson, chairman of the board of the bank, previously had announced that $65,000 was taken, but the robbers overlooked $10,000 in bills of large denomination which Vowell was carrying in his pockets. Vowell, a youth of 21, was not seriously injured.

The robbery occurred near the post office, which is heavily equipped with fire arms and ammunition, and less than a block from the Oklahoma City branch of the Federal Reserve bank, which is likewise well protected against robberies.

Workers in neither institution were aware of the robbery until it was over. Vowell and Crede Harper, negro chauffeur, had just left the Federal Reserve bank with the money intended to supply Saturday payrolls, when they were held up by two men from the robbers' car, which came up from behind as the bank car slowed down for a stop line at Robinson avenue, a boulevard. One man remained at the wheel of the robbers' car and two were stationed on corners to hold back the crowd. Vowell was shot in the arm as he reached for his gun.

Reassembling in their own car, the robbers dashed up busy Robinson avenue for several blocks, then adopted a zig-zag course through the residential section until they had shaken off pursuit.

Governor W. J. Holloway offered the maximum state reward of $1,000 each for the arrest and conviction of the robbers.

FIRES AND DYNAMITING IN TEXTILE STRIKE AREA

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., May 24—(AP)—A recurrence of mysterious fires and dynamiting, added to an anonymous threat received by one textile worker, during the past 24 hours had created an air of uneasiness in this strike area tonight. Outwardly however, all was calm and peaceful.

Despite the excitement created by these incidents during the early morning hours, the trials of 52 strikers for contempt of court proceeded today with the state reaching the end of its case and the defense calling the first of the fifty or more witnesses expected to testify.

While the trials proceeded two assistant state fire marshals continued their investigation of a series of fires that authorities have told they believed of incendiary origin.

A dynamite blast rocked the home of H. H. McIntyre on the Johnson City road. Unidentified persons fired a volley of shots into McIntyre's home about the time the blast was heard and near it three crosses burned for a time. No one in McIntyre's home was injured.

Deputy Sheriff Pat Taylor, who investigated the incidents at McIntyre's credited the blast and shot to a private quarrel and the blazing crosses to the pranks of boys. No explanation was given for the fires that destroyed a vacant house here and the home of a striker in Valley Forge. The striker and his family were absent at the time.

An anonymous letter threatening Grant Hardin and his family with destruction if his son continued to work in the mills which reopened recently was turned over to authorities today. Hardin said it was thrown through a window of his home attached to a rock.

E. H. H. SIMMONS DEFENDS SECURITY SPECULATION

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 24—(AP)—E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York stock exchange, speaking tonight before the New Hampshire Bankers' association, declared that there was "no justification whatever for attempting to make security speculation or security speculators a scapegoat for peculiarities in our present system in regard to credit and capital."

"At the outset," he said "it is necessary to realize that speculation is completely distinct from mere gambling, not only in its legal but also in its economic characteristics. Gambling represents a mere wagering or betting on some fortuitous future event. Speculation, on the other hand, is concerned with the purchase and sale of actual property, and for this reason it is a universal and integral factor in all commerce and trade.

"Speculation has often been made the scapegoat of our national business situation. It is frankly to be admitted that speculation, like every other good and necessary thing in the world can be overdone. On the other hand, it is also necessary to recognize that speculation has on the whole played a consistently important and constructive part in the unparalleled economic development of the United States."

STALEMATE CONTINUES IN REPARATIONS NEGOTIATIONS

PARIS, May 24—(AP)—Despite several conferences today, the stalemate in the reparations negotiations still is unbroken.

The German delegates had several talks during the day with Owen D. Young, the chairman of the experts' committee and with the delegates of the allied powers. It had been believed that the last of these conferences would be decisive, but so far as has occurred it failed to change the situation.

It was understood the British and Japanese delegates were ready to accept the German conditions in their entirety while the French and Belgians were resisting with the Italians taking a middle position.

The principal points dividing the Germans and their creditors are:

(1) Redemption of German marks imposed on Belgium during the war for which the allied memorandum demands 25,000,000 marks (about $6,000,000) a year for 37 years.

(2) The insistence of the Germans that the powers successors to Austria-Hungary contribute to the reparations settlement in proportion to the amount they ought to pay on Austria-Hungary's debt.

The conversations of the past two days have turned on those questions without any progress as far as development go.

The Germans cling to their positions, refusing to accept the modification made by the creditor powers in their draft report, while the allies are divided.

WOULD INVESTIGATE THE CREDIT SITUATION

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—Carrying out an intention announced before the extra session convened, Senator King, democrat, Utah, today introduced a resolution to authorize the senate banking committee to investigate the credit situation and the operations of the federal reserve system.

The Utah senator set forth 21 different propositions he wanted inquired into, including a determination of whether facilities of the reserve system have been loaned for trading in stocks and whether member banks have afforded "unduly large accommodations to brokers."

The resolution was referred to the banking committee. Chairman Norbuck of the committee said his attention had been directed to the proposal but he was not ready to state what course would be pursued. No committee meeting has been called.

"I repeat what I have said before," Senator Norbeck said, "that I believe the federal reserve board has full power under the law to deal with the situation relative to the extensive use of money in stock markets.

"I recognize the dangers in the situation but I can add nothing to what I submitted to the senate a year ago in a report from my committee which asked the board to admonish member banks to cut down on the amount of brokers loans. The board long delayed but finally took that action. The senate never did act on that resolution."

Under the King resolution, the committee would be asked to inquire into the extent of the so-called "short sales" on the stock exchange and other manners of trading. He also would have the committee prepare recommendations for legislation.

Groans coming under a tarpaulin in the cemetery led two Negro youths to find the dying woman, she pointed weakly to a field nearby, where the bodies of the children were found.

Mrs. Shoaf was the wife of Carey Shoaf, lumber company employe. There are four more children, ranging in age from 12 to 17 years.

The Rev. C. D. Nutter, pastor of the Bethel Baptist church here, who performed a similar ceremony last year, declared he considered the 1928 public wedding as solemn and as serious as any church ceremony, and that he would officiate this year.

TARIFF BILL STARTED ON ROAD TO PASSAGE IN HOUSE

Rule Was Adopted 234 to 138 Giving Preference to Amendments Approved by the Committee—Among the Amendments Approved Was One Raising the Duties on Live Cattle 2 Cents a Pound on Cattle Under 800 Pounds and 2½ Cents on Heavier Animals—Committee Report Will Call For a Vote Next Tuesday.

By D. Harold Oliver,
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 24. — (AP) — Aided by a rigid rule giving preference to amendments approved by the committee which framed it and calling for a final vote next Tuesday, the republican tariff bill was started on the road to passage today in the house.

The rule was adopted by a vote of 234 to 138.

Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee, in charge of the bill, and his republican colleagues on the committee quickly took advantage of the priority granted them. Backed by the huge republican majority, they successfully sponsored more than 20 of the 21 amendments favorably reported by the committee earlier in the day.

Although democrats spoke against the amendments in several instances the minority members generally appeared resigned to the stringency of the rule they had so strenuously but vainly opposed and they allowed the amendments to go through with only weak protests. On some changes, not a dissentive voice was heard.

Among the amendments approved was one raising the duties on live cattle to 2 cents a pound on cattle under 800 pounds and 2 1-2 cents on heavier animals as against 1 1-2 cents on those under 1,050 pounds and 2 cents on those above that weight, as at present.

Other amendments approved would increase the rates on butter and butter substitutes to 14 cents from 12 cents a pound and the duty on dried skimmed milk and dried buttermilk to 2 1-2 cents from 1 1-2 cents a pound.

An amendment by Representative Laguardia, republican, New York, seeking to amend the committee cattle amendment by reducing the proposed rate of 6 cents a pound on fresh beef and veal to 4 cents was ruled out of order by Representative Snell, republican, New York, who presided.

Representative Hull, republican, Wisconsin, attempted to raise the butter rate still higher to 19 cents and then 15 cents, but both proposals were rejected.

The rates on cotton shirt collars and cuffs not specially provided for, now dutiable at 25 per cent, were changed under another amendment to 30 cents a dozen pieces and 10 per cent ad valorem.

The 30 per cent duty on cotton belts and ropes for transmission of power was raised to 40 per cent. The duty on matches was raised from 11 cents a gross of boxes of not more than 100 matches to 20 cents, and oleic and stearic acid rates were boosted to 22 per cent from 1 1-2 cents a pound.

The duty on bristles was reduced from 7 to 3 cents a pound; cotton wiping rags were given a new classification at 2 cents a pound, and cotton gloves of the summer type, which the bill had placed on the free list, were made dutiable at 60 per cent.

Five democrats joined 229 republicans in voting for the rule, while 12 republicans and one farmer-labor member, Kvale of Minnesota, combined with 125 democrats against it.

All of the democratic votes for it came from Louisiana. They were registered by Representatives Aswell, Dupree, Kemp, O'Connor and Spearing.

The republicans opposing the rule were Representatives Campbell of Iowa, Christopherson, South Dakota; Browne, Cooper, Hull Lampert, Nelson, Schneider and Stafford, all of Wisconsin; Laguardia, New York, and Lambertson and Sproul of Kansas.

HUNTING FOR KIDNAPERS OF UNKNOWN MAN IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 24.—(AP)— A hunt was on tonight for the kidnapers of an unknown man, and the mystery of their identities and the plight of their victim only deepened as the search went on.

Melville Oliver, tax driver, gave the police their only clue. A man had hired his cab and ordered him to "hurry out of this neighborhood," but down the street his car was nosed to the curb by another and its occupants, displaying sub-machine guns, hauled his fare from the cab, and the victim, struggling with his captors, pleaded: "Ernie, remember I'm a married man, please!"

The police could only guess that the leader of the abductors was Ernie Rossi, already sought in the investigation of Sergt. Ray Martin's death at the hands of extortionists. Oliver was not certain of Rossi's identification.

The only theory advanced was that the man taken on the involuntary ride was marked as a stool pigeon. Rossi was named by Deputy Police Commissioner Stege as one of the four men who held Philip Blumenthal for $50,000 ransom. Sergeant Martin was shot as he lay in wait for the abductors with a decoy package a week ago, and Detective Joseph Sullivan was slain in a saloon gunfight Wednesday while his squad was hunting Blumenthal's kidnapers.

James Coyne, accused by Stege as the slayer of Detective Sullivan, surrendered late today.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF MIDDLETOWN WOMAN

MIDDLETOWN, May 24—(AP)—An inquest will be held Monday by Coroner L. A. Smith into the death of Lucia Fazzino, 21, who physicians claim committed suicide yesterday by drinking a large potion of nicotine solution commonly used to kill insects. Her body was discovered in a boarding house here where she lived with her husband. It was learned that she had left her work in a silk factory yesterday afternoon before closing time.

It was first believed the woman died of natural causes, but a small bottle of the poison and a glass found in an adjoining room led to the suicide theory. Roomers told the coroner that a message recently written in Italian on the wall of her room, and later washed off, described her longing to take her life.

WEATHER IS STILL AGAINST START OF OCEAN FLIGHTS

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 24—(AP)—Start of the French monoplane Yellow Bird, for Paris and that of the Green Flash for Rome, was tentatively postponed until Sunday morning after rainy and cloudy weather settled over the ocean today. GOVERNMENT PURCHASE OF RIGHTS OF WAY FOR LEVEES

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Hoover has submitted to Attorney General Mitchell as well as to Secretary Good the brief of senators from southern states proposing that the government purchase rights of way for levees and flowage projects in the Mississippi river flood area.

Upon receiving a legal opinion from these two officials, the president will determine what the policy of the administration will be.

In their brief the southern senators requested that work on the flood control project be suspended pending a complete reconsideration of the whole plan of flood control. It was indicated that this did not meet with executive favor.

President Hoover explained that the Jones flood control act has set up a commission to determine between the Mississippi river commission plan and the Jadwin plan and that this commission had made a report favoring the Jadwin proposal. That proposal subsequently was promulgated by President Coolidge.

EXAMINING ENGINES OF THE GRAF ZEPPELIN

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 24—(AP)—Experts at the Zeppelin and Maybach Motor works mobilized all their forces today on an examination of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin's engines in order to permit at the earliest date possible another start on the American flight.

The damaged motors, which caused failure of her attempt to fly across the Atlantic last week, were unboxed at noon at the Maybach plant, where parts for 20 other motors are ready to be assembled.

Everything now depends on determination of the question whether the accident was due to "fatigue" of the motor material or whether a technical change in motor construction will be necessary.

If the former is the case, only replacement of the "fatigued" motors by new ones will be required and a new start for America could be made within 8 to 14 days. Much greater delay is foreseen if technical changes must be studied.

FIGHT TO SAVE BOY SLAYER FROM REFORMATORY

PAINTSVILLE, Ky., May 24—(AP)—The fight to save six and a half year old Carl Newton Mahan, who killed his playmate in a quarrel, from serving fifteen years in a reformatory is scheduled to begin here at 10 a. m. tomorrow. District Judge J. F. Bailey will hear a writ of prohibition seeking to halt the sentence.

Defense attorneys this morning filed a motion for a new trial before County Judge John W. Butcher, who sentenced the youngster to serve until he is 21 in the reformatory after a jury in his court had returned a guilty verdict. Judge Butcher, however, said today he will not act upon the motion until Judge Bailey had passed on the prohibition writ.

Mahan shot his eight-year-old playmate, Cecil Van Hoose last Saturday when the older child took a piece of iron the younger planned to sell to a junk dealer.

GUILTY OF ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO KILL HUSBAND

NEWFANE, Vt., May 24—(AP)—Mrs. Laura Woodward Haverty, today was convicted by a jury here of assault with intent to kill her husband, Thomas Haverty, of Brattleboro while he slept in their home early on the morning of April 30, last. She heard the verdict without display of emotion and was returned to the Windham county jail to await sentence.

The state had produced evidence to show that Mrs. Haverty struck her husband on the head with an iron griddle after she had failed in her efforts to induce her son, Raymond Woodward, 21, to slay his stepfather. It was set forth that her desire to realize on her husband's life insurance policies was the motive for the crime.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Surprising Babies.

Some can swim and some can fly.
And some at best can merely try.
—Old Mother Nature.

Dipper and Mrs. Grebe successfully kept their secret. Not even Billy Mink discovered it, which was a very fortunate thing. Billy would have enjoyed a meal of those six eggs. Whenever Mrs. Grebe left the nest to go look for food, she carefully covered the eggs just as she had done that time when startled by Peter Rabbit. As for Peter, he had given up looking for that nest. You see, there were many other things to take his attention and interest him, and for a while he quite forgot the Grebes. In fact, for some time he didn't even visit the Smiling Pool. Then early one morning, almost three weeks from the day when he had seen Mrs. Grebe's nest without knowing it, he happened to be over in that neighborhood. He remembered how he had thought he had found the nest and decided he would have another look at that mound of dead reeds out in the water.

"I wonder if Mrs. Grebe still uses it to sit on," thought Peter. "She must have been just resting there that morning when I saw her."

He approached the place very carefully. There was that little mound of rushes and dead grass and moss out in the water and there was Mrs. Grebe. She wasn't on the nest, but she was close by it. It struck Peter that she looked very proud and at the same time very anxious. She was both. You see, a very important event had taken place that very morning. The last of the six eggs had hatched. In that nest were six tiny birds, covered with down, as a baby chicken is, or a baby duck. Peter couldn't see the babies, so of course he didn't know what had happened. Mrs. Grebe climbed up on the edge of the nest. Peter moved, in order to be able to see better. Accidentally he stepped on a very dry stick and it snapped. What he saw then made his eyes fairly pop out.

There was a sharp call, though a low one, from Mrs. Grebe. Then out from that mound, into the water, scrambled six downy little Grebes. They did not hesitate a second. You never would have guessed that it was their first venture into the water. They began to swim at once, just as if they had always been swimming. In two minutes they had disappeared behind their mother among the rushes.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Peter Rabbit to himself. "That was Mrs. Grebe's nest, after all. And how such little babies can swim is more than I can understand. Yes, sir, I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it. It is hard to believe now that I have seen it. They are such little fellows that it doesn't seem safe for them to be in the water. Perhaps if I am patient they will come back to the nest. I should like to see them again. I certainly should like to see them again. My, they surely are cute little rascals. I wonder how long it will be before they can dive. I should like to see them dive. Dipper and Mrs. Grebe are such wonderful divers that I suppose the children will be good divers, too. I do hope they'll come back and climb into that nest, so I can see them again."

Peter settled himself to wait in patience, but his patience was not rewarded. Of course, there was no way for him to know that they had left that nest for good, but that is what they had done. So Peter sat and sat. Sometimes he dozed. And then he always wondered if they had come back while he was napping. They hadn't. And at last Peter had to give up. But as he left he promised himself that he would see more of that curious little family.

WILLIMANTIC MAKING STRONG BID FOR VETERANS HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 24—Owing to the intensity of Willimantic's representative in setting up an appeal for this locality as being desirable for the location of the proposed million dollar veterans' hospital, there is a feeling here that a reconsideration is likely to be taken of a definite statement previously made that the hospital was to be built within a 20-mile radius of Hartford. Willimantic is about 10 miles over this limit. The advantages of broadening this area so as to include this city have been pointed in many ways through personal and mail appeals. Willimantic's "last stand" was stated at a meeting of the hospitalization committee in Washington, D. C., last Monday when Edwin J. Donnelly, local broker, appeared in the interests of this community. In addition to extolling the desirability of Willimantic as a site, Mr. Donnelly also communicated with the senators from Rhode Island and Massachusetts and the congressmen in those states in an effort to secure their approval for this city. There is still a strong hope here that Mr. Donnelly's able representation would not prove without results.

LECLAIRE DIES AS RESULT OF INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 24—George LeClaire, 25, of Friendship street, died at St. Joseph's hospital at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon from multiple injuries sustained on Main street Thursday noon when he was struck by a truck operated by Superintendent Henderson S. Moulton of the city water department. Death was due to a fracture of the skull as a direct cause. LeClaire had also sustained a broken jaw and an artery in the head had been severed. The skull was fractured practically all around the back of the head. Following an X-ray picture taken late Thursday afternoon an emergency operation was performed on the man in the evening by Dr. Joseph A. Girouard, assisted by Dr. Fred M. Smith. LeClair did not at any time regain consciousness.

George LeClair was born in this city, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John LeClaire. He leaves besides his parents, his wife, Mrs. Veronica Phillips LeClaire; two brothers, Edward and Fred LeClaire of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. Louise Ledoux, Mrs. Antoinette Delorme and Mrs. Bernadette Laurence, all of this city. He had been employed by the city street department for several years.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson announced that he would hold an inquest into the death of George LeClaire in the office of the chief of police at 9 o'clock standard time, Saturday morning. A number of witnesses have been summoned.

OBITUARY

Charles Tripp

Charles Tripp, 88, Civil war veteran, died at his home in South Coventry today. He was born April 11, 1841, in New York, son of Arnold and Hanna Ellis Tripp. He was one of the oldest residents in the town and had been a resident there for 28 years. He leaves his wife, Bessie Atwood Tripp and three nieces, Mrs. A. Stone, of Short Beach, this state, Mrs. Lolta Tidding, of Hartford, Mrs. E. E. Arnold of Unionville. The deceased was a member of Co. G, Fifth Regiment, Conn. Volunteers.

John Kupecs, 18, of Gurleyville was bound over to the next criminal term of the Tolland county superior court this afternoon from the Mansfield town court where he was arraigned on a charge of the fraudulent endorsement of a check. The youth pleaded not guilty to the forgery charge through his counsel, Attorney Fiske of Stafford Springs. Justice of the Peace Byron Houston found probable cause and bound the accused over under bonds of $2,000 which were furnished by his mother, Mrs. Marie Kupecs. Testimony given by State Policeman Daley of the Stafford Springs barracks and Ralph B. Gates and George Casey, clerks at the J. F. Carr Clothing company this city, was to the effect that Kupecs got possession of a check made out by John Johnson of Storrs to an egg dealer and then fraudulently endorsed the check in the presence of Casey at Carr's store. The check was cashed and Kupecs secured a quantity of merchandise with part of the money. The goods have been recovered by Officer Daley. The case was prosecuted by Grand Juror Walter F. Storrs.

James J. Shea Post No. 19, American Legion will be assigned to lead the parade at the state convention to be held in August according to an announcement made here today. This distinction is based on the fact that the local post heads the fourth district, which in turn leads the state in securing new members. The post will join with other veterans' organizations of the city and town at the special services to be held in the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday. The entertainment committees headed by William F. Mann has reported that the recent whist and dance had netted $441.48 with several members yet to be heard from on the sale of tickets.

The American Legion auxiliary met Thursday evening and received four new members: Miss Lucy Lee, Mrs. Alice Lee, Mrs. Rose Marrotte and Mrs. Dora Hovey. The auxiliary named as an entertainment committee, Mrs. Olivre Nield, chairman; Mrs. Loretta Blair and Mrs. Emma Doyle. Regular meetings will be held on the first and third Thursdays of each month.

The Capitol theater will reopen Saturday under a new policy of motion pictures reproduced in sound through the R. C. A. Phototone system that has been installed in the playhouse during the week. At a demonstration given in the theater this evening with several newspaper men present, it was found that the phototone system virtually opens a new era in entertainment. In running the test picture all forms of incidental sounds such as street noises, pistol shots, airplane engine sounds, the crash of thunder, the chirping of a canary, the ringing of a bell, knocking on a door, or in fact any sounds which accompanied the picture were reproduced in perfect synchronization with the action on the screen. The installation is such as to throw these sounds directly from the screen.

Mayor Charles A. Gates today issued a proclamation designating Saturday, May 25, as Poppy day, asking all the people to lend both their moral and financial assistance to the sale and purchase of poppies. "I know of no better way of expressing to our disabled World War Veterans our deep appreciation of the service rendered by them," said Mayor Gates, adding, "Lest We Forget," we still have thousands of disabled veterans in our various hospitals. The poppies will be sold by the American Legion auxiliary of James J. Shea post, No. 19. Let each of us do our full duty."

The "wax-paper game" which has brought grief to the pocketbooks of a number of people in the state during the past few weeks was worked to the tune of $30 on the manager of a local gasoline filling station today. The station manager was approached by a man about 60 years of age, with light grey hair, weight about 175 pounds, wearing a blue suit and tan shoes and driving a red sedan with Rhode Island markers. Within a matter of minutes the manager had written a check for $30 and while he attended to a customer the defrauder disappeared and in a jiffy had the check cashed. Police and banking officials were quickly notified but it was too late and up to late today Officer Arthur Hurley had failed to locate anyone answering the description of the caller. The description was sent out over the police teletype.

Unless timely retribution is made, the police are planning the arrest of James A. Stearns, salesman of New York city, who was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail in Meriden Thursday for failure to pay his bill at the Winthrop hotel in that city. Stearns was arrested at a local hotel Wednesday and left with a Meriden officer without paying a three-day board bill. Trout Fishing Too Good.

Local anglers are of the opinion that trout fishing hereabouts is becoming too good for the welfare of the streams. Such a condition may at first seem impossible, yet Everett Alley proves the truth of such a statement. When he lived in Maine, on the property he owned there was a frontage of 600 feet on a fine lake, stocked with land-locked salmon

Three men came down from Boston, one summer, and made arrangements to stay a week for salmon fishing. They had plenty of coin and were free with it. Mr. Alley declares that the first two days on the lake, they caught 17 whoppers and like a boy always does when he catches a big fish, they packed up and beat it to Boston.

PROUD OF SUCCESS OF STELLA FRANKOFF

Stella Frankoff was given a surprise party, Friday afternoon, by the class of which she is a member at Lisbon Central school. It was in honor of her winning the prize speaking contest in Danielson for her school. The surprise was given in Miss Risley's room and Miss Stella was greeted with a shower of confetti when she all unsuspectingly entered the room. The boys put on a minstrel, and there were games and refreshments. A fountain pen was presented Miss Frankoff by the class.

The cast for A Mother's Influence includes Iva Burgess, C. Foster, Dorothy McCall, Donald Burgess, Clarence Geer, Harold Kneeland and Hazel Hamilton. The Jerry players are Harold Kneeland, Thurley Cummings, Edward McFall and Helen Geer.

WORLD WIDE GUILD GIRLS CAPITAL ENTERTAINERS

The entertainment given in the Baptist church, Thursday evening under the auspices of the World Wide guild was very much enjoyed and well attended. The girls sang their guild song, accompanied on the violin by Sarah Gill and piano by Mrs. John Davis. Another song was Follow the Gleam. Miss Gill played an exquisite violin solo Eternal Spring by Faenger. She was accompanied by May Vallin of Norwich. The pictures shown by William Kendall of Taftville were extremely interesting and his description of his recent western trip was highly entertaining.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cooley of Enfield, Mass., spent Friday in town, called here by the serious illness of Mrs. G. A. Haskell.

BOROUGH HAS TALKIES OF THE VERY LATEST TYPE

Manager John F. Barnett of the Finn theatre has completed the installation of the talking motion picture machines in his theatre. The improved Vitaphone equipment was tried out Friday evening, with experts from Boston, declaring for its perfection.

For the grand opening of "what you see you hear" in Jewett City, Mr. Barnett has bought that wonderful picture Weary River, in which the great screen star Richard Barthelmess will address the local patrons of the Finn theatre. Two new projectors are actually working. A new ventilating scheme of modern invention is nearly completed. A specially designed screen is in place, and new matting, which makes for complete silence, has been laid in all the aisles.

Theatre men in town Friday said that Mr. Barnett was certainly in the progressive manager class, adding that the new Vitaphone equipment is the best that is known in the models available for the home theatre, with possibilities for speaking screen productions not to be surpassed in any modern playhouse.

Mrs. Martha Moore of New York and Miss Meg McCluggage of Belfast, Ireland, are visiting at the home of their brother, James McCluggage.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

From the way things seem to be shaping up, the country now appears to be facing the practical certainty that the extra session of congress will extend through the summer. There has been a coalition of senate factions which have found that by getting together they could thwart the administration and accumulate for themselves whatever political capital that amounts to. They seem to be disposed to carry on as long as they can keep peace among themselves.

The united minorities in the senate display as eagerness to create the impression that the administration has lost control and they find ammunition for trouble-making in raging over the whole system of government regulation of business. It is generally recognized that the administration leaders hardly thought when the special session was ordered that it would extend a short programme into a sweeping investigation of primary industries, which affords opportunity for a carnival of minority oratory. Congress will presumably talk itself out, but when summer arrives in Washington, bringing more emphasis on recess schedules than on tariff schedules, things may take a turn for the better. Unsettlement of general business conditions is not likely to be the fruit of prolonging the session of congress.

The attitude displayed by congress has afforded President Hoover a rare opportunity to study that body. He has learned something about politicians, he has learned that there is trouble in any attempt by one group of people to extort money from another and he has seen that congress cherishes its prerogatives. With that experience gained, and the country too busy to become excited about congress, he can view the progress of the session with a minor degree of anxiety.

A PARKING CURE.

The Brooklyn authorities have just begun to put into practice a regulation to cure all-day parking which, it appears, has heretofore been more honored in the breach than the observance. Cars which were found to be exceeding the limit for parking time were towed away and could only be redeemed by the owner upon payment of $10. The street cleaning department wreckers did the work of removing the offending machines and the money obtained from the fines goes into their pension fund. It can be imagined they were not slow to proceed with the towing job.

Mild measures had been tried with the overtime parkers, it is stated, but had little effect in curing the evil. The particular offenders were large numbers of suburban dwellers who would drive in from their homes, find a convenient spot near a subway station downtown and there leave their cars while they went over to Manhattan in the subway to their day's work expecting to pick up their cars and return home in them at night. Although streets are public property, the stores, offices and homes on these streets are private property and a decent regard for the rights of others would preclude any such annoyance as has been recorded in Brooklyn, day after day and week after week.

Practically all cities are called on to struggle with the establishment of parking regulations and the enforcement of these when they are established, for it is recognized that a reasonable use of the streets for parking purposes will have to be allowed. Perhaps Melbourne, Australia, can give our American cities points. She permits parking on certain streets, but makes each owner pay a shilling a day for using the city's property. How she enforces the law is not yet disclosed by cable dispatches.

STRIFE IN CHINA.

In the ebb and flow of events in China it appears that warfare on an extensive scale is threatening again. The nationalist administration which has its seat at Nanking, under the presidency of Chiang-Kai-Shek, has as active enemy in the north in the person of Feng Yu-Hsiang, who is assembling an armed force, according to press dispatches. The nationalist leader has been making an effort to arrange a pact with Feng, insuring against hostilities, but if such an agreement is not arrived at, the expectation is that armed strife will ensue, although probably not until after the re-interment of Sun Yat-Sen at Nanking on June 1, which is the date when the nationalists are to honor their great leader by bringing his ashes from Peiping, the former capital. Towards the close of the revolution of 1927, which resulted in the nationalist government, Feng cooperated actively with the nationalist forces, so that his defection now is a schism among one-time associates in the same cause.

In the south the province of Kwangtung, of which Canton is the capital, has been showing nationalist leanings of late, which are not viewed with favor by the military chieftains of Kwangsi, which has usually held more or less domination over Kwangtung, and the chieftains have decided upon a demonstration in force.

Another enemy of the nationalist government, who is awaiting favorable opportunity for attack, is Sun Chuan-Fang, a powerful provincial leader who was driven into seclusion some time ago, but is now sending troops south from Manchuria to combat the nationalist government.

Foreign opinion in the country, it appears, is favorable to the administration of Chiang as the nationalist president. He has headed the conservative group within the party, while Feng has been in sympathy with the more radical elements. The one indisputable conclusion in considering the circumstances is that unity and cohesion are far from being attained in China, while division and discord still hold the stage.

GARDEN TIME.

Now is the time when all good home folks are taking an interest in their garden plots. An attractive flower garden means thought and labor, with compensations in the feel and smell of overturned mother earth, the health-giving exercise in the sunshine and the fresh air, the delight of having a part in producing such beautiful things as flowers.

After the rainy spell the home yard gardeners have to hustle to get their flower plots in shape and planted, and the hour with spade or trowel seems all too brief to the man who hurries home from the office with the ardor of garden work having a hot hold upon him. He makes a valiant start—but then come talkative neighbors and others. There seems to be something about working in a garden that acts as an invitation to comment upon the activity of the worker. One suggests something about the right kind of tools to use, another insists on a partjcular brand of fertilizer, others prattle of wonderful gardens they have had. Those that ask for flowers from the garden have usually neglected to plant any of their own.

When you are working in your garden you have more visitors than you have at any other time, and they seem to be blissfully unconscious of the fact that the industrious gardener, cramped for time at the best, may look upon them as intruders. The home gardener wants to be a good neighbor, to be sociable and welcome his guests heartily and have them enjoy his garden. But at the proper time. Better than putting your neighbor upon the rack by intruding upon his gardening activities would be the practice of going to work in a garden of your own.

REFUELING.

The recent refueling of a bombing airplane above New York city was intended to prove that such a ship can get out on a long trip unencumbered by the gasoline needed for return, and therefore be able to fly faster and farther and carry a big load of explosives. In this matter the theoretical range of air attack is enormously increased. The bomber carries little but explosives, taking its fuel from fast planes that follow its trail.

Even in military theory, however, it is easy to overestimate the importance of this demonstration. It is one thing to carry out this endeavor successfully under peace conditions. It might be quite another thing to do it with the bombing ship and its supply plane under hostile fire. At the present stage of aerial development, long-distance bombing is a suicidal enterprise, or at least promises prison or internment for the flier who attempts it.

The more peaceful uses of aircraft have little, if any, need for refueling from the air. The only practical suggestion so far offered is that transoceanic flights might have a better chance of getting safely away if they took off with a light load of gasoline and filled up in flight. But in all ordinary conditions, it is the sensible and simple thing to come down for gas rather than wait for the gas to be sent up.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

With all the ingenuity with which the American people are credited it is not a big enough job they cannot better control forest fires. Such conflagrations as those that recently devastated large sections in central and western Maine would have been impossible in Great Britain and Germany. Of course the latter countries cannot have such large wooded sections as are so common in all parts of this country, but their system of prevention and control is much more effective than ours.

They are careful to remove all dead and combustible matter which gives headway to a fire before it is detected. In the second place the value of timber to them is so much greater than it is to us that they are more naturally keen in the matter of prevention than we are. Again our vast ranges of forest land have much to do with the problem.

The word that is very conspicuous on the printed page and upon the tongues of legislators today is that of "control." That it is a very important one comes very near to being self evident. A short time since it was frequently heard in congress and throughout the central portions of the United States in regard to the heavy Mississippi floods. The matter of control was a national one. From time to time we hear more or less said about the subject of control of the illicit liquor trade. But there is one application of the word that ought to be more emphatically exercised and that is "self control." When this is done many of our perplexing problems will be solved automatically. Last week the papers made much of a Texas judge who shot a young man who came into his office to confess that he had recently became his son-in-law. Self control needs just as much to be in at the top and work down as vice versa.

One of the hardest things the Apostle Paul ever advised the disciples of his day to do was to "prove all things." If this were a law of our land—or any other land, for that matter—most of our publishing concerns would soon be hanging out this sign: "Office Room To Rent." Make this a necessity in all cases and newsmongers would be rushed to insane asylums in perfect cohorts. All preachers from Jeremiah Jumpers down to Congregationalists would have to burn every sermon they wrote before they were thirty years old and after they were eighty. Our merchant princes would see the grim spectre of bankruptcy staring them in the face as they gazed at their vast stock of woolen goods ready to be dumped upon a credulous public. Could anything be more heartrending than to force lawyers to prove the statements they make in court! Can one imagine the terror of womankind if compelled to prove that their peachy complexions were the touch of nature only!

Now and then we get glimpses of the pagan heart that prove very clearly that no man nor any set of men are totally deprived. Some are bad enough but they could be worse. In times past the Zulu has stood out before our minds as typical of the benighted pagan, but reports that come to us from missionaries who labor among them show clearly how responsive they are to the higher and better things of life. One missionary has been very successful in the use of motion pictures among them. Of course only those films are used that bring out the difference between good and evil. To bring before them pictures of the opposite type would undo all the good that may have been previously made. In a magazine article this missionary says: "These films show both heroes and villains. As a result they loudly applaud the hero, and hiss the villain. With the same training as we have here they are as keenly responsive."

There are and always have been many views as to what greatness consists of. This world has never been wanting in those who insist that there is but one test of greatness and that is the money standard. The great man is he who has piled up his millions, and many of them have been truly great. Others would make original and constructive ideas the test—great thinkers like the old Hebrew prophets or the Greek philosophers, in another age of the world it was the invincible military chieftain like Alexander and Napoleon, who was typical of greatness, but theirs was rather a glory that time has tarnished. But there have been warriors who had so many other gifts that they may be truly called great and certainly Julius Caesar stands in this class as thinker, writer and statesman. For intellectual greatness, few, if any, have surpassed him. There are many others unknown to fame who are really great because they made themselves useful to humanity.

Dr. A. Z. Conrad of Boston was recently called upon to make an address for which he had very little time for preparation. It was quite natural under the circumstances that he should make an amusing apology. But any man who could make such a speech as he did had no need to apologize. Among the important things he said was the following: "I think we make oftentimes a great mistake in classifying people—in thinking of them in classes. It is the psychological idea today. But we are very apt in classifying people to misunderstand them. Now as a matter of fact human personality is pretty uniform the world over. Class distinctions, which would set a certain group apart from others are an entire mistake, because there is no great distinction between them. Climate makes little difference and occupation does not make a great difference between them. Let us think in terms of humanity."

The same advice that the Apostle Paul once gave to the Thessalonians will certainly apply to many of our modern conditions. His words were: "Prove all things." As an example of this take the sad tragedy that is now in the limelight; the mysterious affair in the town of Windsor of this state. The county detective clings to his theory that it is a case of suicide; the coroner from his investigation calls it an homicide. The public says to both parties we want positive proof because upon that will depend all further action. If it is clearly proven to have been a case of suicide, then the matter is ended as far as the law is concerned. If, on the other hand, there is conclusive evidence of murder, then if necessary the full machinery of the law will be put into operation to discover and punish the guilty party. At present it is one of the most baffling cases for years. It sounds like one of the tangles that Sherlock Holmes unwound. Let us hope that proof is forthcoming.

The same verse in which the Apostle Paul says: "Prove all things," he also adds this bit of sage advice: "Hold fast that which is good." What we get hold of a thing that has proved to be good stick to it. Isn't that a good rule to apply to any possession whether material or spiritual? Possibly a cynic observer might raise this question: "How do you know that a thing is good?" If you are very anxious for anything will not that very desire influence your judgment in its favor? Are we not apt to read into the Bible the things we want to find there? What is the good? What may be good for one man may not necessarily be good for some other man. Now that is a law that we apply to some other phases of life. It is true as regards the things we eat. Who or what shall determine the ultimate truth? Has not every man the right to determine what seems worthy of acceptance?

EARLY PEAS

"Thing of the saving in early peas alone!" cried Jane. "Four and six a pound in May! And now, by living in the country, we can plant a quart in November, and for the cost of half a crown, we can have bushels and bushels in May. By-the-by, how many pounds are in a bushel?"

"Twenty-eight," said I.

"Why, that works out at . . . let's see! Less than a farthing a pound," gasped Jane. "We can sell all that we don't need. How foolish we have been to have lived in London all these years."

"Oh, well," I murmured, "one doesn't live for early peas alone."

But Jane was deep in the pages of her gardening catalogues.

"Fertilizer," she exclaimed. "The trenches must be thoroughly fertilized. We must order a load. Twelve shillings, you said. Oh, here's a wonderful collection of peas for succession. Only thirty-five shillings for the whole year's sowing. That's what I shall get; they advise one to plant a package weekly after February. Then we can have peas until November. One never gets tired of peas."

I confess to a slight slackening of interest in the topic as the winter passed, and daily visits discovered no signs of animation in the ground. Finally, some pallid shoots appeared at lengthy intervals, and we heard of the relentless enemies of epicures—the mice. But it was only February; the weekly sowings could begin. We invested in red lead, a gardener weekly (eight shillings a day), and regular loads of fertilizer. The garden had been neglected and cultivation was imperative. By April, a vigorous showing had appeared. Jane's talk of early peas became quite lyrical, so did the birds.

The gardener demanded pea-guards. He said if we bought enough for fourteen rows, he could make shift through the summer. This ran into pounds. But, as Jane pointed out, the initial expenditure must be faced. Year after year, in future, our early peas would spring, protected. They had not, however, the orderly habits vouchsafed for in the catalogues.

We had envisaged a regular appearance fortnightly, with clockwork precision, rising in stems, two inches, four inches, six inches, and so on; but in May there were about nine rows of green shoots, identical in height, and feebly flowering.

Pea-sticks were now called for. We learned with something of a shock that these could not be pulled from any hedge. They cost one-and-six a bundle; the gardener estimated he could keep the rows going by dint of skillful rotation, with a dozen bundles which would cost eighteen shillings.

Jane's optimism about the future of these supports was at least consoling to herself. But the early peas were unaccountably dilatory in podding.

The gardener advised liquid fertilizer. We ordered a quantity.

In mid-June the early peas appeared; it was a harvest beyond all expectations. Seven rows podded simultaneously and every day brought others into bearing. The gardener had to come two days extra to pick.

Unfortunately it was a marvelous season for peas. We went round to the accommodating purveyors who arrived in carts for extra garden produce, and found them overwhelmed, as we were, by a glut. As they pointed out, the time for early peas was almost over; by July one could get anything for them. We were referred to wholesale distribution among less thrifty and foresighted neighbors.

Jane looked at the array of rows to be, and said we should make up on the late peas. But in August, the partridges and pheasants descended on us. September found them established in a well-provisioned refuge from the beaters.

Oddly enough, the late peas arrived all together in the same riotous efflorescence; and then refused to swell. We plied them with fertilizers through October and they turned yellow. The gardener thought we had overdone it and the soil had become sour. But in any case the pheasants got ahead of us. The gardener was now kept busy clearing away the haulm, and digging up the ground. It was quite expensive to get back to where we had been when we started. And November was upon us.

"You'll never have satisfaction," said he one day, "until you've wired and netted them. You want posts, ten feet high, and doors, then you can get your fair share; it's the only way of keeping out the birds."

"And the mice?" said I.

"Ah, we must take steps against them this year," said the gardener.

"And the pea-guards?" said Jane suddenly.

"You won't need them, once you have the whole ground netted," said the gardener.

"For all time," said I thoughtfully.

"Well, no; for the next two or three years, though," said the gardener. "I'd start the opposite side where it isn't soured with all this fertilizer."

Then we can dig it up and get some new stuff in. If you're going to net and post it, it's worth getting the soil right, because, of course, it costs money."

"Oh," said I, "how much?"

"A matter of £25 should do it," said the gardener.

"Which does not include the new fertilizer," said I, "and the digging, and sowing, and watering, and weeding, and picking, and clearing, and more pea-sticks. We'll think it over."

Two days after, Jane came to me with the solution. "A canning outfit! Forty-eight jars, a sterilizer, and all the rest of it; only £7. Which will last, of course, forever," said my hopeful Jane. "I can put them up all summer. Of course, we may need more jars. I can only put up ninety-six pounds in those they advertise."

"Which we shall start using in November," said I.

"And which we can enjoy until April," said Jane.

"Sixteen pounds weekly," said I. "Without a break, until the fresh peas come. A pound of peas, apiece, every day."

"But what a luxury in winter! What a change!" cried Jane.

"A luxury indeed," said I. "Let's do the accounts, for peas alone."

We have moved back to town; we make a practice of feasting on young peas in March; we buy four and six a pound for them, and Jane surveys her housekeeping accounts with the triumphant mien of a Napoleon.

"The extra rent," says she, "is quite made up for by what we save on vegetables."—C. A. in Christian Science Monitor.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 24—One happy expedient for avoiding friction and controversy effectively used by President Coolidge has dropped out of sight entirely under President Hoover.

It had to do with making federal appointments. Mr. Coolidge virtually patented the scheme of filling important vacancies even cabinet vacancies almost before word got out genera y that a vacancy had occurred or was about to do so.

That was the rule of his six years in office broken only when circumstances over which he had no control forced delay.

President Hoover, judged by his first three months in the white house, seemed to take a diametrically opposite course.

As a matter of fact, his belated selection of Henry Stimson to be dean of his cabinet as secretary of state was unprecedented, so far as the Bystander knows. It was a month after Mr. Hoover himself took office that Mr. Stimson arrived on the job in Washington and it was nearly two months before the first gesture toward filling Stimson's vacated post as governor general of the Philippines, the offer to former War Secretary Dwight Davis became known.

If there is any previous case where a secretary of state did not come in simultaneously with a new president, nobody has recalled it.

Unusual Delays.

It generally was accepted that Mr Hoover was going to take his time about appointing his presidential law enforcement survey commission, immediately on the death of Ambassador Herrick also it was evident that Mr. Hoover would make no haste about naming a man to the post in Paris.

And, in addition, much time went by before other diplomatic appointments aside from the selection of General Dawes for London were made.

President Coolidge had a definite theory behind his plan for filling vacancies as quickly as possible. It saved him continual bombardment by influential friends of rival candidates for the job.

Also at times it enabled him to evade a situation where his selection while highly satisfactory to one senator, would be just as unsatisfactory to one or more other senators.

The late John W. Weeks, who passed to the war portfolio from long senate service, adopted a policy of quick action on army promotions and assignments for similar reasons.

He knew that if selections were made and publicly announced in advance, much senatorial pressure could be judged. As a result he made it a habit to set out army lists sometimes months in advance of the actual promotions or assignments.

Reasons Vague

Selection of Frank Kellogg by President Coolidge to succeed Charles Evans Hughes in the state department was a case in point. Announcement of Kellogg's selection came simultaneously with that of Hughes' resignation.

And several senators have told the Bystander that they found the practice good, for it also relieved them from pressure in behalf of job seeking constituents.

If that fairly represented senatorial feeling it is a little difficult to understand just why President Hoover has preferred delay and much pondering in making his appointments.

YOUR HEALTH

Man-Killers Found in Mouth

By Ernest Goldhorn, D. D. S., Chicago

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

A high percentage of diseases have their origins in infections about the teeth, and are attributable to a species of germs known as Streptococci. These man-killers, as they have been justly called, are closely associated with man throughout life. They are found in the mouth at all times, and gain entrance to the deeper tissues through dental lesions that they infect. The slightest dental lesion, unless corrected in its early stages, ultimately becomes a hopelessly diseased affair and remains as a source of infection, a potential hazard and menace to the individual.

Teeth were given man to enable him to chew coarse fibrous foods, thereby making them digestible. They were designed for hard usage, and were meant to last a lifetime. The foods of early man were uncooked and consisted of fruit, nuts, grain, other forms of vegetation, and meat. Since then, man has learned to use fire and has developed the art of cooking. Cooking breaks up the fibrous texture of the foods and renders them soft and mushy, thereby decreasing the normal functional activity of the teeth and their supporting structures. The coarseness of the natural foods served man the very important purpose of cleansing the teeth by the mechanical friction produced in the process of mastication. The primitive foods were of a high mineral and vitamin content; they furnished the body with proper ingredients to build sound teeth and bony tissues and to build a high reserve of elements to resist against tooth and bone destruction.

As civilization has progressed, foods have become more highly prepared. Time has become more valuable, and in consequence man now chews his food very little. Some of the food made mushy and sticky by cooking or baking adheres to the tooth surfaces and lodges in the tooth crevices, remaining there unless removed by the action of coarser foods or brushing with the tooth-brush.

The mouth is at all times infested by millions of bacteria, several forms of disease-producing types and many forms of apparently harmless varieties. One of the harmless types is an acid forming bug that thrives on carbohydrate foods (starch and sugar) and changes them chemically into acid. This acid, liberated against the tooth surface under the film of mucin and food and in the crevices, dissolves or erodes the line or calcium tooth structure and produces dental decay. The destruction of the hard layers continues until the dental pulp (nerve) is exposed to the forces of infection. At this stage, toothaches are experienced and the nerve rapidly becomes infected and degenerates. Streptococci are invariably present in advanced dental lesions, and are carried from there foci by the blood-stream to the other tissues of the body where they produce infections and disease.

Teeth should be brushed after each meal.

A simple filling is the "finger in the dyke."

Bleeding gums are a toothache spell danger! Trouble ahead.

Never pick your teeth.

Use a scissor, a monkey wrench, a nutcracker, or some other tool but not your teeth.

Use a dentifrice (tooth paste or powder).

Eat coarse foods. Balance your diet.

Watch your children's teeth.

Don't let infected teeth impair your health and lessen your productive ability.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Historic Canterbury and Windham County.

Mr. Editor: I have read with a great deal of pleasure the articles about Fort Ned and other points of interest in Canterbury.

Take an imaginary trip through the old town of Canterbury about the year 1836. In going west from Plainfield towards Willimantic, the first industry was a tannery on the farm now occupied by Nathan Exley.

Before crossing the bridge over the Quinebaug river looking on the right lies the small cemetery containing the grave of a Mr. Kinney, who lost his life trying to save those of the ferry boat which was crossing the Quinebaug when the bridge was destroyed by a freshet.

Below a row of maple trees which were planted along "Maple lane," so called, leading towards the residence of Beecher Brown. The trees were planted by William Monroe.

Turning left towards the Grange hall crossing the brook the water of which was contaminated by the supposed best citizens of Canterbury so that children of Miss Crandall's school could not drink the water.

Then for a few minutes stop at the corner of a rock leading right toward the foundation of a hotel. One room was occupied by Maria Indge the first lodge that received its charter in the state of Connecticut. The charter is now in hands of the lodge in Danielson. The charter members were Gen. Putnam, Gen. Moses Cleveland, Maj. McClennon and other distinguished men.

Looking upon the small hill opposite the post office and see a fountain sending up water. There was a fountain in front of Miss Crandall's school built by a company chartered by the state of Connecticut.

Look under stone steps of church for a supply of powder which each soldier received before marching with cattle and sheep for starving Boston under the command of Col. Israel Putnam and Obadiah Johnson.

Then on the hill on the right stand the Separatists church.

On the four corners a short distance to the right stood the old Red church in which Mr. Pike married Miss Crandall the teacher of the school at Canterbury Green. Miss Crandall was taken from her school to Brooklyn jail where she was confined in the cell from which Watkins was taken the day before and hung.

The little Methodist church we see on the right was started by energetic women of Canterbury. The first load of timber was drawn by a Miss Bennett, who lived in the north part of the town.

On the right near the residence of the late Chas. Barstow are the wells of the Robertson and Power foundry. It did a good business in its day.

Then going towards Westminster was the site of Stockings' Watch and Clock factory.

Then at Westminster was the woolen factory owned by Mr. Waterman afterwards run by the Hullings.

Take the road north near the church and you will see the ruins of the Buckus foundry where stoves and castings were molded. Daniel Howe and Mr. Bennett took a load of stoves and peddled them in Pennsylvania.

Cross Little river and visit the pretty town of Scotland.

The next point of interest is the only bloody battlefield of which we have a record in Windham county—that is marked by a monument. According to tradition it is known as the battle of the frogs. This was the only time that we have a record of frogs speaking in the English language. The frogs called the names of Elder Knee and Dyer, too.

The next point is Windham Center, which was a town seat for Windham county for a number of years. It had two small hotels. One with a picture of a young man dressed in the height of fashion with a hand hat. He said "I am going to court." On the other side the same young man is saying, "I have been to court."

It also has the jail in which the French prisoners were confined at the close of the Revolution. It was the jail where the Separatist minister was confined. He preached to a congregation through a grated window.

Continue on the straight road towards Willimantic and you would pass the site where the first execution of a girl took place in Windham county. The girl's father went to Hartford to secure her pardon but owing to bridges being destroyed by a freshet, he arrived late with the pardon. He arrived only in time to see his daughter hung.

Sunday Morning Talk

God is Faithful

But the Lord is faithful, who shall establish you and keep you from evil. II Thes. 3:3.

What assurance this gives. We may safely trust God, for He faileth never. His word is sure and certain. His promises can be safely trusted. Sooner will the stars fall from their sockets, the heavens and earth collapse, the seasons fail, than that God will be untrue. The throne of God will totter and fall ere God will fail to do what He has promised.

Let us believe God and trust Him, and let us cease from measuring His word by our own faulty lives and miserable failures. We may fail and fail, we may be faithless, but He abideth faithful. Let us cease from depending upon our feelings, for this is unsafe and dangerous. A man may as well think of holding fast to the clouds, building upon running sand or relying on the wind, as to depend upon his feelings. Feelings at best fluctuate and change. The clouds, the sand, the wind, are no more changeable than our feelings. A change in circumstances or a change in places will often cause a change of feeling. A disorder in the physical frame will cause a change of feeling. It is not feelings we need but faith in Divine facts a spiritual and an inner consciousness of the faithfulness of God. Believers should be like the sun—go on shining, cloud or no cloud. They should "stand fast in the Lord," "stand by faith," live by faith and "hold fast the profession of our faith."

How sad and telling the words of the late C. H. Spurgeon, when he says, "Believe me, the life of grace is no dead level; it is not a low country, a vast flat. There are mountains and there are valleys. There are tribes of Christians who live in the lowlands like the poor Swiss of the Alps, who live between the lofty ranges of mountains in the midst of miasma, where the air is stagnant, and fever has its lair, and the human frame grows languid and enfeebled. Such dwellers in the lowlands of unbelief are forever doubting, fearing and tossed to and fro; but there are other believers who by God's grace have climbed the mountains of full assurance and near communion; their place is with the eagle in his aerie, high aloft; they are like the strong mountaineer, who has trodden the virgin snow, who has breathed the fresh, free air of the Alpine regions and therefore his sinews are braced and his limbs are vigorous; these are they who do great exploits, being mighty men, men of renown."

"Faith, mighty faith, the promise sees,
And looks to God alone,
Laughs at impossibilities,
And cries, 'It shall be done.'"

NORWICH CHORAL SOCIETY GIVES SPLENDID CONCERT AT SLATER HALL

Norwich voices in the Norwich Choral society, under the inspiring leadership of J. Lawrence Erb as director and with Arthur Hackett of New York, the famous tenor, as soloist, gave one of the finest concerts programmes heard here in a long time Friday evening at Slater hall which was well filled with an appreciative audience of music lovers.

The chorus rendered a programme, every number of which could well be called a finished production. Under the skilled direction of their leader, they were welded into a musical unit keenly responsive to every call of their director, the voices blending melodiously and swelling to crescendos or diminishing to lighter shades with the smoothness and balance that bespoke their response to long and careful practice. The audience was spontaneous and enthusiastic in its applause, both for the chorus members and for Mr. Hackett, who responded with several encores which included The Brown Bird and Hymn to the Night.

Mr. Hackett's pure tenor voice, rich and of wide range and under perfect control, was a splendid contribution to the delightful evening which came to a climax with the rendition of Coleridge-Taylor's "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast," for tenor solo and chorus, in which Mr. Hackett was the soloist and fairly surpassed himself in magnificance of his song flight, while the chorus numbers provided a fitting background for the soloist.

Miss Annie L. Taft at the piano was in her usual happy mood as accompanist and her work was recognized by the gift of a beautiful bouquet of pink roses.

The programme was given as follows:

Hail, Bright Abode (from Tannhauser), Richard Wagner, the chorus.

Tes Yeux, Rabey; D'Une Prison, Hahn; Chant Venetien, Bemberg, Arthur Hackett.

By Babylon's Wave (from Psalm CXXXVII, Charles Gounod, the chorus.

Aria: "Una Furtiva Lagrima" from Elisir D'Amore, Donietti, Arthur Hackett.

The Singers (Longfellow), Alfred R. Gaul; Moonlight (Weatherly), Eaton Faning; The Gallant Troubadour (Scott) Michael Watson, the chorus.

Go, Lovely Rose, Quilter; The Crying of Water, Campbell-Tipton; Sigh no More, Aiken; Arthur Hackett.

Hiawatha's Wedding Feast, for tenor solo and chorus.

The members of the chorus are the following:

VACCINATION ASSET, SAYS WEEKLY HEALTH BULLETIN

Vaccination is a community asset, says the weekly health bulletin, issued by the Conn. state department of health. The bulletin says:

The value of vaccination as a community asset in combatting smallpox is illustrated by the three outbreaks of smallpox that have occurred in Connecticut since the first of the year. The Waterbury outbreak has held down to three cases, only one of which developed after the first case was discovered. The outbreak which started in North Haven and extended to New Haven was limited to nine reported cases none of which developed after the first case was discovered.

But the outbreak in the eastern part of the state has not subsided so readily. When discovered about the middle of March, it was found that smallpox had appeared in Lisbon late in January, and extended to Griswold and Norwich. Since then additional cases have developed in Norwich and the disease has spread to Sprague, Mystic, Groton, New London and Bridgeport. Thus, in spite of rigid quarantine measures, smallpox continues to spread in the eastern part of the state and even extends to other towns. When discovered the outbreak consisted of 10 cases. Since then 26 additional cases have been reported making a total of 36 cases from 7 towns.

Why this difference in controllability of smallpox? The reason is very simple. Waterbury and New Haven were already protected by vaccination, Waterbury requires the vaccination of school children. New Haven also requires school children to be vaccinated. Furthermore, an extensive vaccination campaign was conducted in New Haven a little over a year ago, and half or more of the population were vaccinated at that time. This provided still greater protection against smallpox for the New Haven community.

Norwich, on the other hand, was not protected by vaccination of all school children. When smallpox reached Norwich from Lisbon, conditions were favorable for the disease to spread. With its greater population, Norwich became the natural center for disseminating the disease to other towns not protected by vaccination. The lack of protection in Norwich and surrounding towns has made the control of smallpox difficult. That there have been "missed" or undiscovered cases spreading the disease is indicated by the fact that no source of infection could be found for 11 out of the 36 cases so far reported in the outbreak.

But Norwich and neighboring towns are increasing their protection against smallpox by extensive vaccination campaigns. For example, it is reported that 457 children out of a total of 460 school children in Baltic have been vaccinated since the town was visited by a representative of the state department of health some time ago. This insures protection of the school children in Baltic against smallpox for a number of years. The permanence of the protection depends upon a continuation of the vaccination program so that new children are vaccinated when they enter school. In Connecticut local school boards are given authority to require vaccination of all school children as a condition for attending the public schools. Under this law local school boards have power to control the prevalence of smallpox in their respective communities.

Non-Inflammable X-Ray Films.

A former Norwich resident writes from Bridgeport:

In view of recent articles on use of non-inflammable X-ray films, perhaps this may be interesting and enclosed the following from the Bridgeport Post:

It was demonstrated in the Emergency hospital room of the Welfare building at 10.30 o'clock this morning in the presence of three physicians and two X-ray technicians that there is no such thing as a non-inflammable X-ray film.

The so-called non-inflammable X-ray film, it was shown, merely burns more slowly than the so-called inflammable film. The former burns with the speed of an ignited match, while the other burns with the speed of burning celluloid.

The doctors present at the test were Dr. James P. McManus, Dr. Mark Gildea, and Dr. Frank Turchik, Joseph Vasinko, X-ray technician of the New Haven hospital, on a visit in Bridgeport, and Arthur Knapp, X-ray expert at the City Clinic, also witnessed the tests.

Two pieces of the X-ray film, one of each type, were brought to the Emergency hospital this morning and ignited with a match. It was found hat the gas generated by the so-called non-inflammable piece of film, which was four inches long and one and one-half inches wide, was much more than that generated by the so-called inflammable piece.

The gas generated, which impressed the doctors present as being either bromine gas or a combination of chlorine and bromine gases, was sufficient to drive them all from the Emergency hospital room despite the fact that two windows were open at the time.

FRIEDMAN DECISIVELY BEATEN BY GRIFFITH

CHICAGO, May 24.—(AP) — Jerry "Tuffy" Griffith, Sioux City, Iowa, making his debute as a heavyweight decisively defeated Al Friedman of Boston in their ten-round battle in the Chicago stadium tonight, knocking him down in the first and fourth rounds.

Griffith virtually fought a one-handed battle from the fifth round to the finish due to an injury to his right hand, which was first injured in his match with Leo Lomski several weeks ago. The Sioux City tough one knocked Friedman flat on his face in the first round, dropping him with a short right cross to the chin for the count of nine. Another right to the chin sent Friedman sprawling to the floor in the fourth for another nine count. Griffith tagged him again in the seventh but was unable to upset him. The Boston battler, however, was wobbly going to his corner.

Griffith scaled 173; Friedman 188.

Luis Vicentini, veteran Chilean lightweight scored a surprising upset when he won the decision over Armando Santiago, knockout conqueror of Joey Sangor and Dick Honeyboy Finnegan, at the end of ten close rounds, each weighed 133 3-4 pounds.

Wurt Prenzel, German welterweight scored his second American triumph by stopping Jerry Kucera, of Chicago, in the fourth round. The referee intervened when Kucera was on the verge of collapse. Kucera was floored three times in the third.

Jackie Fields of Los Angeles, recognized by the National Boxing association as the world's welterweight champion, won a rather lopsided victory from Clyde Chastain, of Dallas, Texas. Chastain, who entered the ring with a record of 85 knockouts in 48 starts was on the receiving end for eight of the ten rounds. They fought over the welterweight limit, Fields scaling 148 3-4 and Chastain 148 1-4.

TILDEN, HUNTER ADVANCE, MISS WILLS ALSO WINS

PARIS, May 24—(AP)—In striking contrast to yesterday when two of their strongest combinations were eliminated, America's standard-bearers in the French international tennis championship marched forward irresistibly today.

Both Tilden and Hunter in their progress through the first round of singles became known as demolishers of youthful European hopes. Big Bill's heavy artillery exterminating Karl Wetzel, promising young German, while Hunter sank Mario Del Bono, the latest Italian Davis cup sensation. Tilden won by scores of 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, and Hunter also advanced in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4, 6-0.

Tilden and Hunter, surprised by the ferocity of the attack of Von Kehrling of Hungary and Kleinschroth of Germany in the doubles quarter-finals, dropped the first set but smothered the opposition thereafter to win by scores of 2-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

Miss Wills and Hunter had an easy time with the French team of Madame Lebesmerais and Henri George, advancing to the quarter-finals by scores of 6-1, 6-3.

Senorita De Alvarez and her Dutch partner, Kea Bouman, eliminated Mrs. Phoebe Watson and Miss Eileen Bennett of England, the defending title-holders, and reached the final round in women's doubles against the Misses Bobbie Heine and Ethel Weaver of Bobbie Heine and Ethel Weave of South Africa.

J. B. MARTIN OPENS SEASON SUNDAY AFTERNOON WITH MYSTIC A. C. CLUB

All roads lead to the J. B. Martin grounds Sunday when the Velvetmen open their 1929 baseball season.

The club got off to a late start this season and the manager has been out booking some of the fastest semi-pro clubs in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

For the first attraction the fast Mystic A. C. has been secured. This nine is piloted by the veteran Joe Blair, formerly of the Riverview club. This club in the past years was run under the name of the Rossie A. A. and in general gave the locals plenty of competition, and with a considerable amount of strength added this season feel confident of handing the locals a defeat. Manager Blair has secured the services of Kiddy, formerly of Providence college, to toe the slab against the Velvetmen. He has also secured Hamil, in the past years with Riverview club, to cover second. Hary Mills also will be seen in a Mystic A. A. uniform. Mills last Saturday twirled for this club and defeated the fast Corbin Red Sox of New Britain.

But the manager of the J. B. Martin baseball was not caught unaware this season and has secured one of the strongest clubs to represent the Velvetmen in years. The backstop work this season will be taken care of by two of the best in the eastern part of the state, Eccleston and Murphy having been secured. Manager Eribeck's choice for mound duty will be Tony West, big southpaw of Riverview club, holding Rush Fisher in reserve. Ed. Murphy will cover first with Normandin at second. Nap Liberty, having returned home after having a try out with York for the past five weeks, will again don a J. B. Martin uniform and will be seen taking care of third. Krauss, one of the fastest infielders in eastern Connecticut, will take care of short. The outfield will be picked from Lamory, Dombrowski, Liberty, Martin and Lemieux.

This combination put together will give any semi-pro club to appear on the local field this season plenty of trouble.

The grounds have been put in perfect condition and there is also plenty of parking space. Police protection has been secured. The game is called for 3:15 p. m. (d. s. t.) Taft and Simcox will officiate. The lineup:

J. B. Martin—Krauss ss; Normandin 2b; Liberty 3b; J. Murphy c; Eccleston c; West p; E. Murphy 1b; Fisher p; Lamory, Dombrowski, Liberty, Martin, Lemieux outfielders.

Mystic A. C.—M. G. Chapman rf; W. Chapman cf; Barraclough lf; Cragon ss; McCaffrey or Gregory 3b; Hamil 2b; Wilson 1b; Kiddy p; Mills p; Blair c.

CUBS RALLY IN EIGHTH TO BEAT OUT CARDS

ST. LOUIS, May 24—(AP)—A three run batting rally in the eighth inning in which Bill Sherdel was driven from the mound enabled the Chicago Cubs to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 5 to 4, today and regain the National league leadership. Jim Bottomley, Cardinal first baseman, had a big day at bat, poling two homers and getting a double.

Sherdel turned the Cubs back without a hit for three innings and blanked them for five frames. But in the sixth his support weakened and two singles with the aid of two errors gave the Cubs two counters. A walk and three doubles in the eighth put Chicago out in front and the Cards were unable to overtake them. The Chicago victory evened the series in the scrap for first place.

ATHLETICS ROUND OUT EASY WIN OVER SENATORS

PHILADELPHIA, May 24—(AP)—The Athletics kept on the crest of their winning streak today with a victorious batting attack that beat Washington ten runs to three and accounted for their ninth straight win.

Simons and Cochrane led the attack, both driving in four runs. Simmons hit his seventh home run of the season with two on base in the fifth inning and also cracked a triple and double.

Cochrane made two singles, a double and a homer, the latter off Campbell in the seventh with two on base. Foxx hit the longest home run of the day, a drive that hit the center field fence on the fly, 468 feet from home plate.

Cronin hit for the circuit for Washington with the bags empty in the third. Seven of the Athletics nine straight victories have been scored at the Senators who have only defeated the Mackmen once in eleven games. The score:

Westerly Vs. Stonington Today

Westerly high school baseball team meets the Stonington high ball players this (Saturday) afternoon at the Westerly Athletic field off High St. This is the first set-to this season between the blue and white and brown and white players and there is generally so much interest shown in this game that a large gallery results. With the presence of the large gallery the players have been known in years past to play such a brand of ball, despite all previous records of the year, that "dopesters" are loath to go on record on the ultimate results.

TWO SCHOOLS TIE IN TRACK MEET

Greeneville and Elizabeth street schools finished in a tie with 25 points in the annual grammar school track meet held Friday afternoon at the Fairgrounds. Broadway was second with 19 points, Taftville third with 16 and Samuel Huntington school last with five points. Approximately 175 boys and girls from the five schools competed and there were about 600 from these schools on hand to cheer them on. The Bulletin cup will be awarded to these schools, each to have it half of the time for the next year.

A victory in the final event of the day, the girls' relay race, was what enabled Elizabeth street to crawl up into a tie with Greeneville for top honors. The meet was held jointly under the auspices of Miss Shugrue, athletic director in the local public schools and J. Howard Demarest, physical director of the Y. M. C. A.

Winners of cups offered by local merchants for individual honors were Phyllis Raikowski, of Greeneville, for the girls and Meranda, Elizabeth street, J. Mozek, Taftville and Lambert, Broadway, for the boys.

The meet was run off without an hitch. The following were the officials: Matthew J. Sheridan, starter; Tom Burdick, announcer; Courtland C. Whitney, clerk of course. Miss Shugrue, records, Howard Ludlow, Aubrey Brown, Albert Leffingwell, judges. There were also members of the Academy track team who assisted in running off the events. A tug of war, for which no points were awarded, was won by Elizabeth street. Olga Kalskey won the Ferguson cup for high scorer.

STILL SICK AND I DON'T CARE WHO KNOWS IT.

If I'm vaccinated again they'll have to chloroform me and believe me it's going to be some fight.

I just don't care whether school keeps or not and what's more the old ambition is just about down to zero.

Good night, folks.

GIANTS MAKE IT TWO IN ROW FROM BRAVES

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)—The Giants made it two straight from the Boston Braves by winning here today, 7 to 3. Both of the starting pitchers, Ben Cantwell and Jack Scott, were forced out of the game by injuries. Ott hit a line drive against Cantwell's right knee in the first, and forced his retirement. Scott was put out of action in the fourth when his right wrist was struck by one of Brandt's inside shoots.

The Giants clinched the game in the fourth at the expense of Brandt. Cantwell's immediate successor, Jackson and Roush each hit a home run, one man being on base on each occasion. The game was played through rain after the fourth. The score:

MCFAYDEN HANDS YANKEES FIRST SHUTOUT OF SEASON

BOSTON, May 24—(AP)—Danny McFayden, the bespectacled right hander from Somerville, spattered the Yankees today with their first whitewash coat of the season, winning by 5 to 0 as the Red Sox pounded Herb Pennock from the box. McFayden pitched four-hit ball and two of the safeties were made on Texas league drives to right where the wind made the ball turn crazy twists in the air. Ruth went hitless.

Pennock shut out the Red Sox until the sixth when the home team scored four runs on singles by Rothrock, Narleski, Bob Barrett, Regan and Todt and an error by Combs. Roy Sherid rushed to Pennock's rescue and surrendered the fifth run in the eighth on a base and Scarritt's triple.

Behind MacFayden's brilliant pitching, the Red Sox played flawless defensive ball a diving catch by Flagstead of Comb's drive to left center being the top thriller.

The defeat dropped the ankees more deeply into third place, five games behind the leading Athletics and two to the rear of the Browns. Score:

N. F. A. WILDCATS READY FOR BULKELEY AT CAMPUS HERE THIS AFTERNOON

The Academy Wildcat lies crouched in its own backyard this afternoon, waiting for Bulkeley of New London, ancient rival in the second game of the annual series, which will start at 3 p. m.

N. F. A. Again Favorite

Once again, the Academy enters a Bulkeley game as the favorite and once again are their followers shouting the warning of guarding against over-confidence. The two oldest high school rivals in Connecticut will meet at the local ballyard this afternoon with the Academy probably ruling about a 3 to 1 favorite.

The pitching selections are pretty definitely decided as Butsy Weisgrab-

BUTSY WEISGRABER
N. F. A. Pitching Ace, Who Opposes Bulkeley Today At Campus

er for the Academy and John Petrosky for Bulkeley. Weisgraber outpitched his Orange and Black rival at New London last Saturday to win, 5 to 2, in a game that the Academy was supposed to romp off with without any trouble. Butsy, however, was a tired boy in that game, having pitched in nearly all his team's games for three weeks before that tilt. Today he will enter the classic with a full week's rest and Academy bugs are counting upon him to stand Bulkeley on their heads. Weisgraber has pitched in and won six of the last seven games for the Wildcats.

13 Straight

The Academy has an unbeaten record of thirteen straight wins, entering its second Bulkeley game while Bulkeley has lost about as many as they have won. However, the Whalers have not received anything like a bad beating all year, holding Warren Harding to 6-1, Deep River to 3-0, Westerly, 6-4, Stonington, 4-2, ten innings, a team which they have also beaten, etc. On the other hand, Bulkeley has risen up on several occasions and won practically all its games by lop-sided scores.

Coach Brigham of the Wildcats will send his strongest hitting lineup to the firing line. Jack Marks will again be in right field with Buck LaCroix on second, Red Fagan in center and Anso Tombari in left. Marks has been bothered with an injured ankle but has pronounced it for action again.

New Flagpole Up

The new flagpole, which was donated by Jeremiah Fitzgerald has been erected and the banner, State Champions, will float today for the first time. The banner will be held taut with a rope until just before game time when the rope will be cut and the flag unfurled to the breeze, probably just as Our Boys trot onto the field. This is in recognition of the Wildcats' winning of the state title in 1927 and 1928 and of their apparent drive toward their third consecutive championship this season.

The game will be handled by umpires from the New Haven Recreation Board and the record-smashing crowd of the year is expected.

Bulkeley Band Coming

It is expected that the Bulkeley band, which makes a very neat appearance, will be present and play before the game and between the innings. This is a league game.

BROOKLYN TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM PHILLIES

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 24.—(AP)—Doug McWeeny halted the Phillies hero today after Watson Clark was knocked out of the box in the eighth by Homer Peel's line drive, which injured one of the pitcher's fingers, and Brooklyn won the opening game of the series 3 to 2. Win Ballou was Clark's immediate successor but was rushed from the scene after he had passed one batter, filling the bases.

Lester Sweetland went the route for the Phillies and allowed nine hits the chief of which was a home run by Babe Herman. Philadelphia reached the three Brooklyn pitchers for only six safe hits. The score:

LOUGHRAN OUTPOINTS SCHAAF IN FAST BOUT

BOSTON, May 24—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, passed his entrance examinations into the next class here tonight by outpointing Ernie Schaaf, the hard-punching Boston heavyweight in the Boston Garden's feature bout. It was a fast ten round contest which contained much scientific swatting.

Loughran's left hand, a rapid fire jabbing weapon, prevent Schaaf getting inside to put over a punch stiff enough to floor the champion. The Boston heavyweight's plan was to soften Loughran with solid body punches and then finish him off with a barrage of left hooks.

The titleholder ruined this scheme by beating Schaaf to the punch with a stinging left jab and bouncing away when his opponent tried to reach his body with a hook.

Tommy was just a trifle slow backing away in the fourth round and Schaaf connected with a left hook that staggered the titleholder. He clinched long enough to regain his bearings and then continued jabbing away at Schaaf's face.

Many times during the battle, Schaaf scored with heavy body blows but Loughran, who came in at 185 pounds, the heaviest he has ever been in his career, was strong enough to digest them.

Both men were fast and eager to mix but Schaaf was just a bit too slow of foot to hold up his end. He outweighed Loughran by a scant five pounds.

Loughran piled up a winning lead and when the seventh rolled along he had the honors in every one but the fourth. From this point on Schaaf concentrated on landing a knockout punch. He made many gallant tries, but the clever champion's timely left kept Schaaf far enough off balance to soften most of his body hooks.

The Bostonian made a furious attempt at a knockout in the final round. His aggressiveness forced Loughran to quit jabbing and slug toe to toe with him. Schaaf landed many stiff punches enough to take the round but Loughran was able to survive by taking them going away.

The champion, who has announced that he will quit the light heavyweight division after defending his title against Jimmy Braddock next month, appeared able to hold his own with any of the front rank heavyweights.

Just before the main bout, Mrs. George L. Rickard watched from her front seat, Huntington R (Tacks) Hardwick, president of the Boston Garden corporation and Sheldon Fairbanks, the general manager unveil a radiotone gold portrait of her husband, the late New York promoter. This ceremony was staged inside the ring and later the portrait was hung in the Boston Garden lobby.

Harry Smith, of New York, gained a sensational semi-final bout victory by knocking out Gary Leach, of Syracuse, half way through the first round. Leach took a right hook going away but the blow contained enough force to drop him for the ten count.

Joe Belinski, another Syracuse battler, had better luck. He knocked out Joe Taverli, Boston middleweight, in the second round of a contest slated to go six rounds. In the other preliminaries, Joe Accetta, Providence, outpointed Walter Peters, of Germany. Joe Barlow, of New York, gained the decision over Jack Welt. Tommy Loughran's sparring mate, and Harry Slabine, Boston, defeated Joe Mack, of Manchester, N. H.

ON TRIAL FOR CRIMINALLY LIBELLING ALVAN T. FULLER

BOSTON, May 27 —(AP)—Efforts to attach "moral responsibility" to former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller for the deaths of Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco, executed radicals, marked the tactics of defense counsel in the trial of Harry J. Canter, of East Boston, in Suffolk superior court today.

Canter is charged with having criminally libelled the former governor by carrying a placard which said Fuller was the "murderer" of the two men during a demonstration before the state house.

President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard university and President Samuel W. Stratton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who were members of a special advisory council appointed by Gov. Fuller to consider evidence in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, had been summoned by the defense as witnesses. They were excused from testifying until next week.

Only two witnesses were called by the government before it rested its case. Frank Sanborn, state policeman, and Sergeant John J. Manning, of the Boston police testified they had arrested bearers of placards, during the demonstration on November 3, last year.

In opening the defense, Arthur Garfield Hays, of the American Civic Liberties union attempted to cross examine Sanborn and Manning regarding various aspects of the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Judge Robert F. Raymond refused to allow the questions.

If every car was labelled with the Name of the Gas it carried—

we'd need no other advertising for Hi-test TYDOL

Three cars of the same make lined up abreast on a wide boulevard. Presto! The red light changes to green. Zip! . . . One car flashes away from the others like a greyhound from a pair of lumbersome English bulls.

What made the difference? A few months ago, you'd have said "An extra quality gasoline at an extra cost." But today, the well-posted motorist would say: "It's probably Hi-test TYDOL. An extra quality gas without any extra cost."

Hi-test* TYDOL, a high-test, anti-knock, super-power gasoline, at the price of ordinary gasoline, is the most notable success in Tide Water's fifty years of progressive history.

But if all the cars using Hi-test TYDOL, in brilliant and outstanding performance, carried its name on their gas-tanks, we couldn't fill the demand.

So, luckily, until all motorists know about it, there will be plenty of Hi-test TYDOL for you!

Time

Time is God's tenderness,
Told in hours and ages,
The sinner's cleansing fear,
The sure proof of sages;
Time's work is powerful,
Ingenious and true,
Making snow out of rain
And rain out of dew,
Making cities out of towns
And deserts out of cities,
Teaching by many wars
Millions of pities,
Time can lift a forest up
Where lies a bare field,
Or show the naked lie
That truth has concealed,
Goals of my long desire
Time alone can reach
And time can cure the sorrow
That finds no each in speech.

—Marguerite Wilkinson

The Passing Flower

In Baalbec there were lovers
Who plucked the passing flower;
In Sidon and Palmyra
Each flushed, immortal hour.

Was gathered in the passing;
In Greece and Rome they knew
That from the living present
The whitest blossoms grew.

The countless generations
Like autumn leaves go by;
Love only is eternal,
Love only does not die.

I hear the dying nations
Go by on phantom feet—
But still the rose is fragrant,
And still a kiss is sweet!

—Harry Kemp.

MOTOR TRAFFIC LIGHTS RECOMMENDED TO COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 24—At a special session of Westerly town council, Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the council chambers a number of Misquamicut zoning matters came before the council for action

The council continued in session until nearly 7 p. m. After much discussion Michael E. G. Panalia was granted permission to build on an eight-foot strip of land between two buildings in a business section at Misquamicut, located between two existing buildings. Although the work would create some 13,000 square feet which requires fireproof construction, the council deemed it less of a fire hazard than if a technical construction was made separating the buildings by a one-foot space.

President H. E. Burdick announced with upraised hands to his law-abiding conferees that five citations had been served upon him by Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell. In the service of the papers relative to the establishing a new building line on the south side of Broad street. Attorneys Rathbun, Gallagher and Dunn represented the remonstrating property owners and the summons called for a court appearance at Kingston, the first Monday in July to show cause for the council's act.

Reporting for the police committee Councilman Frasier stated that time would not prevent his securing bids for a street conduit construction for underground wires and signal traffic work as the highway department work would be unnecessarily delayed. He recommended for police motor traffic lights that the offer of the South County Public Service Co., be accepted, in the installation and maintenance. The new system of traffic lights requires sidewalk poles eight feet high and four lights to take the place of two present ones on Broad street. Southbound High street traffic would be controlled from a pole near the present traffic booth; Broad street westbound traffic by a pole at the St. Clair corner; Pawtucket bridge eastbound traffic, a pole by the Washington Trust building and Main street northbound by the pole at the Solomon store. Motor traffic engineers recommend a synchronized light control to permit a steady in-and-out movement of autos. In the offer of the Utility company, a requirement by the New England Power corporation was stressed for maintenance by the company employes.

The newly elected fire marshal, Joseph Fraser was presented his gold fire marshal's badge inscribed "Town of Westerly" by Council President Burdick with all the formality of field citation in the French army.

At Y. M. C. A. Sunday

At 4 o'clock tomorrow, (Sunday) at the local Y. M. C. A. the old and yet ever new Immortal Allegory "Pilgrims Progress" will be portrayed on the screen by 50 or more stereopticon slides.

Outside of the Bible there is no finer piece of religious literature than this marvelously realistic story written by John Bunyan while incarcerated in a prison. The various characters of the story each has his part to play to make the story complete and the whole represents human life in its struggles on its journey through life. The heros of the story are pictured as having many temptations and severe trials, yet in them all they are wonderfully sustained and finally a glorious victory is their lot as is always the case when men follow the leading of the omnipotent one.

The pictured allegory is at once impressive and intensely interesting. A profitable hour is assured.

To this service the adult public is invited and youths 14 and over will be admitted.

Loretta Young is a young miss discovered by First National and seen recently in the feminine lead with Lon Chaney in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

The villiany of "Scarlet Seas" is perpetrated by Jack Curtis, whose evil eye has made him one of the deepest-dyed bad men of the screen. The "pious old hypocrite" role of Johnson in "Scarlet Seas" is enacted by James Bradbury, Sr., a character man of popularity both on stage and screen. Other important roles are essayed by Knute Erickson, Larry Fisher, Bill Wilson, Jack Hyland and Fred O'Beck.

John Francis Dillon, whose direction of "The Noose" won him plaudits, was responsible for the direction of "Scarlet Seas." The story is an original screen narrative from the pen of Scott Darling, especially written for Barthelmess and adapted to the screen by Bradley King. A battery of 12 cameras, under the direction of Sol Polito, was used in filming the highly spectacular sequences taken at sea and on the Island of Catalina in the Pacific.

"You've got to be good to click in New York."

That is what anybody who knows his "Main Stem" will tell you.

By the same token the same person will tell you that Maurice Chevalier, idol of the French and British stage, "clicked" in New York recently when he appeared for his first personal performance in the United States at the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic.

Your Broadwayite very likely will go one further and say, "That lad not only clicked, he whirred and hummed!"

What it takes to bring a blase New York audience to its feet yelling and cheering, Chevalier has got. He is a genius, a marvel in the art of entertaining.

Here is what the Evening Graphic said the day after his appearance at the Ziegfeld roof show:

"Every number was received with fervent handclapping, and some of the spectators forgot that they were in starched shirts and placed their fingers in their mouths to whistle in the good old-fashioned manner."

Commenting on his genius and fun-making magic, The New York Telegram said:

"Small wonder that, at the witching hour of one, New York gives him a nice big hand. Small wonder the patrons of Mr. Ziegfeld's skyey cabaret rise up, a collective Oliver Twist, to beg for more and more."

Small wonder that every paper in the metropolis gave Chevalier the most cordial greeting ever extended to any visiting player. Small wonder, for "the boy's got the stuff that clicks."

The audiences at the Broadway theatre will see and hear Maurice Chevalier in "Innocents of Paris" beginning Sunday for four days.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

THE FIRST AND WORST OF ALL FRAUDS IS TO CHEAT YOURSELF.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY. BREAKFAST IN BED.

With due apology to the famous "Rainbow" song:

There's a fried egg round my shoulder,
There is bacon round my head
There's a coffee stain on the counter-pane
For I've had breakfast in bed.
There is jam inside my nightie
And some crumbs of toasted bread
And I've been soaked through with oyster stew
While having breakfast in bed.
Hallelujah! How can people say
They like to eat this way. Seems a messy way.
To start a day. Yes sir!
I'll be so decrepit feeble
That I might as well be dead
